Olympic Fraud Ralds

MONTREAL (UPI) — RCMP and provincial police conducted a series of raids in the Montreal area today in what police said was an investigation into possible fraud in the construction of a key Olympic Games facility.

A Quebec police force spokesman said some 100 officers of the provincial force along with RCMP were carrying out raids relating to the building of the $90 million Olympic village site.

"Our men went to different places wth search warrants to find information, documents or people pertaining to an alleged fraud in the construction of the Olympic village," a QPP spokesman said.

"No arrests have been made. We were not out to make any arrests — we were out to get some documents," the spokesman added.

Police said some of the raids were carried out on the site of the village, two pyramid-shaped, 980-unit apartment buildings scheduled to house 11,000 athletes at the 1976 summer games, and others at various construction company offices including the offices of Terrasses Zarolega Inc.

Police said raids, which began at 7 a.m. took place at several other locations including the homes of the company's directors.

Terrasses Zarolega Inc., a consortium of Joseph Zappia, Rene Lepine, Gerald Robinson and Andrew Caty, is building the Olympic village.

The village complex originally was estimated to cost $30 million. Begun last December, the exteriors were completed in only five months, with some contractors earning bonuses for speeded-up construction.

DANSON HITS SPECULATION

Land Price Curbs Eyed

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government is considering controls on land prices to prevent speculation, Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson said Monday.

Builders, he said, seem willing to accept some control in this area.

However, the comment drew swift and angry response from Bernard Denault, president of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada.

Controls, he said, might prompt big landowners to keep land off the market until the three-year control program ends.

This would limit the land available for housing and might have a disastrous affect on housing construction.

The government is also considering tightening anti-inflation controls over the construction industry because the current program exempted about 80 per cent of the industry, Danson said.

An anti-inflation board spokesman says this would be done by making more of the smaller construction companies subject to mandatory controls.

The current program calls for direct controls to apply only to construction companies employing 20 workers or more.

This likely will be changed to apply direct controls to companies that employ some number of employees fewer than 20.

The board has not yet decided what size of company it wants to regulate directly or the number of companies it expects to be affected by changes in the controls program.

Danson met Monday with official of the Canadian Construction Association and its provincial affiliates, the Housing and Urban Development Association and builders.

The meeting was part of "a continuing effort at consensus" over the federal controls, he said.

Changes in the anti-inflation program will raise the number of companies — now estimated at 7,500 — that will have their operations and employees subject to mandatory controls.

All others have been asked to comply voluntarily with the guides for acceptable incomes and price rises.

The estimated number of directly regulated companies has grown significantly since the controls were imposed Oct. 14.

Prime Minsiter Trudeau said then the government program applied directly to the 1,500 largest companies that employed 500 or more employees each, and to construction companies employing over 20. That would have covered about 5,000 construction firms.

The anti-inflation board now admits it under-estimated the number of large companies affected. As a result, it has since increased its estimate to 2,500 from 1,500 and says that is still "a rough estimate."

Postal Workers Assaulted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A postal worker said today he and five colleagues were assaulted by members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers after the six finished working a night shift at the downtown post office.

Mike Kinsella, 37, a dispatcher, said he was one of a group of eight workers who reported for duty shortly after 4 p.m. Monday.

"One of the fellows was body checked as we walked inside,but nothing much more came of it at that time," Kinsella said.

Kinsella said the real trouble started when the group left the post office at about 11:45 p.m.

"When we left the post office we turned north, but one went south, so that left seven of us. We saw a person standing on the Queen Elizabeth Theatre plaza as we were approaching Georgia, but we thought it was just a kid or something," he said.

STRIKE TIME TOLL HIGH IN CANADA

GENEVA (Reuter) — Canada placed high on a list of non-communist countries leading in lost labor time due to strikes and lockouts in 1974, the International Labor Organization (ILO) reported Monday.

In a review of labor disputes in 60 countries, the United Nations agency disclosed that the number of working days lost to strikes and lockouts in the non-communist world jumped by more than 35 per cent last year.

Italy led the list but the longest stoppages were in Turkey, the report said.

Strikes last year led to the loss of more than six million working days in Canada, Australia, Italy, Japan and Britain. In France, the total was three million, and in West Germany, Spain and Peru it topped the million mark, the ILO said.

ILO officials said they had no statistics for China or the communist states of Eastern Europe.

ILO said the total number of working days lost because of labor conflicts rose to 154 million, almost 42 million more than in 1973 when a slight decrease was recorded. The number of workers involved in strikes or lockouts also increased, rising from 22 million in 1973 to 25 million in 1974.

Socred Squabble Boils As Capozzi Dumps Lau

VANCOUVER (CP) — The internal squabbling within the Social Credit party in the Vancouver Centre riding peaked Monday when nominee Herb Capozzi declared himself independent from the campaign of Alan Lau.

The two men had been running as a team since they were nominated Nov. 16 to contest the dual riding for Social Credit.

Capozzi told a news conference that public concern over Lau's candidacy prompted him to run independently from the former Hong Kong businessman.

In Port Alberni Monday night Socred leader Bill Bennett refused to specifically endorse Lau's candidacy but said he would never interfere with the local selection process.

"I don't interfere with local constituency politics," Bennett told a news conference after a rally attended by more than 1,100 people.

"If people in the constituency have any complaints, they can take them to our party president, Peter Hyndman. If it turns out the complaints are justified, a new nominating convention would be held."

He repeatedly referred reporters to Hyndman to answer questions about Lau's candidacy, possible appeals, and the party machinery that would be involved in any change of candidates.

"As party leader, I take the candidates that the constituencies select. As party leader I have said that I will not interfere in the selection of candidates and I haven't.

"I do not engage in witch hunts."

He said he is not aware of any complaints received about Lau, nor of any investigation into his candidacy.

Bennett said Capozzi did not speak to him before divesting himself from Lau.

Capozzi said he was not cut-

Thousands Flee L.A. Flames

Times News Services

GLENDALE — Firefighters mounted a massive aerial assault today against the worst California brush fire outbreak in five years. Thousands of refugees fled flames raging across 100 square miles through suburban homes.

A gigantic smoke cloud billowed 100 miles into the Pacific, casting a twilight pall over the Los Angeles area.

Motorists 30 miles away had to use headlights in the darkness at noon amid a rain of ashes "like snowflakes." The sun shrank to a small red disk in an eerie murk of pink and grey.

With nearly 2,000 firefighters falling back before flames, whipped by hot winds from the Mojave Desert gusting up to 60 m.p.h. home owners mounted individual defences.

Standing with garden hoses atop homes surrounded by flames, they alternately doused themselves and flaming roofs. Some won. Some lost.

The worst fire, the Tujunga Canyon blaze, had consumed 43,000 acres by Monday night, burning 43 structures and sending 3,000 persons fleeing. Nineteen houses valued at up to $60,000 or more burned to the ground Monday as the fire

Grits 'Hiding' On Giguere Probe

By IAIN HUNTER
Times News Services

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Monday of hiding behind a police investigation involving a Liberal senator.

The Conservative leader demanded in the commons a public inquiry into affairs relating to Senator Louis Giguere "and alleged conflicts of interest."

"I have to ask members of the govenment why they keep hiding behind the fact that a police investigation is being made into something that very closely touches the government, Parliament and this country," Stanfield declared.

Referring to recent reports of police raids on the senator's office and apartment in Montreal and his office on Parliament Hill, the opposition leader said there is a "prima facie indication of a substantial conflict of interest" and called on Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to "set the minds of the Canadian public at ease" and order a public inquiry.

Senator Giguere, a Liberal party fund raiser, admitted making a $95,000 profit on a $5,000 investmennt in Sky Shops shares in 1972 when the government extended the Sky Shops lease for the Montreal airport duty-free shop concession.

It has been reported recently that when RCMP raided Giguere's apartment Nov. 6 they carried a warrant authorizing them to search for documents relating to the collection of funds for the Liberal party, as well as correspondence concerning business conducted by corporations with the federal government.

Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova) noted that it has become public knowledge that ledger cards of engineers and architects were among ducuments taken by the RCMP from an apartment next to the senator's and asked whether they had any connection with the Mirabel Airport project.

Solicitor General Warren Allmand refused to give any details of the police investigations while they are still under way. He also refused to say whether RCMP had also searched Liberal party offices. He said he will consider tabling in the Commons copies of the search warrant and list of documents seized in the case, but refused to agree to table police reports when the investigation is completed.

'DEAD' DUCK BEATS FREEZE

SLIDELL, La. (UPI) — Duck hunter Warren Stovall, relaxing at home after bagging a pair of mallards he intended to have mounted, went to his freezer to get ice for a drink.

When he opened the freezer door a half-frozen duck with buckshot wounds in the neck and wing flapped out of the refrigerator and flew around the room.

"He started screaming," said his wife Charlotte. "He came running in with the duck, and it was alive. It had worked its way out of the foil and was sitting in the freezer when he opened it, and it flew out."

Stovall had shot the drake and a hen about dawn Saturday, and a busy taxidermist told him to freeze the birds and he would stuff them on Monday.

Stovall wrapped each duck separately in tin foil, sealing them with tape, and popped them in the freezer at 10 a.m. Saturday. It was 10 that night when the duck flew out of the freezer.

The Stovalls decided to give the drake to a man who raises ducks.

"As much as this duck has been through, he wasn't meant to die," Mrs. Stovall said.

DIVORCE RATE UP 20%

OTTAWA (CP) — The national divorce rate last year was up 20.6 per cent from 1973, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

There were 45,019 divorces in 1974, resulting in a rate of 200.3 divorces per 100,000 population. This was up from 36,704 divorces and a rate of 166.1 per 100,000 in 1973.

The agency said the divorce rate has been increasing since legislative changes in 1968 simplified the process.

Alberta had the highest rate in the country at 288.1 per 100,000, up 9.3 per cent from 1973. Newfoundland had the lowest rate at 55.4, up 33.8 per cent from 1973.

The rate increased in all areas except the Yukon, where the rate dropped to 242.1, down 19.3 per cent from 1973.

The rate per 100,000 population and the percentage increases from 1973 in other provinces:

Prince Edward Island, 82.1, up 74.7 per cent; Nova Scotia, 195.5, up 26 per cent; New Brunswick, 113.9, up 29.4 per cent; Quebec 199.8, up 50.1 per cent; Ontario, 188.5, up 17.1 per cent; Ontario, 188.5, up 17.1 per cent; British Columbia, 284.8, up 15.9 per cent; Northwest Territories, 155.3, up 40.5 per cent.

Feminists Take Aim at 'Sexist' Toy Departments

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Let the merchant who displays toys in a' 'sexist'' way be warned.

Victoria feminists are on the march against stores whose toy departments advertise or section off toys into boys' and girls' areas.

So far they've been to most of the major stores and have won most of the managers over to their point of view.

The feminists are pleased with the results — "extremely satisfied" was the way Alice Ages put it.

Ages, a former elementary school teacher, mother of three and member of the Victoria Women's Action Coalition, said feminists have been trying for three years to get some action.

Earlier this month they got together and initiated a new and more forceful drive.

Ages said they were appalled by sex role stereotyping of children's toys which ends up "transmitting obsolete social values."

She felt there was no reason boys should be limited to trucks and trains and chemistry sets while girls had to choose between toy mops and vacuum cleaners — symbols of "darkest domestica."

She said such segregation "reinforces ... the mother's little helper role" and could be "severely crippling to a girl's self-assessment."

Ages said a complaint was made to Simpsons-Sears and the next day down came the offensive Boy Town and Girl Town signs; up went the sexless Toy Town sign.

A spokesman for Sears said the store was going to change the signs anyway but the women's protest and a veiled threat there would be a demonstration 'speeded up things a bit."

Ages said the women have gone to The Bay, spotted one distressing Boy Toys sign, asked the manager to remove it, and have also gone to Woodwards which they found "completely unobjectionable."

Now their attention is focused on Eaton's which still has two large hanging signs directing shoppers to boys and girls toys sections.

Store manager Reg Hind said he would meet the woman at any time but couldn't really understand their complaint.

"The toys are segregated in classification for customer convenience only," he said.

"We don't consider it discrimination — it's just set out that way to help the customer make his or her selection."

'Collision Course . . .'

OTTAWA (UPI) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey Monday accused labor unions of being on an unpatriotic collision course with society similar to that which he said wrecked the British economy.

Mackasey told a Rotary Club meeting, "The union member today is fighting the ordinary citizen, he's fighting the nation to which he owes allegiance.

"It's no longer a labor-management conflict where management loses when labor wins, it's a labor-nation conflict with the public interest at stake," Mackasey said.

"No doubt each union sees itself as fighting against an employer. The plain truth is that they are fighting against society.

"We've a new economic principle: You can get blood from a stone."

Mackasey said a major cause of the new problem was that service industries which produce no real goods now are the salary trend setters, leading to production industry settlements not justified by productivity increases.

"Thirty years ago, when I was a union shop steward, a labor leader felt honored to be called a labor statesman. Today, there's nothing he resents more. It implies that he puts the public interest ahead of his union. Concern for public interest is a liability today; it's liable to make a labor statesman an elder statesman."

Troops Seize Lisbon Bases

LISBON (AP) — Leftist troops seized four air force bases around Lisbon early today in what appeared to be a concerted rebellion against moderate civil and military leaders.

There also were unconfirmed reports that soldiers of a light artillery regiment stationed at Beirolas, in the Lisbon area, had begun handing out arms to civilian leftists.

A communique from the general staff of the armed forces said dissident paratroopers first took over an air base at Tancos near their own base, 35 miles up the Tagus River from Lisbon.

An air force officer said leftist troops then occupied the Monte Real air base 60 miles north of the capital, the Montijo base just across the Tagus River from Lisbon and the Monsanto base in Lisbon, which is the air force's regional headquarters and communication centre.

The government radio said there had been no fighting at any of the bases.

The general staff communique said the seizures of the bases were carried out by "victims of criminal manipulation." It said units defending the bases had been ordered not to fire on the attackers in order to avoid "a grave situation."

"The situation is not yet perfectly clear," the statement added.

It said the rebels had acted "under the pretext of a struggle against" the commander of the air force, Gen. Jose Morais e Silva, "who could not be manipulated politically."

The communique was sent urgently to the state radio chain with an order that it should be broadcast immediately "to inform the Portuguese people of the situation."

The assaults were reported to have been carried out just before dawn by former members of a recently disbanded paratroop regiment and leftist elements in the air force. The air force has often been described by Communists and other leftwing groups as "reactionary."

Socred Running Mates Split

ting Lau adrift as a running mate.

"You can take out of it what you wish but that is not what I'm saying," Capozzi said when asked if he was disassociating himself from Lau.

Lau said in an interview Monday he accepts Capozzi's statement and said it will have no bearing on his campaign.

"I never had any intention whatsoever of withdrawing as a candidate," said Lau.

Lau, who had been actively seeking the Social Credit nomination in Vancouver Centre for several months before the Dec. 11 election was called, has been subject to public ridicule concerning charges he bought his nomination by stacking the convention with his supporters.

Hi knowledge of provincial politics were questioned after he appeared on an open-line radio program, where he made several statements that Social Credit officials said indicated he didn't even understand the party policies.

Capozzi said the only reason he decided to run a campaign separate from Lau was because of this public discussion about Lau.

"In recent days there has been concern expressed by many people on the radio, in the newspaper and directly to me regarding the nominations in Vancouver centre," said Capozzi, former Social Credit MLA for the riding.

"I know of nothing specifically to warrant this and I do not wish to challenge the nominating procedure, but in view of the doubts which have been raised in the minds of certain votes, I believe they should be free to make a decision based on their own judgement and not influenced by the support or link of one candidate to another."

Jack Boreham, president of the Vancouver Centre Social Credit constituency, said he resigned as campaign co-ordinator for the riding because of Lau's nomination.

Boreham said the constituency offices have "been inundated with calls from as far away as the north" from people expressing concern over Lau.

"He (Lau) may well be a man of good will," Boreham said. "But what he has done in public hasn't demonstrated a knowledge of the politics of British Columbia and for that matter a knowledge of the politics of the Social Credit party.

"As association president I'd love us to have both seats. "But as an individual I'm not sure Lau has the capacity to handle the responsibility."

POSTAL WORKERS

Kinsella said six of the remaining seven entered a parking lot while the seventh kept walking along Hamilton Street.

Kinsella said when his group entered the parking lot they noticed a large group of people, not wearing picket signs, coming in behind them.

"One of the people behind us yelled 'hey, scab' and they grabbed one of us," Kinsella said.

"We started to run but I fell down and one of them started to kick me in the face. Another joined in, then one of us came back to help and two people jumped him," Kinsella said.

"We both got away and three of us ran up to Richards and into a nigh club for protection."

Kinsella said police were called, but offered no help other than to advise them to lay charges in the morning if they could identify their assailants.

"This is not about money and I've got nothing against the union — they've been real good to me," Kinsella said.

"What we want is a secret ballot on the federal government offer — we feel that is our right," he said.

Thirteen British Columbia post offices were open for business Monday as workers continued to trickle back to work.

A post office spokesman said 89 full-time and 33 part-time employees showed up for work, out of a total of 3,000 CUPW workers in the province.

Fully operational offices were: Burns Lake, Courtenay, Duncan, Chilliwack, Oliver, Summerland, Kamloops, Hope, 100 Mile House, Salmon Arm, Terrace, Vanderhoof and Williams Lake.

Services Slated For Mariner

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. on Wednesday in McCall's Funeral Chapel, 1400 Vancouver, for one of the Victoria waterfront's most respected mariners.

Dr. Andrew Mowatt will officiate at the service for Capt. Wilfred Davenport, better known as Capt. "Brick" for the color of his skin, tanned and weathered in 50 years of seafaring.

Davenport, 70, died Saturday at his home at 109 Wildwood. He is survived by his wife Kathleen; five nephews, a niece and several cousins.

After a long career in the merchant navy, Davenport commanded five ships as an officer in the Royal Canadian Navy in the Second World War. One was the frigate HMCS Denver. Davenport was in charge of the largest trans-Atlantic convoy of the awr — 157 ships. None was lost.

He spent the last 16 years of seafaring as a pilot with the B.C. Pilotage, retiring in 1970.

In retirement, Davenport kept hp his interest in maritime affairs, being active with the B.C. Maritime Museum. He also used his expertise to warn about the threat of pollution from mammoth oil tankers and increasing marine traffic off the west coast.

CALIF. BLAZES

roared down the mountains out of the Angeles National Forest and into the outskirts of Glendale and the suburbs of the eastern San Fernando Valley.

"It looks like an amoeba spreading out in all directions," said U.S. forest service spokesman Jim Unterwegner. The blaze leaped from ridge to ridge on an irregular front about 15 miles long and 5 miles deep.

A second major fire was raging out of control only 20 miles to the east and has scorched 12,000 acres in the Mount Baldy winter recreation area.

People were evacuated from about 100 homes in the foothill city of Claremont, plus 40 to 50 resort cabins in San Dimas Canyon along the fire's southwest frontier.

A Forest Service spokesman said the blazes "are probably going to stay out of control until we get a little help from the weather." Almost no rain has fallen here in the past six months. Four smaller blazes burned in Ventura County to the north.

It was the worst outbreak since the Malibu fire of 1970 burned through 31,000 acres of one of the most expensive residential districts in the world, destroying 184 homes and doing more than $40 million damage.

the weather

A weather disturbance developing in the Gulf of Alaska brought rain and gale force winds to the north coast this morning. The system is expected to track southeastward along the coast bringing rain and gale force winds to the south coast by evening. Snow from the system will reach into the southwestern interior. A cooler drier offshore circulation behind the system wil bring clearing conditions to the north coast overnight. However, cloud and rain from the next system will again invade the north coast Wednesday evening.

Recognition Urged for Bikeways

Recognition of bikeways at all four levels of government was recommended Monday by a technical workshop studying planning and legal aspects of bicycle routes in the Capital Regional District.

Bikeway committee chairman Al Le Fevre said there are aspects of planning, implementing and controlling bicycle paths which involve the municipalities, the regional district, the province and federal government.

The planning and legal committee's first recommendation, he told a public meeting at University of Victoria, is to municipalities to adopt the first model bike route in the region, linking UVic with the View Street parking building in downtown Victoria.

Tentatively, this would follow View Street, Vancouver and Pembroke streets to Royal Jubilee Hospital area, then to Dean Avenue, Camosun College campus and the Henderson Road or Mt. Tolmie area to UVic campus.

Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich are involved in the route and have approved the plan in principle.

The public meeting was attended by about 30 people who were shown slides and a film on bikeways elsewhere. Capital region planning assistant Bon Van Hardenburg said there are 100,000 bikes in the region, providing enjoyable exercise, no pollution and problem free parking.

The proposed bikeway is expected to be ready next spring, marked by green signs and white road markings where possible.

SURINAM NEWEST NATION

PARAMARIBO (Reuter) — Surinam became the world's newest independent state today, ending 325 years of Dutch colonial rule. With fireworks and cheers the Dutch flag was lowered for the last time and the new Surinam tricolor with a central golden star rose in its place.

The celebrations that greeted the transition of this 54,000-square-mile territory on the northeastern tip of South America contrasted with fears, quelled only a week ago, that the independence celebrations might be marred by violence and bloodshed between politically-opposed racial groups.

About 20,000 people from Surinam have fled to The Netherlands in recent months to ensure themselves Dutch citizenship and escape possible civil strife.

Pickles Memorial Mulled

Tribute for his years of service to Central Saanich was paid to the late Sydney Pickles by members of council Monday night.

A minute's silence was observed for the man who led secession of Ward 6 from Saanich and subsequently became the first reeve of the municipality in 1951.

Mayor Jean Butler said later some form of lasting memorial is being considered.

The funeral service will be held at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in McCall Bros. Chapel, Johnson at Vancouver.

Revered John Dangerfield will officiate.

Esquimalt Eyes Conversions

Esquimalt's planning, zoning and housing committee Monday proposed a house conversion scheme for that municipality.

Esquimalt residents wanting to convert their homes to rental suites can do it for less if council goes along with the recommendation that the municipality's multiple dwelling zoned areas be termed designated areas to enable homeowners to qualify for conversion loans from the provincial housing department.

Under the B.C. program, homeowners who want to convert parts of their homes to rental suites are eligible for loans of up to $12,000 for the first suite plus $6,000 for each additional new unit at eight per cent on a first mortgage and nine per cent on a second one repaid over 20 years.

Municipal engineer M. H. Campbell told the committee that he didn't expect too many requests for application for conversion but he said the council's action would "give people a break."

In other business, the planning committee recommended that money be set aside in the 1976 budget for a general revision of the zoning bylaws although the exact amount, believed to be mostly for legal fees, was not yet known.

The committee also recommended that council request its fledging advisory planning commission to study possible zoning designations for national defence department and Yarrows Shipyards properties in the event that either party should abandon its holdings.

Esquimalt public works committee went along with a recommendation from Campbell that council purchase a $745 container loader for the municipality's new $38,000 garbage truck to be delivered next month.

The committee also recommended the purchase of 10 garbage containers at $600 each for the municipality's own use and for Esquimalt schools.

Campbell didn't rule out the possibility that the municipality might go into the container disposal business at apartments, and eventually commercial buildings, within the municipality.

Penthouse Backs Sellers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The publishers of Penthouse said Monday they are prepared to defend any retailers or wholesalers arrested in Canada for selling or distributing the magazine.

Police in Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal, have been seizing copies of the December issue of Penthouse, which they say contains "obscene" material.

Officials at the New York-based Penthouse International, publishers of Penthouse, said in a statement they "support the material published in the magazine."

A spokesman for the magazine said the Canadian police action "constituted censorship that is immoral, ineffective and self-defeating.

"... as a result of the action by the Canadian police, the sale of Penthouse in Canada has escalated to the extent that copies were being sold at a premium."

ROME (Reuter) — A strike by airline workers brought most of Italy's airports to a standstill Monday and the state airline Alitalia cancelled nearly all its flights into and out of the country.

CHALLENGE MET

A theft in Victoria on the weekend had police wondering whether it was the challenge that attracted the thief. Police said Monday someone climbed about 150 feet up a construction crane to steal a walkie talkie from its cab at a Wharf and Broughton construction site.

Security Cheques At Post Offices

Victoria residents who normally receive U.S. social security cheques can pick them up at city postal stations this week.

A Victoria post office spokesman said the cheques will be distributed to the postal stations on the basis of the postal code and will be available from 1 to 5 p.m. today and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Recipients must show identification to pick up their cheques and only in cases of extreme emergency can the cheques be picked up by a person other than the recipient.

Recipients whose postal codes begin with the prefixes V8X, V8Y, V8Z, V9B, V9C and V9E should pick up their cheques at Postal Station A, 3449 Saanich Road.

Postal Station B, 1625 Fort Street, will have cheques for people who's postal code begins with V8R and V8S.

Depot C, 2655 Douglas, will have cheques for postal code prefixes V8H and V8P. Cheques with the prefixes V8T, V8V, V8W and V9A will be available in Room 203 of the main post office, 1230 Government Street.

Any cheque recipient who is unsure of their postal code should phone the post office at 388-3141.

Poisoning Probe In Girl's Death

The death of a 14-year-old Victoria girl in her home last week has sparked an investigation into possible poisoning.

Tests have been ordered in the Vancouver police laboratory after the death last week, police said Monday. They said there was no suspicion of foul play.

She had recently suffered neck pains and was scheduled to see a doctor this week.

But Thursday morning, she lay down in a bedroom of the 600-block Manchester home, and when her brother and sister went to wake her they could not. She was dead on arrival at hospital.

The tests will check the neck ailment and possible bronchial congestion as well as routine checks for drug or alcohol use.

The Hedge Against Excess

So intense are Social Credit and the New Democratic Party on winning this election neither sees the image they present to the public. Premier Dave Barrett complains to his cabinet of being unable to sustain an issue before the public eye — a remark overheard by reporters last weekend. Rather than berate loyal followers he should question his own ethics in bribing the electorate with its own money. Two hundred and ninety million dollars have been promised for Can Cel. Massive northern railway expansion in co-operation with the federal government and even pensions for housewives are being discussed. It all adds up to a smart piece of change for a government that will have to strive mightily to balance its budget if re-elected.

And then of course there is the greatest striver of them all: Bill Bennett. It is almost as if Socreds stumble at every turn. In the game of political one upmanship it looked as though Bennett had scored points by announcing northern railway expansion plans before the government. Then the unsolved manner in which the Socreds acquired the material came back to haunt them before their smiles had dissolved. Add to that the disaster of Vancouver Socred candidate Alan Lau who packed his nominating meeting with elderly people, and the party of business looks like monkey business incorporated. Nor can we forget the rebuke delivered to Bennett by former B.C. appeal court Judge T. G. Norris who chaired the provincial redistribution commission. He said Bennett was "totally irresponsible" to claim the premier only called an election after the government had viewed the completed report. The document, according to Norris, was not even finished until three days after the election was called.

It's a sad picture of chickens flapping and scrambling to get out of the pit. Neither of the two major parties was prepared for this election. Nor have the two largest polictical roosters found a real issue more than half way through the campaign. The premier pleaded he needed a mandate to fight inflation That's like endorsing the concept of the family. Social Credit's soul issue — protestations notwithstanding — appears to be that the government is socialistic and therefore should be discarded.

As ever, we have two totally committed antagonists who use slogans and jingoism where common sense should prevail. Bludgeons and bayonets rather than diplomacy and discernment.

It's an old story in B.C. and one that should dictate more seats for the Liberals and Conservatives, if only to give the legislature a much needed perspective, no matter who wins the current joust. The voters should not fall into the trap so carefully laid by the behemoths, to wit, that any middle of the road vote is a wasted vote. The Liberals and the Conservatives don't have all the answers, as shown by their political strength in B.C. But the more persons of different persuasions watching each other in the legislature, the more checks and balances the voter has in case of excess by the party which governs this province after Dec. 11.

Convention Centre

Does Victoria need — or want — a convention centre? Although such a project is far from even the preliminary stages (there is at present only a move among downtown business leaders to increase the city business tax to help finance such a centre), the basic question deserves a thorough airing.

The capital region already has fairly extensive facilities for conventions, although some of them are none too conveniently located. Various halls and arenas can seat up to several thousand persons, but these are sometimes miles from the hotel and motel accommodation required to house and feed convention delegates.

Still some groups, notably religious organizations, manage the logistical feat of organizing conventions for large groups in such scattered facilities. Legitimately, one can ask whether those now plumping for a convention centre have looked closely enough at what Victoria has now, whether a central co-ordinating body might be the answer.

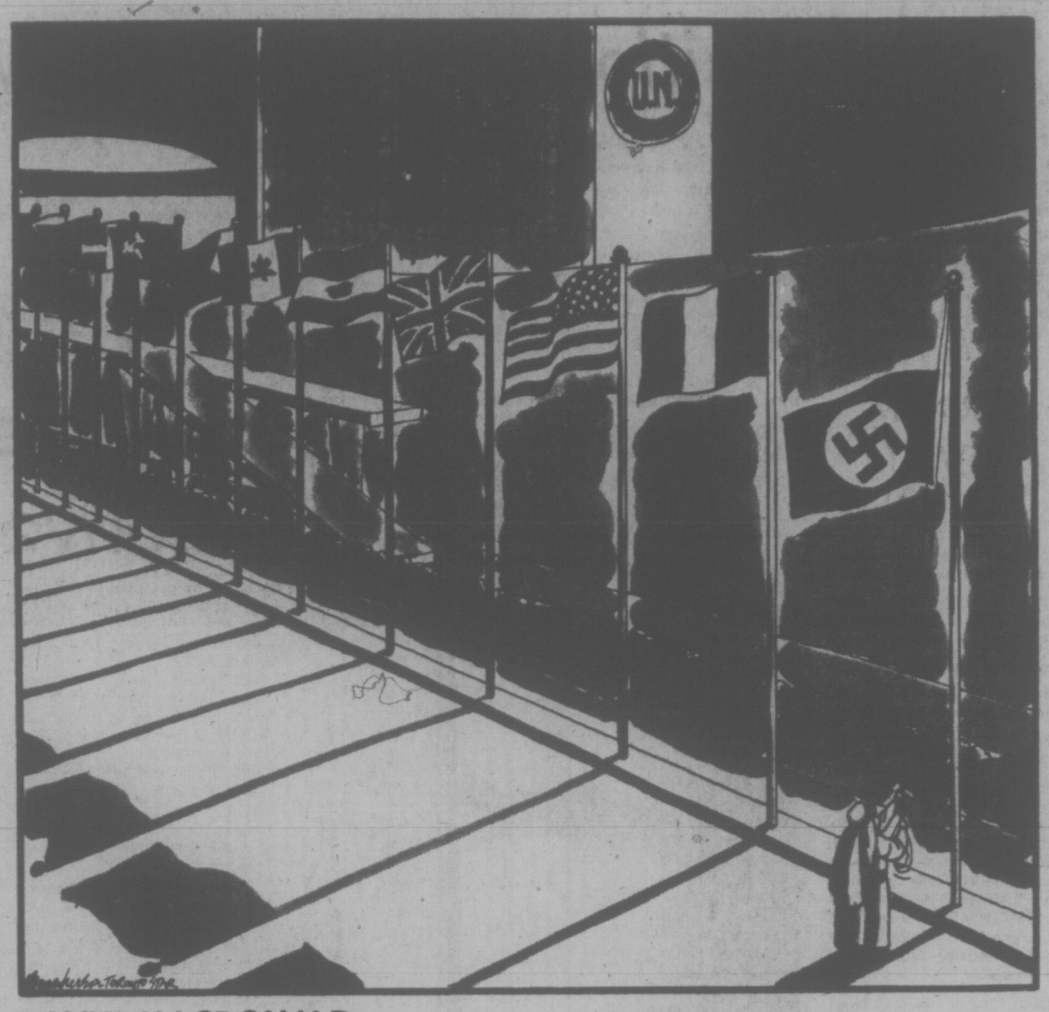
Recent experience of Calgary and Winnipeg, where large civic centres have opened, show there is a danger of their becoming disused, expensive white elephants.

A convention centre capable of handling 1,500 to 2,500 delegates at a time — the figures mentioned by a committee working to win acceptance of a higher business tax — might cost $10 or 20 million, if an entirely new structure is built. Downtown businessmen might explore a compromise, a sort of decentralized arrangement which would require the co-operation of the city of Victoria and the provincial government.

The province has previously explored plans for some sort of conference centre in the capital, where government officials and civil servants could meet as the federal - provincial conference seems to be a semi-permanent feature of the Canadian scene.

The city has plans to restore the old Crystal Gardens, and the core municipalities also have the Royal theatre on their hands. Couldn't a convention centre-cum-centre for the performing arts be built around these two institutions, which are scant blocks apart in the downtown area?

Restoration could be fitted in with expansion — as the McPherson theatre was tastefully fitted in with the modern lines of Centennial Square — and redevelopment of the area between the two old structures, much of it now parking lots and an ugly bus depot. The two old red brick buillings served a purpose in the past. They may also have a bright new future.



DAVID MACDONALD

Afrikaners Aren't Believed

LONDON — Dispelling suspicion about South Africa's motives in pursuing detente with Black Africa is a hard job, even for a foreign minister.

Hilgard Muller, foreign minister of South Africa since 1964, found it very heavy weather when he addressed a major foreign affairs forum, a joint meeting of the Royal African Society and the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

He argued that the policy, begun a year ago, of increasing contacts with black African states, preparing Southwest Africa's native people for self-determination and helping to create a constitutional settlement in Rhodesia was showing positive results.

Scrupulously Correct?

But when he said that during this time "we have maintained our scrupulously correct stance of non-interference with regard to developments in Mozambique and Angola," there were loud expressions of disbelief from the audience.

And he was closely questioned on press reports of South African involvement in the Angola fighting in terms that showed his denials were not believed.

British newspapers have been referring in recent days to what The Times last week called "a mysterious armored column of white troops" advancing on the Angolan capital of Luanda, now held by the Soviet-supplied Marxist independence movement called MPLA.

"There are no South African forces in Angola other than those guarding a border hydroelectric scheme," said Muller in answer to questions.

South African aircraft operating in Angola were there only to ferry refugees out to Johannesburg, he added.

The hydroelectric scheme he referred to is the Cunene joint venture established by the former Portuguese administration and South Africa.

Costing $685 million (Canadian), it consists of two dams in Angola near the frontier with Southwest Africa at Ruacana Falls and is designed to provide electricity to Angola and Southwest Africa and to provide irrigation water to Southwest Africa through a system of canals.

JOHN VORSTER
. . . South Africa's prime minister

South African regular forces were guarding "the workers, equipment and installations" during the current civil unrest. But he dismissed allegations of regular troops taking part on the side of the non-Marxist FNLA and UNITA movements as "Soviet propaganda."

Muller argued that any policy other than detente would bring violence in southern Africa, which would lead to "unmitigated disaster for all the people of the sub-continent.

"The economic and social fabric of all the countries involved would be destroyed. Southern Africa could be devastated and only the jackals, of both animal and human varieties, would prosper."

He said that despite the failure of the Victoria Falls talks on Rhodesia's future, "The point that will go down in history is that for the first time black and white southern Africans openly came together to encourage the solution of a common problem by political means."

Censorship of News

In Southwest Africa, his government was dealing with "the genuine leaders" who had been "democratically elected" and this did not include the Southwest Africa Peoples' Organization.

Pulled back to the Angola question again, he said the reason his government had invoked the Defence Act to impose censorship in the South African press concerning any mentions of the "mysterious armored column" was that such reports were speculative and publication "couldn't serve any purpose except upsetting people unnecessarily."

Questioned on the rights of detained black political leaders he said: "There are no political prisoners in South Africa and everyone in prison is awaiting trial or has been convicted for criminal acts."

Question of Basic Freedoms

OTTAWA — The bitter passions that exist between Zionism and the Arab states and organizations of the Middle East are raising issues of freedom of speech and, equally important, of the right to listen in this country.

The same passions are also affecting this country's view of the United Nations, and ourre lations with the world organization that has been the centrepiece of Canadian foreign policy since its formation after the Second World War.

It seems to me that those of us who have no direct connection with the hatreds of the Middle East, who are neither supporters of Zionism nor enemies of that extremely powerful movement, have need to insist upon some basic principles and approaches.

● It is not the prerogative of any group, no matter how powerful, no matter how strong the emotions it can arouse, to dictate to Canadians what they may hear or to whom they may listen.

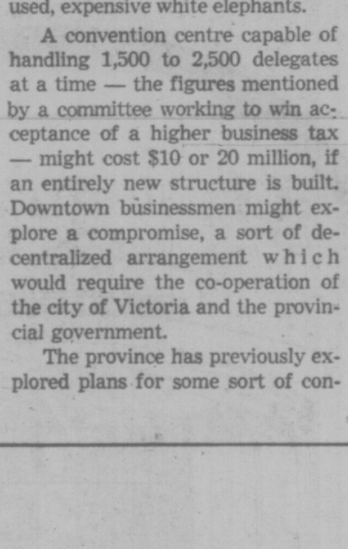
City Was Wrong

Freedom of speech, freedom to discuss, is a far greater Canadian interest than whatever sympathies may exist for far-away causes.

● This country's foreign policy, in all its ramifications, must be conceived and conduct only Canada's interests, not those of any foreign state or any external movement, and this obviously must dominate its approach to the United Nations.

When Shafik Al-Hout of the Palestine Liberation Organization spoke here in the capital the other night he did so, as many others have also done, in an auditorium in the Ottawa public library. Mayor Lorry Greenberg attempted to deny him that facility but was unsuccessful. That evening city council voted eight to five in favor of a motion expressing "strong disapproval" of the library board's decision to allow the Voice of Women to use the library for the meeting at which Shafik Al-Hout spoke.

Greenberg's sympathies are obvious, understandable and entitled to respect. But the mayor of Ottawa is not entitled to dictate, or attempt to dictate, to anyone else what they may hear or to whom they may listen and that is, of course, what he attempted. Nor is his council elected to support him in any attempt of this sort.



PLO POSTER
. . . freedom of speech at stake

Freedom of speech, freedom to listen and freedom to discuss are far more important values to Canada than Mayor Greenberg's emotions on an issue of exceptional importance to him. Those basic principles are equally of greater importance to the Canadian people than any person's views on Zionism, on the rights or faults of the Palestinians or any other aspect of Middle East antagonisms.

Zionism has gained enormous support, much of it from outside the Jewish community as well as from inside it. It is an extremely powerful movement, able to make itself felt in the domestic affairs of many countries. It is also a controversial movement. Many of the actions that have flowed from its existence are controversial in the extreme. Canadians should always repect any attempt to stifle discussion of controversies, to dictate to whom they may listen, to dictate what they may safely say.

Can't Duck This

The successful attempt to prevent Shafik Al-Hout from speaking in Toronto after his Ottawa appearance is as unattractive as any other attempt to suppress freedom of speech, to dictate who may be heard, to control the right of others to decide for themselves whom they will hear. It is in precisely the same category as the attempts a few years back, some of them successful, by extreme left-wing student groups to suppress the right of conservatives to speak out. Anyone who attempts to prevent discussion of issues should always be viewed with suspicion and the precedents he seeks to set should be rejected.

Earlier this year, the government badly mishandled the problems that arose over a long-standing invitation to the United Nations to hold a conference on crime in Toronto. The federal government gave way to pressure and, in effect, ducked the issue.

The government of Canada obviously is entitled to decide for itself what international meetings, if any, it wants held in this country but it has some obligation to do its deciding a little more smoothly than it did over the crime conference.

OAPO History

The Old Age Pensioners' Organization is one which dates back to 1932 when it was instituted under file number 2515 of the Societies Act and incorporated in 1937. The organization was formed not of elderly people necessarily, but of concerned persons of all ages who had become aware of the plight of many elderly men and women who through no fault of their own, found themselves adrift upon society without sufficient funds to care for themselves adequately. These were difficult times for many and there were those who died of malnutrition and even exposure before these conditions penetrated the senses of others in better circumstances.

A group of men including professionals and business people recognized a great need for some kind of security guarantees for those who had no savings having been in a position where it was impossible to save for the future. This group formed the first Old Age Pensioners' Organization and in due course approached the government of the time with a request that a pension be instituted for penniless persons of 70 years and over, the age when most of them retired from active labour. After much debate a pension of $20 per month was provided, but only after a "means test" which was bitterly resented by most applicants. Though a mere pittance, it was considered an adequate sum for the times and did help considerably in many cases, but it soon became apparent that amount must be raised and some years later this was done, and the means test was abolished too. A turning point was reached.

Because of the perseverence and insistence of the Old Age Pensioners' Organization, other benefits came into being, and today senior citizens enjoy a better life. Governments have been made aware of the physical, medical and social needs of the elderly, and today from the age of 65 on, they enjoy such benefits as pharmacare, a pension supplement for those on fixed incomes, extended care hospitals services, and some low cost housing. The Old Age Pensioners' Organization is still working to increase these and other benefits, also to lowering the pensionable age to 60 years.

There are approximately 230,000 pensioners in British Columbia; there are approximately 16,000 members of the O.A.P.O. Many more are needed to carry on the work and to add their voices to those who have dedicated their lives to the service of others. There is power in numbers, so take up the challenge that is offered in increased basic security pension, the lowering of age limit from what it is now and the increase of other benefits.

While the Old Age Pensioners' Organization is made up of people on pension and others who are younger but interested, it is an organization for pensioners. It is to be hoped that many people realizing that their pensionable years are not far off will join and work for what will be theirs in the near future. There is much to be done. You need the O.A.P.O. It needs your membership. Join us! — Edith Smith, Branch 25, O.A.P.O., Sidney.

UNICEF Cards

At this year's particular Christmas season, on behalf of the Victoria UNICEF Committee we wish to thank the Victoria public, and the news media, for their continued support of UNICEF and our UNICEF greeting card campaign. UNICEF cards, with the present mail situation, are naturally severely affected across Canada, which in turn affects the millions of needy children of the world. We therefore are very appreciative of the sympathetic response the people of Greater Victoria are giving to our card campaign, despite this trying period.

As regards enquiries, we are receiving concerning UNICEF donations. Donations are being accepted at the main card outlet at the "Y", 880 Courtney Street, and three other outlets — Victoria public library on Yates, the Saanich-Victoria library branch behind Town and Country shopping centre and at the Oak Bay Magnet Shop, care of Miss Lim 2244 Oak Bay Avenue. For further information please call 383-6332 or 592-2868. A warm thank you from all our Victoria UNICEF volunteers.—Constance Butler Victoria UNICEF Chairman, S. A. Héron, Greeting Card Chairman.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 25, 1915

Driven before a violent southeast gale, the Chilean three-masted full-rigged ship Carelmapu fetched up on a treacherous reef just outside Schooner Cove on the west coast of Vancouver Island, about 13 miles northwest of Ucluelet this afternoon. Within three hours the staunch iron hull had been battered beneath the surface of the water by the giant breakers and the master, officers and seamen believed to number about 25 were swept into eternity. The vessel was bound from Chilean ports to Puget Sound.

Soviet Union 'Gives Up' on Europe's Communists

By DAVID K. SHIPLER

MOSCOW — Communist pluralism in Europe is alive and well, much to the discomfort of Moscow. After months of futile efforts to arrange a congress of European Communist parties that would read China out of the world Communist movement, the Soviets have evidently given up and are now ready to settle for a conference with little substance.

Western diplomats who watch such affairs believe that the struggle over the Congress, whose date has not been set, underscores the long-standing difficulty that Moscow has faced in shaping a common position and a common ideology among Communists in both Eastern and Western Europe.

In many respects, Eastern Europe is more Western than Russian, more deeply rooted in Western culture than in Soviet. In much of the "Soviet bloc," visitors encounter strong anti-Soviet attitudes. In some countries, consumer goods are more plentiful, night life livelier and dissent more open than in the Soviet Union.

In Poland, the most Western of the East European states, 85 per cent of the farmland is privately owned. In Hungary, free-market forces operate amid Socialism; in Rumania, there is an Embassy of Israel, representing a diplomatic gesture completely anathema to Moscow.

The diversity and independence does not go too far, however. The Soviets have 31 army divisions in Eastern Europe, and the memory of Czechoslovakia in 1968 is still fresh. Even a few weeks ago, in writing a new friendship treaty with East Germany, the Kremlin included what some diplomats interpreted as a reaffirmation of the so-called "Brezhnev Doctrine," the selfassumed Soviet right to intervene to maintain Kremlin-approved governments in Eastern Europe.

Furthermore, most Eastern European countries are bound to the Soviet Union by some intricate economic ties that assure long-term dependency.

The Soviets sell oil and other resources to Eastern Europe at prices considerably below the world market, for example, a bargain that no national leadership in its right mind would refuse these days. Even though the Soviet oil price was doubled last spring, from about $3 to $6 a barrel, it remains just over half the world market price, and Moscow allows the East Europeans to buy it, up to a certain amount, without having to pay hard Western currency.

Brezhnev with d'Estaing in Moscow . . . the welcome was cool

Beyond this, a number of East European states have been linking themselves inextricably with the Soviet Union's future. Poland, Hungary, East Germany, Rumania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia have given machinery and equipment for the construction of Soviet factories, pipelines and other enterprises. In return, Moscow has promised them long-term rights to buy the products cheaply.

Five East European states put up to 40 per cent of the cost of a cellulose plant being built in Siberia. Each country is guaranteed 50,000 tons of cellulose for the first 12 years after the factory goes into operation. Similar arrangements have been made with a gas pipeline. "They provide the pipe and they get the gas," one Western economist explained.

Economics notwithstanding, there is deviation from the Soviet line. Generally speaking, East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia can be counted on by Moscow to support the Kremlin position on most matters of foreign policy.

But Rumania and Yugoslavia are more independent, especially on the sensitive question of China. Rumania openly encourages exchanges with the Chinese, and neither the Rumanians nor the Yugoslavs support Soviet efforts to declare Maoism anti-Marxist.

If this was one original objective of a European Communist party congress, as Western analysts believe, the Soviets appear to have abandoned it.

But Moscow still seems intent on using a conference to portray the Soviet Union as the flagship of the Communist movement, even without negative references to China. Recent ideological articles in Soviet journals and newspapers have applied the experience of the Bolshevik Revolution to modern class struggle and have drawn from the 1905 Revolution the lesson of the labor strike as a proletarian weapon of revolution tried and proved in 1917.

Some of this is apparently less a set of instructions than an effort to get the message across to other Communist parties that Moscow still regards itself as the origin of valid ideology, that the softline, compromising policies of some parties, such as the Italian, are unacceptable.

The Italian and Spanish Communist parties value their independence from Moscow and the Kremlin's attacks on the Portuguese Socialist reportedly annoyed the Italian and Spanish Communists, who have cooperated with Socialists.

Among the Communist parties in Western Europe, the French have been perhaps the strongest supporters of Moscow, which is probably an important reason that Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev arranged a slightly cool reception for French President Valery Giscard D'Estaing during his mid-October visit.

At the same time, the Soviets seem to be averse to any Communist-led disorders in France or other major industrial countries. The Kremlin is still highly interested in the dimension of detente that brings the technical advantages of trade with the West.

So, in a sense, the maneuvering and the debate taking place now is more theological than practical. If they hold the congress, the Eureopean Communist parties are likely to come up with an anodyne document that does not make the West European parties any less revisionist, but instead sketches a thin consensus within which all the diverse factions can feel somewhat comfortable.

U.S. Must Share Blame for U.N. Vote

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

The United Nations General Assembly deserves every bit of the outrage aroused by its resolution terming Zionism "a form of racism." Fear and anger are appropriate reactions.

Plain old anti-Semitism in the world is one reason for passage of the resolution, and it is necessary to face up to that grisly fact. Averting one's eyes from the incitement of hatred against the Jews — pretending that it is a passing phenomenon in some other place — was tried in the 1930s.

★

Nor is it possible to take much comfort from the fact that the General Assembly has long since lost its right to be treated seriously as a maker of moral statements to the world. Whatever its foolishness, the resolution will almost certainly be used as the basis for new discriminations against Jews (who will be called "Zionists") in the Soviet Union and elsewhere.

But it is not enough for Americans to be angry at the United Nations. It is certainly not enough to nod in agreement at preachments by such well-known exemplars of moral sensitivity as Gerald Ford and Jacob Javits. For the unhappy truth is that this country has a share of responsibility for the disaster.

A generation ago the United States was in a position to talk of moral standards in world affairs. There was, for example, a strong idealistic element in America's support for the creation of Israel and in our effective leadership of the United Nations to that end. In those days there was an extraordinary respect, around the world, for American idealism.

That hold on the world's imagination — that unique form of leadership — has been lost by our own actions. Successive governments of the United States put aside ethical considerations as amateur stuff and went in for the cynical use of power. If we make short-term interest our guide, with power as the only limit, how can we object to the Arabs or anyone else doing the same thing?

A super power that drops 500,000 tons of bombs on Cambodia is in rather a doubtful position to lecture others on morality. So is a secretary of state who asserts the right to upset the constitutional government of a friendly country by covert means.

The funny thing about all the hard-nosed "realism" practiced by Henry Kissinger and others is that it evidently does not gain votes for our side when we want to make a stand on principle. The torturers whom Kissinger and the CIA helped to power in Chile, and are helping to keep in power now, did not vote with us in the General Assembly. Chile abstained.

★

A particularly grotesque example is provided by Burundi. When the Burundi government engaged in mass tribal slaughter of a truly genocidal character, the United States government declined to take any disapproving action — apparently because of American economic interests there. But even in tiny Burundi such a policy earned no return favors in the United Nations. Burundi voted for the resolution.

A word has to be said, too, about Israel's responsibility. While it is true that declared opposition to "Zionism" often cloaks anti-Semitism, it is also true that Israel's policy made it easier for the Arabs to push through an extremist resolution.

Israel has persistently refused to make a real commitment to return the Arab territories won in the 1967 war. Her policy instead has been to rely on American support and huge amounts of American arms, playing for time on the ultimate territorial issues — time that I think is making it progressively harder for Israel, not easier.

There is every reason for Israel to have survival as its first national thought — and second, and third. But it does not follow that the correct policy is to take a diplomatic line so hard that moderate Arabs are given no encouragement and extremism thrives.

As for the United States, the temptation it must avoid now is to luxuriate in self-righteousness. To respond in kind to the opportunists and tyrants who pushed this resolution through — to boycott the United Nations or punish it financially — would be unhelpful. That is the Soviet way: When the game goes wrong, pick up your marbles. The United States should show that it is bigger than that, and more patient in the cause of freedom.

If we believe in freedom, then we should be prepared to go on arguing the case for it, with other free countries, in what remains for all its distortions the most complete international forum.

Some day, too, an American government will understand again that cynical manipulation does not work for this country in foreign policy — that our strength lies in our ideals.

Wasting Vintage Talent

By SIMON L. ECKSTEIN

(Eckstein is rabbi of Congregation Beth Shalom in Ottawa, a member of the city's council on aging, and chairman of the Canadian Jewish Congress Committee on aging. He wrote this for the Ottawa Citizen.)

One of the blessings of modern medicine is longevity. Our aging population is increasing to the point where people over 65 are no longer the rarities they were a century ago.

Yet longevity is not an unmixed blessing. Science and medicine have created another of their customary paradoxes: they have added years to our life, but not life to our years.

In a word, the modern world has conferred more years on its citizens, but has found their minds and bodies superfluous. And here lies the tragic irony and the cruel paradox of longevity.

One of the worst problems facing older people is the health problem. There is the anguish of old age, of senility and of chronic illnesses. Science, despite its new study of geriatrics and diseases of the aged, has not yet solved that thorny issue of health for the elders of the land.

★ ★ ★

The older citizen has domestic difficulties and socio-psychological traumas as well: How to carry on after losing one's mate? Where to live? With children? With which children? In an institution? How to find companionship in suburbia where older folks are few and far between? How to overcome the sense of loneliness and ennui; of futility and boredom?

No job. No creative activity. No raison d-etre. Children squabbling over their filial duties. Unwanted. In the way. A burden to others. Unable to care for oneself.

There is yet another shame attendant upon old age, at least in Canada and the United States. Youth depreciates old age: young people pooh-pooh the wisdom and ability of the hoary heads. The problem is compounded by the Canadian mentality. Ours is a youthful civilization; it reveres youth, it worships adolescence, it is child-centred.

We seem to have a morbid fear of aging, of maturing, of developing a grey hair. Beauty parlors do booming business on men and women in a feverish attempt to obliterate all shades of grey, wrinkles, furrows and other telltale signs of advancing years.

Our dread of facing old age has destroyed our will to prepare for it. Psychology teaches us the principle of "repression." Man represses painful thoughts and experiences into his unconscious; he refuses to face reality and seeks to gloss over the unpleasant. But he has not true rest or peace of mind; the repressed unpleasantness of life haunts him, pains him and disturbs him.

So, too, we Canadians seek to repress our concern over aging — but to no avail. The idea bothers us, haunts us, pains us. And worse: it paralyzes our desire to prepare for aging.

We have no appreciation of what it means to be retired; we do not develop hobbies; we waste our precious leisure. Psychologically, we are completely unequipped for retirement and old age. Is it any surprise that so many older folks deteriorate mentally and physically when the cocoon of retirement and leisure envelops them?

There is still another pathetic result of our "cult of youth". Because we worship youth, we waste maturity. We refuse to employ older workers and middle-aged executives. We impose foolish retirement ages in the army, in universities, in corporations and in industries. We seem to believe that at 60 a man is useless, a dried-out lemon to be discarded out-of-hand. As a result, we are shamefully wasting brains and talent.

SHAW . . . writing at 90

Walter Reuther once described old age as a time when we are "too old to work and too young to die," but this is simply not true. Many studies have found that men and women can be creative and productive in their 60s and 70s.

James P. Mitchell, secretary of labor in the Eisenhower administration, issued a report demonstrating that older workers can produce just as well as younger ones, and that they are just as reliable and just as ambitious. Secretary Mitchell concluded that "ability is ageless."

★ ★ ★

How true! And how necessary it is for Canadians to end age discrimination, which is every bit as vicious and immoral as racial and religious discrimination! Age should not be a major criterion for employment.

How many people have created great things in their advanced years! Adenauer, Churchill, de Gaulle and Ben Gurion led their countries at an age when most men are dead and buried. George Bernard Shaw was still writing in his 90s, while Verdi created his Otello and Falstaff at the ages of 74 and 80 respectively. Toscanini was conducting in his 80s, and Grandma Moses became a painter when most are retired. Pope John XXIII ascended the Vatican throne in his 78th year and became the most dynamic pontiff in centuries.

In sum, then, there are those who are old and uncreative at 35, and others who are fresh and creative in their 70s. As Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes put it: "To be 70 years young is sometimes more cheerful and hopeful than to be 40 years old."

It is time for Canadians to understand that old age is not a curse, not a misfortune, not a disease. It is time to revise our entire outlook on the meaning of the golden years.

When you've got a great idea, two things happen...

1. The public responds enthusiastically.
2. The competition tries to copy the idea.

Hundreds of Victorians took advantage of our Prime 55 plan within the first few days it was offered. And it keeps on growing.

Because public acceptance is the measure of an innovative idea. So is imitation. Which they say is the sincerest form of flattery.

Well, we're flattered. But we invite you to compare Prime 55 with the plans other financial institutions offer people 55 and over.

Compare the 10 5/8% interest rates we give on Guaranteed Investment Certificates.

Time Pleads for Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Combining bitter words for the government with promises to become at least 50 per cent different from its U.S. parent, Time magazine appealed to the Commons broadcasting committee Monday for another year to continue its fight for survival in Canada.

In a 2½-hour appearance before the largely unsympathetic committee, Time Canada President Stephen LaRue accused the government of using tax legislation to deny the magazine "a fair chance" to continue operations.

He urged the committee to support a one-year delay in the Jan. 1, 1976, implementation date of legislation stripping advertisers in Time, Reader's Digest and several smaller foreign publications of the right to claim 100 per cent income tax deductions for advertising costs.

During that period Time would try to clarify the steps it must take to qualify for Canadian tax status and would act to transform the U.S.-owned magazine into a Canadian-owned and controlled publication, he said.

He accused Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner and Revenue Minister Bud Cullen of using unfair tactics to head off any attempts by Time to qualify as Canadian owned under the legislation and continue benefitting from the advertiser tax deductions.

The appeal won little support from the Liberal-dominated committee which received the tax legislation last week after it was given second reading in the Commons under government-imposed closure.

DIGEST HEARS DEATH KNELL

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation barring tax deductions for the cost of advertising n foreign-owned magazines eventually will destroy the domestic magazine industry, Reader's Digest president Paul Zimmerman of Montreal told the Commons broadcasting committee today.

Zimmerman said the legislation is the result of a "a flowing tide of extreme nationalism" and will only detract from the over-all financial stability of magazine publishing in the country.

He said the U.S.-owned Reader's Digest, with 1.5 million monthly subscribers to English and French-language domestic editions cannot meet tough editorial content requirements accompanying the legislation and is wary of a 75-per-cent Canadian ownership requirement.

National Speed Cut Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The provinces will be asked at a federal-provincial conference here next month to cut maximum speed limits to 55 miles an hour.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie told the Commons Monday he will press for the change at a meeting of provincial energy ministers Dec. 12.

"It is probably the most important single move that can be taken to drive home the importance of energy conservation," he said during the day-long Commons debate.

British Columbia has a 55-mile-an-hour limit and Nova Scotia is in the process of adopting the same. Ontario plans to reduce its maximum speed to 60 Jan. 1.

Gillespie said he shares the concerns of those who worry that Canadians are wasting energy.

He estimated that it would cost $110 billion in the next decade to meet the demand for energy. This would include new pipelines, oil sands extraction plants, electrical generating stations, power lines, oil wells, and other projects.

This works out to an average of $20,000 for every Canadian family, he said.

If the annual growth rate in energy consumption could be slowed by 20 per cent until 1985 and by 40 per cent from then until 2000, it would "save the equivalent to the output in 15 syncrude oil sands plants," he said. Each plant costs about $2 billion to build.

CEMA DEFENDS EGG PRICE HIKE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency has promised to voluntarily follow provisions of the anti-inflation program.

The pledge is contained in a letter defending a recent one-cent-a-dozen rise in egg prices that was delivered Monday to the anti-inflation board chairman, Jean-Luc Pepin.

Copies of the letter, signed by CEMA general manager M. M. Roytenberg, were made public. It says the letter is in answer to a board request. Last Wednesday , the anti-inflation board vice-chairman, Beryl Plumptre, said the price rise appeared unjustified and said she would demand a public accounting. She said egg prices should have declined because chicken feed prices were dropping.

Roytenberg says that on Oct. 15 the weighted average cost of producing a dozen Grade A large eggs stood at 69.9 cents according to CEMA's monitoring of costs, but producers were getting only 69 cents a dozen.

He said CEMA would have been justified in authorizing a one-cent-a-dozen price rise then. But it held off because feed prices were declining.

"A decision was delayed to permit further verification with the source of feed prices, the Canadian Livestock Feed Board."

Roytenberg says CEMA found by Oct. 23 that there had been a change upward in feed prices in a major province, which was not identified.

"With this, and an additional week's data on feed prices, an increase in the producer base price in line with costs was recommended and processed effective Nov. 10," the letter says.

PLO Threat Angers MP

OTTAWA (FP) — The Canadian government was called on in the Commons Monday to publicly reject the "threats" by Shakik Al-Hout vice chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization delegation.

Miss Flora MacDonald (PC —Kingston and the Islands) urged the government to take note of Al-Hout's "attempt at blackmail" when he spoke to a Toronto Arab meeting. She said he had warned that the PLO will make sure that world-wide pressure is applied to Canada if it bars any member of the PLO from attending the United National Human Settlements conference next year in Vancouver.

The opposition member addressed her question to Immigration Minister Robert Andras. She appealed to him to exercise his power to refuse a ministerial permit to any member of the PLO who violates Canada's immigration laws or regulations.

Andras said such permits are only issued to those who do not come within the category of "terrorist."

Miss MacDonald tried to introduce a motion that the house instruct the minister responsible to inform the UN secretary-general that while Canada is committed to accept a delegation from the PLO to the conference on human settlements, it reserved the right as a sovereign state to reject any individual who violates our immigration laws and regulations. However she did not get the required unanimous consent to present the motion.

Olympic Ticket Draw Delayed

MONTREAL (CP) — The drawing of tickets for the opening and closing ceremonies of the Summer Olympics will be postponed until early next year unless Canada's postal strike ends soon, an Olympic official said Monday.

"If the strike goeson for another week or so we will have to postpone the deadline until after Christmas," Kenneth Farmer, director-general of spectator services, said in an interview.

The organizers want to ensure that special postcards used for the draw would not be caught in a flood of Christmas mail if the strike ended in the holiday runup.

The strike also has caused problems for the Quebec Lodging Bureau, which is preparing accommodation for two million expected visitors during the two-week Olympic period.

The bureau has opened an office at Rouses Point, N.Y., to receive mail and is also receiving accommodation request by telephone, Telex and TWX.

A deadline for an Oct. 31 ticket draw was lifted after the strike began Oct. 21. Up to that date, 170,000 entries had already been received for the 20,000 seats allocated to Canadians for the opening and closing ceremonies in the 70,000-seat Olympic stadium now being constructed.

Secret Car Warranties Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Monday his department is inquiring into secret auto warranties offered by major manufacturers.

He said a special working group has been created in the department to look into consumer complaints about the warranties.

Ouellet was replying in the Commons to John Rodriguez (NDP—Nickel Belt) who said manufacturers are "dragging their feet" in answering complaints about the warranties applied to rust damage to models from 1969-73.

The Automobile Protection Association (APA) is making representations on behalf of consumers in relation to the warranties Ouellet added.

Documents revealed several months ago showed that Ford Motor Co. paid for some or all of the costs of repairing certain models which corroded easily.

However, not all owners of the cars were notified that the warranties were available and only those people who complained most persistently were able to benefit from the warranties.

GASOLINE COST UNDER FIRE

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday that the British Columbia Energy Commission has found that people in the Fort Nelson area are paying 10 cents a gallon too much for their gasoline.

"What we find are excessive costs to the consumer which cannot be permitted particularly when all efforts are being made to turn back the waves of inflation," he said.

Macdonald said the commission survey of gasoline prices in the area was requested by Fort Nelson Mayor Andrew Shuck and the report will be made available to the oil industry and dealers in the Peace River area.

Unless the industry moves to correct the situation "in the interests of the consuming public . . . the energy commission should be asked to take the steps needed itself," he said.

The attorney-general said the oil companies with access to rail transport from the refinery at Taylor are building higher truck freight charges into their cost to the service stations.

"I see no justification at all for oil companies charging the truck rate when the gas comes by rail," Macdonald said. "Competition is dead in Fort Nelson."

In addition, he added, the high costs of gasoline in the Fort Nelson area — about 98 cents for a gallon for regular — include dealer markups which are the highest in the province. Regular gasoline costs about 74 cents a gallon in the Victoria area.

He said the markups are about 20 cents a gallon whereas the provincial average, "except for Golden which we are also looking at — is in the range of 11 cents to 13 cents."

CANVASSERS WIN ACCESS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Landlords and apartment managers must allow political canvassers access to their buildings, Rentalsman Barrie Clark said Monday.

Clark said his office has received complaints that some canvassers for political parties were being denied access to voters.

This was in contravention of the landlord and tenant act and conviction of the offence could carry a maximum fine of six months and a $500 fine, he added.

New Price Clamps Pledged by Barrett

By The Canadian Press

The public is finally seriously examining its political leaders and their philosophies, Premier Barrett said Monday in Castlegar.

Barrett also said that if food prices soar after the current provincial freeze is lifted Jan. 1, and if the NDP is re-elected, it will "move in again" to control prices on food and essential commodities.

Before setting out for Castlegar, Barrett held a news conference in New Westminster and said his government has strengthened religious freedom on several fronts since 1972.

He said several recommendations of a committee to investigate provincial government assistance to private and religious schools will be enacted during the next session of the legislature if the NDP is returned.

Barrett said the Social Credit party still represents downtown Vancouver business and Opposition leader Bill Bennett is asking the voter to elect "the same old gang."

The three other provincial parties all have the support of various big businesses, he said, citing Imperial Oil Ltd.'s annual $234,000 contribution to political campaigns as an example.

Barrett said the NDP has not received a penny from Imperial Oil, and reading from a statement by the company, quoted "Imperial does not support political philosophies that would be detrimental to the company."

The NDP has been the only government with the courage to fight multi-national oil companies, the premier said.

If Social Credit is elected they will continue to give away B.C.'s resources to companies such as Imperial he said.

"We never sell off our resources again for our children's sake and our children's children's sake," Barrett said.

Social Credit leader Bill Bennett was in Port Alberni, where he told a cheering crowd of 1,200 a Social Credit government will return a healthy economy and opportunity to the province.

Bennett also said he would not abolish the B.C. Land Commission, but have it "work closer with the regional districts and appeal procedures will be set up."

Earlier in Vancouver, Bennett said the government's Collective Bargaining Continuation Act, which returned 54,000 workers to their jobs in four sectors of the economy in October, did not go far enough.

He said he hopes that labor-management negotiations "not continue to be part of the political spectrum," but refused to specify how a Social Credit government would diffuse the volatile labor situation in B.C.

"We'll move slowly and carefully and try to build up the confidence of both sides," he said.

Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace, in North Vancouver said the two main issues in the election are integrity and choice.

He said integrity became an issue when Mr. Bennett read a confidential NDP document apparently taken from the briefcase of a government consultant.

The document was used in "the cheapest political way by a leader who then has the gall to ask for a judicial inquiry."

"If that is the standard of integrity we see from the leader of the opposition then I shudder to see his integrity if he becomes premier of the province," said Wallace.

Brian Calder, former Vancouver alderman and conservative candidate in North Vancouver-Seymour, said the Conservatives would act as the conscience of whoever is in power because neither side will carry out all of their election promises.

Cards Chafe Socreds

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Social Credit party Monday was chasing provincial secretary Ernie Hall over what it calls the confusion precipitated by Premier Barrett's snap election call for Dec. 11.

Party president Peter Hyndman said that he had sent a telegram to Hall, asking how the usual voter card — required by Section 85 of the Provincial Elections Act — will be delivered to eligible registered voters.

"People usually rely upon this as confirmation that they are on the (voters) list and (for information) as to the location of their poll," Hyndman said.

Nominations

The following candidates were nominated Monday for the Dec. 11 British Columbia general election: (X-member of last legislature).

CONSERVATIVE: Vancouver South — Peter Westlake, Clare Walker; Vancouver — Little Mountain — Ric Burgoyne.

LIBERAL: Coquitlam — Tom Osborne.

TELEX FURORE BORES PREMIER

CASTLEGAR (CP) — Premier Barrett said Monday that he is bored with the subject of the controversial rail Telex, a situation which he described as a "tempest in a teapot."

Barrett said in an interview that the Telex was not confidential, but should not have been read in public by Social Credit leader Bill Bennett.

The eight-page Telex, delivered to the Social Credit party by forestry consultant Kenneth Tryon in Vancouver, was an agreement between the federal and provincial governments for expansion of a railway network in northwestern British Columbia.

Bennett has called for an inquiry into the provincial government's handling of inter-government documents.

Immigrant Aid Demanded By MP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Art Lee (Lib. — Vancouver East) Monday criticized the Federal government for not helping to finance a special Vancouver school board program to teach English to immigrant children.

Lee, said that Manpower Minister Robert Andras was technically correct in refusing to share the cost of the proposed program because education is under provincial jurisdiction.

He said, however, that he found Andras' stance "incomprehensible in light of the fact that the municipal governments cannot adequately financially support the programs necessary to carry on language training for immigrant children."

Lee said that although the provincial government believed the problem of educating immigrant children was created by the federal government's immigration policy and should be federally supported, the British Columbia department of education immediately authorized additional financing on the annual basis of $800,000 and the necessary money to establish the program.

Deputy superintendent John Wormsbecker said Monday that a less comprehensive English language training program, reaching only two-thirds of the immigrant children needing help, was established with the provincial funds.

The cost of the district-wide English language training program proposed by the Vancouver school board was $1.2 million to establish it and $4.1 million annually.

$750M Demand

ROME (AP) — Delegtes to the 135-country meeting of the Food and Agriculture Organization called Monday for pledges of $750 million in food, cash or services to expand its aid program in 1977-78.

All Indicators Show Gains

Prices at Toronto continued to rise in active mid-afternoon trading with all major indicators recording gains.

Trading was delayed from opening in common and preferred A shares of Total Petroleum North America Ltd. pending an announcement. The company said Hanover Petroleum Corp. had rejected its revised terms of a merger agreement. Common shares closed Monday at $4.70 and preferred A at $10⅝.

Among industrial issues, Dome Pete gained 1¼ to $36, Walker-Gooderham A 1 to $29½, Canadian Tire A 1 to $47¼, IBM 1 to $225 and Jannock Corp. A ½ to $11½.

Interprovincial Steel and Pipe fell ⅝ to $12⅜, Aquitaine of Canada ½ to $20¼, Cominco ¼ to $35½, and Massey-Ferguson ⅛ to $20.

New York

The market posted a broad gain at New York, buoyed by signs of possible new steps to avert a New York City default.

Analysts said the market appeared to be acting on the belief that a new $200-million package of taxes the New York State Legislature is set to impose on the city will be helpful in prying loose federal aid to prevent a city default.

Presidential press secretary Ron Nessen said the White House had no comment on the city Tuesday, but said Ford would be reviewing the situation sometime later in the week.

Some Tuesday's stock buying activity was technical, analysts said, following a four-day, 15.90-point slide that ended Monday, when the Dow gained 4.88.

Zenith Radio was the most-active NYSE issue, down ½ to $24⅝, including a 179,200-share block trade at $24¼.

Wallace Murray gained ⅝ to $10. The company declared a 15 cents a share extra dividend and increased its quarterly dividend by five cents to 20 cents a share.

Among other top gainers, Baxter Labs was up 1 to $41, U.S. Steel 1¼ to $61 and IBM 1¼ to $223½.

Montreal

Prices were higher in all sectors in moderate trading at Montreal.

Atco Industries A gained ½ to $12⅛, CP Investments ½ to $15½, IMASCO A ¼ to $27½, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ to $26⅝ and Hudson's Bay Co. ⅛ to $15½, while Bank of Montreal lost ¼ to $16½, Noranda A ¼ to $32¼ and MasseyFerguson ⅛ to $20.

London

Stock prices were fractionally lower in quiet trading at London.

Bank shares retreated while gold stocks recorded modest gains.

Canadian issues moved moderately higher in slow trading.

Realtors' Assets Up 36%

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Assets of Canada's major real estate developers increased $1.4 billion to $5.3 billion in the past fiscal year, an increase of 36 per cent, according to the 1975 report of the Canadian Institute of Public Real Estate Companies.

Net income for the group totalled $84 million in the latest fiscal year reported, up 12 per cent from 1974.

The figures consolidate the holdings of 22 members plus 10 associate and affiliate companies.

The bulk of the assets are held by 13 of the companies, including Marathon Realty, an associate member, and Royal Trust, an affiliated members.

The latter two companies lead the list.

Total assets of Marathon Realty, a subsidiary of the CPR, are not made public. The holdings are merged with those of Canadian Pacific Investments. Even top officers of Marathon claim not to know what the company is worth.

However, it is known that Marathon spent $49 million to buy properties in the past fiscal year and has spent a total of $224 million on real estate. Its current value is many times that amount.

Total assets of CPI are listed at $2.9 billion, up almost $1 billion in the past year.

Royal Trust reports $3 billion in current assets including $2 billion in mortgages. It is administering a total of $13.6 billion in assets to make it the largest trust company in Canada. It is very active in real estate development.

The other major development companies, with assets in excess of $100 million, include:

Cadillac Fairview Corporation Ltd. with assets of $921 million has diverse operations in commercial, residential and community development. It has 16,000 rental apartment suites and 11 million square feet in shopping centre space. Net income for the most recent fiscal year was $3 million on revenue of $105 million.

Trizec Corporation Ltd. with assets of $857 million owns shopping centres, office buildings, hotels and retirement lodges. Net income in the most recent fiscal year totalled $6 million on revenue of $142 million.

Campeau Corporation with assets of $442.5 million owns 2.9 million square feet of office space, 1,941 hotel rooms, 4.1 million square feet of retail space, 3,000 residential units and 10,000 acres of land for development. Net income was $5.4 million on revenue of $44 million.

Abbey Glen Property Corporation with assets of $388.5 million has properties in Montreal, Toronto, Calgary, Edmonton and Miami. It reports net income of $9.3 million on revenue of $17.8 million and sales of $72 million.

Oxford Development Group Ltd. with assets of $330 million has concentrated on development of office complexes but its acquisition of Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd. brings the company into the field of shopping centres. All financial data for the year ended March 31 includes a proportionate interest in Cambridge, although the purchase was not completed until May 15. Total net income was $2.8 million on revenue of $28 million and sales of $1.5 million.

S. B. McLaughlin Associates Ltd. with assets of $227 million is mainly in land development. Its major project is a 3,000-acre parcel in Mississauga, west of Toronto, being developed as a commercial-industrial-residential complex. The 250-acre Mississauga City Centre has four office buildings and a shopping centre. McLaughlin reports net income of $2.2 million on sales of $18.7 million and revenue of $8.5 mililllion.

Daon Development with assets of $185 million is active in real estate development in Vancouver, Calgary and Edmonton. The company assembles land for building lots for resale, builds houses and condominiums for resale and obtains commercial and residential properties for rental income. The company reports net income of $3 million on sales of $59 million and revenue of $3.8 million.

MEPC Canadian Properties Ltd. with assets of $178 million has 10 branch offices in Canada. It had net income of $5.2 million on revenue of $21 million in the fiscal year most recently reported.

INTERIM REPORT

Lornex Mining Corporation Ltd.

INTERIM REPORT TO THE SHAREHOLDERS Nine months ended September 30, 1975

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS:

Net earnings for the first nine months of 1975 were $667,000 compared with $23,105,000 for the same period in 1974. The comparative earnings per share of common stock were $0.08 and $2.81 respectively.

As noted in the 1974 annual report the company incurred a small loss in the fourth quarter of 1974 due to depressed copper prices and increased provisions for taxes; of the 1974 earnings of $22,681,000 over 90% was recorded in the first half of the year. In contrast earnings have remained at a very low level throughout all of 1975 to date.

The sharp decrease in net earnings in 1975 is due to substantially lower copper prices combined with reduced copper production. Copper prices were unusually high during the first half of 1974 with the peak being reached in April and May of that year. Prices for the last quarter of 1974 were at a low level and declined to a slightly lower level for the nine months ended September 30, 1975.

World-wide demand for copper has been severely depressed since mid-1974 and the Japanese smelting and refining industry in particular has had serious economic difficulties. As a result, the Japanese companies to whom Lornex concentrates are normally sold, have not taken delivery of copper from Lornex at the rate at which it is being produced. Production levels at the Lornex mine have accordingly been reduced in the first nine months of 1975 and it is expected that the reduced level will continue for the balance of the year; a three week shutdown of operations in August for holidays was part of the action taken to reduce tonnage milled and copper produced. Despite the reduced level of operations total operating costs remained at almost the same level in 1975 as in 1974, primarily due to escalation of unit costs.

The comparative milling, metallurgical and production data for the first nine months of each year is as follows:

	1975	1974
Tons of ore milled (thousands)	9,158	12,217
Average tons milled per operating day	36,929	44,750
Average mill head grade
—copper	0.498%	0.441%
—molybdenum	0.016%	0.017%
Average mill recovery
—copper	87.2%	88.5%
—molybdenum	74.4%	75.4%
Pounds of payable metal in concentrate produced (thousands)
—copper	76,793	92,095
—molybdenum	2,218	3,111
Ounces of silver produced (thousands)	286	344
Ounces of gold produced	212	334

Under an agreement dated as of December 1, 1969, and entered into between Lornex and a consortium of Japanese companies the entire copper concentrate production from the two existing Lornex mill lines was contracted for by such companies until December 31, 1984. On October 8, 1975, the Japanese buyers and Lornex agreed to amend the Japanese Sales Contract to provide for the delivery by Lornex of fixed amounts of copper concentrates in each of the years 1976 through 1979 and for Lornex to have the right to sell elsewhere in each of the said years copper concentrates expected to be produced in excess of such fixed amounts and from inventories that have been accumulated.

Under an agreement dated as of May 1, 1975, a United States company contracted to purchase from Lornex in 1975 and 1976 fixed amounts of copper concentrates. The greater portion of these amounts consists of inventories previously accumulated by Lornex and not taken by the Japanese buyers. Under an option obtained from the said company, and exercised by Lornex, Lornex will also deliver quantities of copper concentrates to the United States purchaser during 1977, 1978 and 1979, in addition to the quantities which are to be delivered to the Japanese buyers in those years.

It is expected that the foregoing contractual arrangements will permit the reduction of the accumulated inventory of copper concentrates to more normal levels and an increase in annual production in 1976 with a further increase in 1977.

On October 8, 1975, the Japanese buyers and Lornex also agreed that Lornex would grant financial relief to the Japanese buyers on a short term basis by way of certain temporary upward adjustments in the refining charge to be deducted from the selling price with respect to shipments made from May 1, 1975 through March 31, 1977. The parties also agreed to negotiate in good faith during January, 1977, taking into consideration their respective positions at the time, such terms and conditions as may be appropriate after March 31, 1977, when the temporary adjustments expire.

Under the agreement dated as of May 1, 1975, the price for copper sold to the United States purchaser is related to the international price level during the third month following the month of receipt of the concentrates by the purchaser. The smelting and refining charges to be deducted in arriving at the realized price of the copper sold to the United States purchaser will be approximately equivalent to the then current international level of such charges.

During the nine months ended September 30, 1975, 18.1 million payable pounds of copper in concentrates were delivered to the United States purchaser in addition to five deliveries of copper in concentrates to the Japanese companies containing 62.7 million payable pounds of copper. Production of copper in concentrates was 76.8 million payable pounds for the nine month period and inventory of copper in concentrates at September 30, 1975 was 40.3 million payable pounds compared to 44.3 million payable pounds at December 31, 1974.

Capital expenditures for the development and construction of the Lornex mine and mill facilities to the production stage were $144 million. Further capital expenditures totalled $9.4 million to September 30, 1975. These amounts were principally for additional trucks and a shovel for mining operations, tailings system revisions, employee housing and normal equipment replacements. Capital expenditures required in the five years 1976 through 1980 are currently estimated to be approximately $46 million in 1975 dollars, of which $19.5 million has been approved for expenditure. Capital expenditures are required for normal replacement of open pit equipment, additional open pit equipment and support facilities changes to achieve planned production levels, construction of tailings dams, possible additional housing and other expenditures which are expected to be made relating to the improvement of operating efficiency and reliability.

A repayment of $1.5 million was made to the Japanese on the 8¾% Notes in August, 1975 reducing the outstanding balance to $15.4 million as at September 30, 1975. A further repayment of $4.4 million was made on November 17, 1975.

Rio Algom Limited, the owner of 59.85% of the common shares of Lornex, has announced its intention to make a cash offer to purchase at the price of $8.00 per share (Canadian funds) all of the outstanding common shares of Lornex Mining Corporation Ltd. not now owned by Rio Algom. The offer expires on December 31, 1975 unless extended. Arrangements have been made to distribute the offering material to most registered Lornex shareholders as soon as possible by courier and to make it available to the other Lornex shareholders at specified branches of Canada Permanent Trust Company or the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. Registered shareholders of Lornex not receiving the offering material by courier will be advised by telegram as to the branch of Canada Permanent Trust Company or the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce where it will be available to them. Additional copies of the offer will also be available at all offices (except real estate offices) of Canada Permanent Trust Company.

In view of the aforementioned offer by Rio Algom and since Rio Algom supervises and manages the business of the Company the financial results of Lornex for the nine months ended September 30, 1975 have been audited by the Company's auditors, Coopers & Lybrand, Chartered Accountants.

The Grey Cup: Levy Picks Wrong Options

The weekend in review, or the sub-title to the Grey Cup story for 1975 should read: "Thank You, Mr. Levy."

For even the most diehard Edmonton supporter must admit that if the Montreal coach hadn't made two controversial decisions, both of which backfired, the Eskimos today might not be the football champions of Canada. As it was, witnessed on the wide screen, the pride of the West, the Eskimos, nudged the defending champion Alouettes 9-8 in what wasn't exactly a thriller. But back to Mr. Levy and how he blew it.

Because twice when discretion, and even common sense, appeared to dictate otherwise, Levy went for the down instead of the points.

The first crucial play came early in the third quarter. With Montreal leading 7-3 and with the ball on the Edmonton four and goal to go, Levy elected to have superstar Johnny Rodgers go for the TD when a field goal would have put the Als ahead 10-3. Rodgers bobbled the ball, recovered, but was stopped short of his target.

The Esks took over and were forced to punt. Again Rodgers fumbled. This time Tyrone Walls pounced on the loose ball and the Eskimos suddenly were out of trouble, had good field position, and most important, the ball!

If that was a gift, the Eskimos were quick to accept it. And before the third quarter was history, Dave Cutler connected for two field goals, his second and third of the game and the Eskimos were on top 9-7.

★ ★ ★

Then, in the fourth quarter, with the ball on the Edmonton 42, one yard to go, a stiff breeze at the Alouettes back it seemed Levy had two options open: One, to go for a field goal from Don Sweet, who already had hit from the 47; or two, let punter Sonny Wade, who had been kicking a ton, loft the ball into the end zone for a single or, failing that, put the Esks deep in their own territory with that stiff breeze against them. Either was logical.

But Mr. Levy had other ideas. If the Als hadn't made the first gamble, perhaps they could make the second, he reasoned. And so they went for broke and fullback Steve Ferrughelli didn't make the necessary yard. The Eskimos had been reprieved a second time for which they eternally should be thankful and are today.

Later, it's true, the Als did come close to winning when quarterback Sonny Wade moved the Alouettes from their own 22 to Edmonton's 11 in just four plays. But then came one of the inexplicable quirks of football. The Als came up with either a bad snap, or sloppy ball-handling, or a combination of both, and when Sweet attempted to put the winning points on the board, he was wide, the ball never being put down properly.

The single point only left the Alouettes close, at 9-8, and thinking of what might have been had they taken the simple three points earlier in the third quarter. And thus the score remained.

★ ★ ★

If otherwise to some the game may have been considered from dullville because no touchdowns were scored in the cup final for the first time in 38 years.

There was another talent that should be recognized. Place-kicking, and with it a Victorian.

Because of Cutler, this victory must have been a tremendous moment in his football life.

After all, since becoming an Eskimo eight years go, this Victoria school teacher has just been getting better and better at his art, and record-breaking performances have become the habit rather than the exception. Witness the last three seasons for instance. In 1973 he had 32 field goals and 133 points. In 1974, the total was 34 field goald and 144 points; and this season he finished with the whopping total of 40 field goals and 169 points, both CFL records.

Besides he has kicked the longest field goal ever, 59 yards, the third longest, 56, and now the Grey Cup standard, 52 yards.

Last year at Vancouver he was particularly disheartened because he never got one chance to kick a field goal in the game the Eskimos lost in the rain 20-7. "We'll be back," he said grimly at the time. And back he was on Sunday. This time he got three chances and made good on all three. Significantly the last one was the record-breaker and the winner for his first Grey Cup. A fitting climax for truly a remarkable performer in a remarkable year.

CHARGING ALONG in high gear, Ronnie Coleman (47) of Houston Oilers makes gain of three yards after taking pass from quarterback Dan Pastorini (7) during first quarter of National Football League game Monday against visiting Pittsburgh Steelers. Pastorini is in process of being hauled down by Steelers' Dwight White. Pittsburgh won, 32-9.

Oilers' Armor Not Invincible

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers, sworn to "hold the rope," got unravelled Monday night under the aerial assault of pressure-proof Terry Bradshaw and Pittsburgh's Steel Curtain defence.

Bradshaw flawlessy threaded 13 of 16 passes through the porous Houston defence to lift the Steelers to a 32-9 victory in a National Football League game.

The win gives Pittsburgh a one-game lead over Cincinnati Bengals in the fight for first place in the Central Division of the American Football Conference.

Coach Chuck Noll was so impressed with his Steelers' handiwork that he pronounced them playoff ready.

"Our offence is where it was at the end of last season, moving the ball well and taking the pressure off the defence," Noll said after Bradshaw whipped the Steelers to two touchdowns in a 1:28 span of the second quarter for a commanding 15-3 halftime lead.

Despite the motto of "hold the rope" and 49,947 fans cheering them on, the Oilers wilted under the pinpoint passing of Bradshaw and the running of Franco Harris, who gained 149 yards and scored two touchdowns.

The Oilers, whose record dropped to 7-3, slipped to third place in the AFC's Central Division.

Houston took a 3-2 lead in the second quarter on a 27-yard field goal by Skip Butler but Bradshaw wiped out that advantage.

The Steelers got a safety in the first quarter when Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini was tackled in the end zone after losing the ball from a shogun formation.

Bradshaw set up the first of two touchdown runs by Harris with passes of 18 and 10 yards to Lynn Swann in the second quarter. Harris, the first runner to g ain 100 yards against Houston's defence this season, bulled four yards for a touchdown with 2:23 to go in the half for a 9-3 Steeler lead.

Cornerback J. T. Thomas returned an interception 11 yards on Houston's next series and Bradshaw again went to the air with four successive completions, the last one 18 yards to Swann for a touchdown and the 15-3 halftime lead.

Bradshaw helped set up a 30-yard field goal by Roy Gerela in the third quarter with scrambling runs and a 25-yard pass to John Stallworth. Harris and Frenchy Fuque wrapped the win with fourth quarter touchdowns, both for 13 yards.

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

EDMONTON (CP) — Crowds estimated as high as 13,000 braved freezing temperatures Monday to welcome Edmonton Eskimos as the Western Football Conference club returned home after defeating Montreal Alouettes 9-8 Sunday in Calgary to win the Grey Cup.

All the participants in the victory over Montreal were greeted at the provincial legislature and outside city hall. A parade of about 1½ miles was watched by about 5,000 spectators as the players rode in open cars under cloudy skies from the legislature to city hall. The temperature as the main celebration started was minus 4 degrees Celcius.

Most of the spectators jammed Churchill Square at the city hall to hear head coach Ray Jauch, general manager Norm Kimball and all 32 players speak briefly. About 2,000 were at the legislature and 6,000 or more at city hall, where the largest ovation went to Jauch as he stepped on stage waving the Grey Cup.

Most of the spectators were students given the afternoon off school to take in celebrating Edmonton's first Grey Cup victory since 1956.

Free bus service was provided to encourage fans to travel downtown. Extra police were on duty.

The students, unsupervised by teachers or parents, threw snowballs, climbed the large evergreen trees in the city hall square, jostled for position and climbed over a large sculpture close to the platform.

Police were forced to link hands to prevent the eager youngsters from closing in on the Eskimos, who had lost two Grey Cup finals in succession before this year. No injuries were reported in the crush.

Kimball said he would like all of Edmonton's faithful fans see the Eskimos win a Grey Cup and promised that if a roof is provided on the Commonwealth Games stadium, the Eskimos will bid to hold the 1979 Grey Cup final here.

Later, in his office, he refused to elaborate on the offer, saying the time was not right.

Jauch said Edmonton has "the greatest fans in the world." He explained the difficulty of scoring touchdowns in the frigid winds at Calgary and promised the Eskimos will not be content with just one Grey Cup.

Two injured players, halfback Roy Bell and Tyrone Walls, received big ovations. Bell, on crutches, left immediately after the welcome to have the ligaments of his injured right knee examined. Walls limped noticeably from a knee injury he did not disclose during the game.

Later, Walls said he was injured in the first few minutues of the opening quarter "but I didn't want to come out."

"You can't expect something like this on a working day," said Dave Cutler, named Canadian player of the game for his kicking, which accounted for all Edmonton's points. "It's just a sign of how much they think of us. We appreciate them, too."

Offensive lineman Larry Watkins, said the appreciation of fans is "just one of the many things we like about playing in Edmonton."

A dinner was provided by the city of Edmonton and government of Alberta for the team Monday night.

Als Receive A Welcome

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 300 die-hard supporters turned out at Dorval International Airport Monday night to greet the Alouettes as the squad returned from Calgary following their defeat at the hands of Edmonton Eskimos in Sunday's Grey Cup game.

Two young fans appeared to startle a good-humored coach Marv Levy by asking him if he expected to return as Montreal coach next season.

"Yes," said Levy to their question. Then after reflecting a moment, he added: "At least I hope I am."

Levy was the subject of rumours during Grey Cup week to the effect he would leave the Alouettes to become head coach of either New Orleans Saints or New York Jets of the National Football League.

Still Your Mark, Fritz

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fritz Hanson's Grey Cup punt-return record still stands.

Hanson returned a punt 78 yards for a touchdown in 1935 to propel the Winnipeg Rugby Football Club to an 18-12 win over Hamilton Tigers and bring the Grey Cup to Western Canada for the first time.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Sunday that Johnny Rodgers' of Montreal set a Grey Cup record by returning a punt 38 yards in the Alouettes' 9-8 loss to Edmonton Eskimos Sunday.

Namath Ready To Quit

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath is a proud man.

He is loaded.

He has people standing in line bidding for his services in television, the movies and public relations.

He has been playing football on match-stick knees with a tired, 32-year-old throwing arm this season, not because he gets $450,000 a year — the highest salary of any football player in history—but because he thought it would be fun to play with a winner one more year.

The 1975 season has been neither. It hasn't been fun. It hasn't been a winner for New York Jets. It has been a disaster.

Broadway Joe doesn't need to go down with a disaster. So, between today and sometime next summer, he will sit down with Jets' president Phil Iselin.

The odds are Joe will retire. Iselin can have his $450,000 for next year—all of it.

Joe can't afford to commit himself now. The Jets have four more games to play and he wouldn't pull the rug from under his team-mates like that.

But he does say: "There will be some heavy thinking about it—on my part and on management's part before next season."

He adds: "Anything can happen."

But there was something significant in what Namath said last summer, just prior to signing a two-year, $900,000 contract to play a couple more years with the Jets.

"There are a lot of frustrations playing with a losing team," he said over a beer at a small pub near the team's Hofstra University training quarters. "It's touch coming up with failures week in and week out, some of them my fault.

"It gets to be a drag."

Namath acknowledged at the time that the only thing that could lure him to stay in the game was the prospect of a winning team.

"I play football because I like it," he said, indicating that when it ceased to be fun he would quit.

The Jets provided that promise when they completed the 1974 season with six successive victories and whipped teams such as Washington Redskins and Minnesota Vikings in preseason games. But it hasn't been fun since.

Tough-Guy Gene Signed by Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP)—Minnesota broke precedent Monday when they went out of their own organization and signed veteran manager Gene Mauch to a three-year contract with the American League Twins.

"I felt I owed it to a person of his capabilities to give him more than a one-year contract," said Minnesota president Calvin Griffith, who signed Mauch to a contract through the 1978 season at an estimated $70,000 a year. "We wanted someone who would be tough on the players in a fundamental sense and he certainly fills the bill."

Exact terms of Mauch's contract with the Twins weren't announced, although Griffith said Montreal has paid Mauch for a year he had left remaining on his contract with the Expos of the National League.

The 50-year-old Mauch, who lives in Palm Springs, Calif., has managed 16 seasons, all in the National League.

Griffith waited eight weeks to replace Frank Quilici, who was fired as the Twins manager Sept. 28. Mauch also took several weeks to consider the original offer made by the Minnesota owner.

Merrick Traded

ST. LOUIS (CP) — St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey Leauge have acquired second-year centre Larry Patey from California Golden Seals in returen for third-year centre Wayne Merrick. The Blues also will receive the Seals' third-round choice in 1977 amateur draft.

Racquetbal Just Can't Seem to Catch on Here

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

It may be popular in most of Canada, but racquetball has failed to build a large following in Victoria.

Selected for the first time as one of 22 sports for the 1979 Canadian Games, racquetball places a distant third behind squash and badminton among Victoria's indoor racquet devotees.

Racquetball, is similar to squash but is played on a slightly larger court and with a livelier ball. It has come into popularity only in the last few years.

However, in Victoria there is a definite dearth of racquetball courts.

The YMCA has the most courts with three but all are portable for use in the gymnasium and lack a back wall, which changes the normal tactics of the game.

The University of Victoria's McKinnon Building is the only other Greater Victoria facility with a court and that one is a recently renovated squash court. But it is the only one of six in the building not employed for squash.

The Racquet Club of Victoria possesses four singles squash courts and one doubles and, according to one spokesman, plans no expansion.

Canadian Forces Base at Esquimalt has three squash courts and Shawnigan Lake has two. Neither has a racquetball court and spokesmen said no groups have requested construction of a racquetball court.

Why the failure of the sport in Victoria when it is a favorite pastime for many businessmen and students in Vancouver?

According to one squash player who wished to remain anonymous, the reason lies with the game itself—and Victoria.

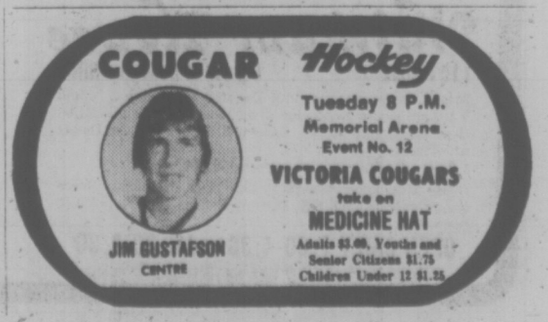
"I've played racquetball and it's a good game," he said. "But squash and handball require more conditioning and more anticipation.

"Besides, racquetball is a relative newcomer to indoor court games and it seems to take a while for new things to catch on here (in Victoria)."

In Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, the situation is the reverse of that in Victoria. Racquetball courts and tournaments abound while squash and handball events are rare.

Ontario is probably the capital of indoor court games in Canada. In Toronto, there are facilities for squash, handball and racquetball at the University of Toronto, York University, the YMCA, public recreation centres and private clubs. Many of the top handball and squash players in the country live in the city while several Torontonians provide stiff competition for the top-calibre prairie racquetball players.

With all that activity in the rest of the country, Victoria has to rate as a longshot to produce a racquetball medallist for the 1979 Canadian Games.



Cougars May Dress Will Tonight

PLANNING AHEAD are coach Margot Clerkson (foreground), captain Gail Hoskin and Michele Morrison of unbeaten Lansdowne Junior High field hockey team. District champs won 21 and tied three while out-scoring rivals 101-6 in 24 games. Team, planning a trip to England in March, is ready to launch fund-raising drive for overseas trip. Other team members include manager Ginny Johnstone, Marina Scott, Sue Carruthers, Bonnie Hutton, Diana Thornton, Heather Benson, Cathy Bryan, Rosemary Mulholland, Sandy Smith, Chris Hahn, Kim Scharf, Shaun Longmore and Elizabeth Payne. (Times photo by Irving Strickland)

It's unlikely that all the attention of Victoria Cougars' supporters will be focused on Jim Gustafson for tonight's Western Canada Hockey League game at Memorial Arena.

Some of it will probably be on 20-year-old centre Mike Will, whom general manager-coach Pat Ginnell obtained in a trade Monday with Edmonton Oil Kings.

The six-foot-two Will came to the Cougars in exchange for 20-year-old rightwinger Peter Martin and is expected to be in the Victoria lineup for tonight's contest against Medicine Hat Tigers.

Martin, who had 21 goals and 45 points last year as a rookie but only one goal and two assists this season, is expected to play for the Oil Kings tonight against Brandon Wheat Kings.

In Will, Ginnell is getting a three-year veteran who has scored 98 goals and 107 assists. His best season was two years ago when he fired 47 goals. Last season he had 36.

A native of Fernie, Will was drafted by Indianapolis

Racers of the World Hockey Association two years ago but his rights were subsequently dealt to Edmonton Oilers.

He attended the Oiler training camp this year but was sent to the Oil Kings for more seasoning. He reportedly did not want to play for his former junior team and requested to be traded.

Ginnell plans to start Will between rightwinger Curt Fraser and Al Hill, who moves from centre to left wing.

As for team captain Gustafson, he needs just one point tonight to equal the WCHL record for scoring in consecutive games. He has connected for at least one point in Cougars' first 22 games. If he picks up a point tonight, he will join Bobby Clarke and Danny Gare as co-holders of the record.

In the individual scoring race, Gustafson holds a one-point edge on Saskatoon's Bernie Federko with 22 goals and a league-leading 36 assists. Federko has a league-high 27 goals among his 57 points.

A victory tonight would boost the Cougars over the .500 mark. With a 10-10-2 won-lost-tied record, the club holds down fourth place in the Western Division.

Ginnell admits there was some inconsistency in the Cougars' play at the start of the season but that the team has "turned things around."

"I hope I'm not jumping the gun," he said Monday, "but I think things turned around for us when we beat Lethbridge 5-1 (on Nov. 11). They have been playing well since then."

"Since then" includes 8-3 and 5-3 losses to New Westminster Bruins and Saturday's 6-4 win over the Tigers.

Gustafson, however, believes the turnabout occurred in the 5-3 loss to the Bruins.

"To us, it was like a win," said Gustafson. "We out-shot Bruins by a wide margin and proved to ourselves that we have a good team. Although we lost it, Pat came around after the game and shook hands with all the players."

Available for duty will be Gerry Simpson. One of three goalies with Cougars, Simpson stalked out of a training session last Friday. Neither Simpson nor Ginnell made much fuss over the incident and the goaltender was back practising with the team Monday.

"There was nothing to it," said Ginnell. "Gerry was just down on himself."

Morgan Gains Another Honor

Times News Service

Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds has added another award to his collection.

Recently named the National League's most valuable player by a landslide margin, second baseman Morgan has been selected to The Sporting News' 1975 all-star fielding teams.

Three of Morgan's teammates — shortstop Dave Concepcion, outfielder Cesar Geronimo and catcher Johnny Bench — also won Golden Gloves.

Rounding out the National League squad are first baseman Steve Garvey of Los Angeles Dodgers, third baseman Ken Reitz of St. Louis Cardinals, outfielders Cesar Cedero of Houston Astros and Garry Maddox of Philadelphia Phillies and pitcher Andy Messersmith of Los Angeles.

Baltimore Orioles placed four players on the American League team. Brooks Robinson won at third base while Bobby Grich captured the award for second base, Mark Belanger for shortstop and Paul Blair for one outfield spot.

Others named to the squad are first baseman George Scott of Milwaukee Brewers, outfielders Joe Rudi of Oakland A's and Fred Lynn of Boston Red Sox, pitcher Jim Kaat of Chicago White Sox and catcher Thurman Munson of New York Yankees.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, American League president Lee McPhail and National League president Chub Feeney testified today as witnesses for Los Angeles Dodgers in the arbitration case involving Messersmith.

Messersmith, a hard-throwing right-hander, did not sign a contract for the 1975 season and claims he is a free agent under terms of baseball's basic agreement between players and owners. The Dodgers unilaterally renewed Messersmith's contract for last season and claim they can do it indefinitely.

Canadian Division Players Dominating

TORONTO (CP) — players on Canadian Division teams are dominating the World Hockey Association scoring race after seven weeks of the regular-season schedule.

Statistics released Monday by the league shows the top 13 playes in the scoring race are from Canadian Division teams. Six of the players are from Quebec Nordiques, three from Winnipeg Jets, two from Edmonton Oilers and one each from Toronto and Calgary.

Marc Tardiff of the Nordiques leads the pack with a league-leading 18 goals in 22 games, combined with 16 assists for 34 points.

Line-mate Chris Bordeleau, with a league-leading 27 assists, is second with 33 points, followed by yet another Nordique, Serge Barnier, with 32 points.

Joe Daley of Winnipeg has the best goals against average in the league with a 1.88 mark. He also leads the league in shutouts with four and in shut-out periods with 31.

Daley is also tops in the league in another department — goals against frequency. The Winnipeg goalie has allowed one goal for every 15.17 shots he's handled.

J. C. Tremblay, perennial all-star defenceman with Quebec, had two four-assist nights to lead the league in scoring last week with eight points.

Nanaimo Coach Fined $300

KELOWNA (CP) — Larry McNabb, coach of the Nanaimo Clippers of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League, has been fined a total of $300 for two separate incidents.

League president Bryan Couling said in a news release Monday that McNabb was fined $200 for going onto the ice to protest officiating during a game Sunday in Langley.

Langley won the game 6-5 after 48 seconds of sudden-death overtime.

Couling said that McNabb was fined an additional $100 for several published reports of remarks criticizing league referees.

Improved Defence Provides Boost for Leafs and Seals

MONTREAL (CP) — Sound goaltending and better overall defensive play have provided California Golden Seals and Toronto Maple Leafs with more respectable National Hockey League records than the two teams enjoyed in the early going of previous seasons.

The Seals, who failed to reach the playoffs for five straight years, today sport a record of eight wins, 14 losses and two ties in 24 games so far. And while they are still last in the four-team Adams division, the 18 points they have accumulated, give the Seals only one fewer than their best-ever start — in 1971-72 — when they were 8-13-3 after 25 games.

The Seals' goaltending combination of Gilles Meloche and Gary Simmons has alternated for every game so far. The combo has reduced California's goals — against by 29 — to 89 from 109 of one year ago.

Meloche has the better average, 2.92, and he has recorded the club's only shutout.

Also greatly improved is California's penalty-killing. During the 85 times the Seals have been shorthanded, they have given up 17 power-play goals. That's 11 fewer than they allowed in an identical number of short-handed situation one year ago.

Another club enjoying a brighter season is Toronto. With a 9-6-5 record after 20 games, the Leafs are off to their best start since 1961-62.

That season they were 13-6-1 in 20 games. In the same span last season Toronto won only five games, lost 11 and tied four.

Like the Seals the Leafs have trimmed 29 goals from the total allowed one year ago at this point in the schedule — 89 to 60.

The off-season acquisition of goaltender Wayne Thomas from Montreal Canadiens is one of the reasons for the improvement. Thomas was in goal for Toronto's nine wins and four of the club's five ties.

He has one shutout and a 2.60 goals-against average, despite the fact he gave up eight goals to Buffalo Sabres Oct. 12 and four in 31 minutes to the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers, Oct. 30.

But in his other 15 starts Thomas has allowed only 31 goals or slightly more than two per game.

In the individual scoring race, right winger Guy Lafleur of Montrtal leads in goals with 16 and in points with 37. Bobby Clarke, Philadelphia's all-star centre and captian, is second in the race with 36 points, followed by centre Pete Mahovlich of the Canadiens with 34.

Shmyr Leading In Plus-Minus

TORONTO (CP) — Cleveland Crusaders may be struggling to win half of their World Hockey Association games, but with defenceman Paul Shmyr on the ice they're tough to beat.

The 29-year-old defenceman has the most impressive plus-minus goals record in the league, the latest WHA statistics show.

Counting only those goals scored when both teams are at full strength, the statistics show Shmyr has been on the ice while the Crusaders have scored 23 goals and given up nine, a plus 14 record in 16 games.

More impressively, he has been on the ice for 62 per cent of Cleveland's goals and only 24 per cent of the opposition's for a league-leading plus 38 per cent record.

Last year Shmyr, who played with California Seals and Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL before switching to Cleveland, had plus records of 11 goals and nine per cent.

Two former NHL defencemen, J. C. Tremblay and Ted Green, Swedish imports Anders Hedberg, Lars-Erik Sjoberg and Ulf Nilsson and second-year defenceman Tom Edur also had outstanding records.

Tremlbay has been on the ice for 45 of the 72 goals scored by Quebec Nordiques when both teams were at full strength. He is plus 16 in goals but only plus 17 per cent.

Green, Hedberg, Sjoberg and Nilsson all have plus records of more than 20 with Winnipeg Jets with Hedberg tops at 25 plus.

Bobby Hull, last year's scoring champion, has a plus mark of only 10 goals, but the opposition has scored only twice while he was on the ice with both teams at full strength.

Edur, who joined Cleveland last year from Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series, is plus 33 in the percentage column.

On the other side of the ledger, Denver Spurs have been outscored 19-6 with left-winger Rick Morris on the ice.

Hotspur Needs Overtime

LONDON (Reuter) — Two goals in extra time gave Tottenham Hotspur a 2-0 victory over fellow Londoners West Ham United in their English Football League Cup fourth round replay Monday night.

The goals came from John Duncan and Willie Young after a scoreless deadlock at the end of the regulation 90 minutes.

Extra time failed to resolve two English Football Association Cup first round replays, with non-league clubs Bedford and Wycombe Wanderers drawing 2-2 and Third Division clubs Wrexham and Mansfield Town ending level at 1-1.

Another non-league club, Grantham, was beaten 4-1 by Port Vale of the Third Division.

George Best, former idol of Manchester United and Northern Ireland, scored two superbly-taken goals and showed several flashes of his old brilliance in his third exhibition match in two weeks.

Best, on the comeback trail after two years out of serious soccer, played for Chelsea Past, beaten 4-3 by Chelsea Present, in a benefit match for Peter Osgood.

Pair Paces Bucks' Win

Doug Richardson and George Fuller each scored twice to lead Victoria Western Homes Buckaroos to a 7-4 win over Chemainus Blues in a South Island Big Six Hockey League game Monday at Memorial Arena.

Randy Krantz, Dave Pettinger and Danny Seibel had the other goals for the winners while Peter Lemon, with two goals, Darrell Hickson and Bob Wilson were the Chemainus marksmen.

The Power and the Glory!

By AL FORREST

MacKenzie King was the best Canadian prime minister in this century and John Diefenbaker was the worst, according to political writer Peter Newman, in Victoria Monday to promote his latest book.

He said former Liberal cabinet minister Jack Pickersgill was wrong when he said here Friday Louis St. Laurent was the greatest Canadian of this century.

"In terms of prime ministers, undoubtedly MacKenzie King was the best in this century," Newman said in an interview.

"The worst in this century was John Diefenbaker. I have a lot of respect for Diefenbaker as a man but as a prime minister he was hopeless."

Both Pickersgill and Diefenbaker are rival authors.

Pickersgill has written a biography of St. Laurent while Diefenbaker has come out with volume one of his memoirs. Newman's latest book is volume one of The Canadian Establishment, the result of interviews with wealthy Canadians who hold economic power.

Newman said he was particularly pleased to see that his book is outselling the Diefenbaker memoirs so far. Two earlier Newman books were political biographies of Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson and both portraits were unflattering.

Newman said he did not attempt to pass judgment on the two prime ministers in his books simply to describe what was going on.

Similiarly, he did not attempt to judge the Canadian economic establishment in his latest book. His purpose was to describe the wealthiest and most powerful Canadians and let the readers come to their own conclusions.

While political power is decentralized in provincial capitals as well as in Ottawa, economic power is highly centralized in Toronto, Newman said.

For example, there are no members of the economic establishment in Victoria.

"There is wealth in Victoria but it is mostly retired wealth. If a person wanted to exercise economic power he would live in Toronto, not Victoria."

Newman made the comments following a lunch-hour address Monday at University of Victoria.

In his speech, Newman related anecdotes from The Canadian Establishment, a book weighing three pounds and containing 300,000 words.

He said he wrote it in six months from 4 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. daily before going to work at Maclean's magazine, where he is editor.

The big decisions in Canada are probably made in 11 hotels near the Toronto airport, Newman said.

This is where American owners come to give the word to officials of their Canadian subsidiaries. Most of these members of the American establishment arrive and leave by private jet.

The Canadian establishment tends to be more secretive about its wealth than its American counterpart. There is less ostentatious display of affluence in this country.

In addition, wealthy Canadians are less prone to take economic risks, preferring to sit on their money while cash has to be imported from the U.S. to develop the country.

This is leading to greater American control over the Canadian economy, he said.

Newman said he found wealthy Canadians stingy with both their money and time. They were careful about personal as well as corporate spending.

One wealthy Canadian sent his accountant over to check on a car wash that charged $3 after having charged only $2.50 on previous occasions.

"Men worth millions will worry about 50 cents."

By contrast, he said, some Canadian millionaires find it difficult to spend all their money, no matter how profligate they become.

One Canadian, for example, has an income of $12 million per year and he has to work hard at spending it because another $12 million is coming next year. He often finds he has money left over at the end of the year.

Status symbols are important to the corporate elite, he said.

Every one of the powerful men he interviewed has a corner office and a good view. In Vancouver, the northwest corner of the building had the highest prestige because the view was best from that point.

He said the corporate elite view things differently than other Canadians. For example, he said, most people look upon the federal wage and price guidelines as a battle against inflation. But the corporate elite looks upon the program as a declaration of war by Ottawa because the program limits profits. Any interference in business activity by Ottawa is resented by this group.

Newman said it is wrong to think of the economic establishment as being engaged in a conspiracy against the government.

"They don't need a conspiracy. They all think alike (on economic issues)."

He said as government power expands, the power of private individuals will diminish.

POLICE TALK YOUTHS OUT OF GUNS

DELTA (CP) — For the second time in three days, police Monday talked a youthful gunman into surrendering.

Police said Saturday that they convinced a 16-year-old boy into giving up a suicide attempt in a shopping centre department store.

Monday, after two hours, they convinced a 17-year-old youth armed with a .22 rifle to come out of his bedroom in the family home, police said.

During the bedroom siege, police said the youth fired one shot that shattered the ceiling light. Police said they were aided in resolving the situation by the boy's father, who was called from work when the incident began at 10 a.m.

No charges have been laid in either incident.

S. Africans Killed

Times News Services

PRETORIA — Four South African soldiers and 15 guerrillas were killed during a clash at the Angola border region during the weekend, South African defence headquarters announced today.

An official statement said the deaths occurred during a "hot-pursuit operation" against what it called terrorist forces.

It did not identify these forces but they were presumed to be from the South-West Africa People's Organization which has been launching raids into the north of South-West Africa Namibia from bases in southern Angola.

Meanwhile in Detroit, U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger issued a stern warning Monday night to the Soviet Union and Cuba to stay out of the Angolan conflict or risk straining relations with the United States.

Kissinger, speaking at a dinner gathering of the Detroit Economic Club, said a continued Soviet arms buildup in Angola would almost "inevitably threaten our relationship" with the Soviet Union and warned that Cuban activities threatened the new U.S. policy of conciliation.

"We cannot ignore the substantial Soviet build-up of weapons in Angola which has introduced great power rivalry into Africa for the first time in 15 years," Kissinger said.

"This Soviet involvement is resented by Africans most of all," he said, "but the United States cannot be indifferent while an outside power embarks upon an interventionist policy."

"Nor can we ignore the thousands of Cubans sent into (the) African conflict," he said.

"The Russians have an opportunity to restrain themselves in Angola," Kissinger added.

"But time is running out; continuation of an interventionist policy must inevitably threaten other relationships."

Kissinger also said foreign-affairs operations face disruption from continuing congressional investigations of U.S. intelligence activities. It is time, he said, "to end the self-flagellation that has done so much harm" to the U.S. ability to conduct foreign affairs.

$36 million down the drain at ICBC—so far!

Can we afford the Barrett way?

Staggering losses are piling up at ICBC. Yet you were assured by the Barrett government that first-year losses would not exceed $18.5 million. Who is paying for these losses?

The Barrett government said that money would never be taken from tax revenues to subsidize ICBC or support low premiums. It has now legislated the right to divert up to 10 cents from the price of every gallon of gas you buy. In effect, you'll be subsidizing your own premium – with dollars that could be going to new schools, hospitals, safer roads.

The issue is not low-cost auto insurance. The issue is the Barrett government's inability to manage its affairs, whether it is running a company, a welfare program or an education system.

No Approval For Saanich Housing Plan

Saanich council balked Monday at approving an 87-unit housing project, planned for the south side of McKenzie between Oakwinds and Cedar Hill Road.

The matter was tabled after residents voiced concern about the project's density, the traffic it would generate and the strain it would put on public services.

Earlier, Mayor Ed Lum had congratulated Paul Grieve of Point Properties Ltd., on his detailed presentation, which included plans and models as well as reports by architect David Warner and Bill German of Ker Priestman and Associates Ltd.

The project would be built adjacent to the site of Saanich's second branch library on the corner of McKenzie and Cedar Hill.

Grieve outlined plans for 58 apartments to be built in three-storey structures on 2.4 acres of the property, and 29 townhouses to be built on 2.2 acres.

Saanich's Advisory Planning Commission approved the project.

Grieve said he hoped the apartments would be rental. The townhouses would be strata title. They would have three bedrooms, two bathrooms and two surface parking spaces for cars. He estimated the cost of individual units as being between $48,000 and $50,000.

Some residents accused the council of being inconsistent in considering the application. They reminded aldermen that about 18 months ago it had turned down a request to build a smaller townhouse project in that area.

Grieve contended the density was in line with the official regional plan for that area. This was confirmed by municipal planner Gil Laurenson.

He agreed, however, after being questioned by Ald. Maurice Johnson, attending his first council meeting after his recent election, that council is not under any obligation to approve the rezoning. (The area is now zoned for single-family houses.)

Ald. Roy Wootten moved the matter be tabled, saying, "I feel a development of this magnitude should be determined by a full council, not just a quorum."

Ald. Bill Campbell was out-of-town and Ald. Fred Severson is sick.

At Monday's public hearing, council also voted:

—Approval of a 14,000 square foot retail and office building, to be built at 115 and 121 Burnside Road West.

—Approval of a 19-suite rental apartment at 3824 Carey Road.

—Approval of a duplex on the southeast corner of Judah and Bremerton.

—Approval of a new duplex at 4371 Shelbourne.

—Rejection of a proposal to build a duplex on a lot behind 980 McKenzie.

UN GROUP PASSES BAN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly's social committee approved a declaration Monday banning torture and calling for the criminal punishment of torturers.

It was the first such anti-torture resolution endorsed here and was proposed to the Assembly by the fifth UN congress on the prevention of crime and the treatment of offenders held in Geneva in September.

Approvel of the non-binding declaration by unanimous consent followed heated debate in the committee between the Soviet Union and Chile, which accused each other of torturing political prisoners.

The measure is subject to approval by the General Assembly, but all 143 countries represented have delegates in the social committee.

Oak Bay Hotel Plan Protested

Tenants and apartment owners in the Satellite Street area of Oak Bay today protested to council A committee a 12-room expansion of nearby Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Residents renewed a long-standing complaint of late night noise and parking problems created by patrons and hotel staff and told the committee the plan to expand facilities would aggravate the situation.

The hotel is seeking approval of a 12-room addition for guest accommodation, an elevator and space for displaying antiques for sale.

One resident asked why plans did not call for air conditioning in the hotel kitchen, from which open windows comes "an ungodly racket up to two o'clock in the morning."

Malaspina Faculty 'Angry' at Council

Discontent among faculty at Malaspina community college in Nanaimo has surfaced in a strongly-worded brief that accuses the college of swallowing government restrictions without protest.

A faculty association brief discussed at a special meeting today says the faculty is "deeply disturbed and angry" because the council "has silently accepted a provincial government decision to single out and punish one small part of the educational establishment" by inflicting 15 per cent budget restrictions on community colleges.

Presented by association president Dale Lovick, the brief says the college council has placed in jeopardy the previously cordial and cooperative working relationship between the council and faculty.

The council willingly accepted education minister Eileen Dailly's directive that there will be no leaves of absence — "a clear violation of a negotiated and legally binding contract," says the brief.

"The council seems happy to accept the so-called guidelines and has made no effort to justify or explain itself. It has allowed the minister's allegation of inflated and irresponsible financing by the council to go unchallenged and unquestioned."

"Let it be understood clearly," said Lovick, "we do not propose to continue to suffer passively the same treatment we have lately received.

The faculty has asked the council to immediately establish a budget review committee which would include members of the administration and a minimum of three members from the faculty association, as well as area chairmen.

No. 51 Nabbed

ROME (AP)—Angelina Natale, the 42-year-old wife of a prominent real estate broker was kidnapped Monday on the outskirts of Rome by four masked and armed persons, police reported. The abduction was Italy's 51st this year and came a day after Giovanni Schiaffino, 20-year-old son of a sugar industrialist, was kidnapped in downtown Genoa.

No Blame In Death Of Youths

A coroner's jury Monday attached no blame in the deaths of two Oak Bay youths, killed in a single-car accident in Saanich on Sept. 16.

The jury made no recommendation after ruling Gordon Cameron, 20, of 3699 Crestview, and Donald George Goulson 20, of 2771 Dorset, died accidentally in the 3:30 a.m. mishap.

Testimony presented during the inquest showed Goulson and Cameron had been involved in an accident earlier in the evening on the Shawnigan Lake Road and were being taken to hospital by two friends, Graeme Ashby, the driver of the car and Greg Dowell.

Goulson had injured his leg in the first accident and Cameron was hysterical and remained so during the drive into Victoria, the inquest was told.

At the intersection of Trans-Canada Highway and Douglas Street, the car went out of control, hit a concrete divider and crashed into a lamp standard and utility pole.

The jury found that while the accident was caused by excessive speed and misjudgment, Ashby was under considerable stress at the time.

Ashby, who has been charged with dangerous driving, did not testify.

Dowell said he and the other three had been celebrating his birthday at Shawnigan Lake that night. The first accident occurred as Goulson and Cameron were driving back in another car with Ashby and Dowell following in the vehicle which was later involved in the fatal accident.

Dowell told the jury that Ashby, while he had been drinking, was handling the car safely, a fact corroborated by a truck driver who said the car had passed him several minutes before the second accident.

Cut-Off Inquiry Named

The provincial cabinet has given formal approval for the appointment of three commissioners to inquire into Indian cut-off land claims.

In a cabinet order released Monday, the government authorized the appointment of Provincial Court Judge Ross Collver of Penticton, B.C., Chief Adam Eneas of Penticton and John Squire of Vancouver.

The decision to order a commission of inquiry was made earlier this year following a series of talks between the provincial government and representatives of Indian bands.

The commission will inquire into cut-off lands, the 36,000 acres of reserve land taken from 22 bands as a result of the 1913-16 federal-provincial McKenna-McBride Commission.

The commissioners will be paid "the usual remuneration and living and travel expenses," the order said.

Pay for commissioners on various boards starts at a low of $250 a day and goes as high as $) a day. Members are paid only when the commission is sitting.

LRB Rules Against B.C. Rail

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Labor Relations Board ruled Monday that British Columbia Railway erred in not calling some of its workers back to their jobs after the provincial government's back-to-work legislation was enacted.

B.C. Rail had argued that the legislation was only designated to order companies to call back its own employees who were on strike, not the employees who had been laid off because of strikes in other companies.

The United Trainmen's Union had claimed that about 60 B.C. Rail employees who were laid off because of last summer's strike in the forest industry should have been recalled when the bill was proclaimed Oct. 7.

Union spokesmen said Monday they were delighted with the board's ruling. They said it will give the workers a total of about $50,000 in back pay.

Alcan Settles Kitimat Pact

KITIMAT (CP) — The Aluminum Company of Canada signed an interim agreement Monday with the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers.

The agreement puts into effect all the non-monetary items the company and the union had successfully negotiated.

It will remain in force until the anti-inflation board rules on economic arguments the two sides are present.

The workers agreement headed off a lockout by the company against the 1,700 workers and was reached after Labor Minister William King intervened.

The company wants to adhere to the federal wage and price guidelines while the union wants more than allowable.

Bravery Medal Awarded

WINNIPEG (CP) — Abraham Benjamin Starr, 34, of the Heron Bay Indian reserve near Marathon, Ont., has been awarded the Royal Humane Society's gold medal for "the bravest deed of life-saving of the year."

Judd Buchanan, minister of Indian and Northern Affairs, recently presented the 1974 Stanhope Gold Medal to Starr, on behalf of the society.

Starr rescued two children and attempted to save a third from a burning house at Heron Bay on May 3, 1973. He entered the burning house three times to save three-year-old Rachael Fisher and her one-year-old brother Larry. He was unable to save a two-month-old baby girl.

He was selected to receive the society's highest honor from among nominees from Britain, Australia, Canada and New Zealand.

A parks Canada warden, he earlier this year was awarded the Royal Canadian Humane Society's bronze medal for bravery.

GREY CUP STREAKER CHARGED

CALGARY (CP) — A woman who was charged in connection with an incident at the Grey Cup game Sunday was remanded to December 3 when she appeared in provincial court Monday.

Police said Llarice Whitman, 35, was charged with committing an indecent act after a woman stripped to the waist and paraded on the field during opening ceremonies prior to the game.

Police remained on the sidelines as the woman ran along the ranks of officials, cheerleaders and bandsmen during the singing of O Canada.

She was taken away afterwards and kept overnight in police cells prior to her court appearance.

LOS ANGELES — Actor Tommy Rettig, who played Lassie's master in the popular 1950s television series about a boy and his dog, Monday pleaded innocent to charges of smuggling cocaine into the United States from Peru.

Rettig, now 38, was arrested last April at his home in Morro Bay, Calif., by federal narcotics agents who said he brought liquid cocaine in a liquor bottle on a commercial airline flight. Rettig, now free on bail, was ordered to stand trial Jan. 6.

PRETORIA — Poet Breyten Breytenback, a foe of South Africa's apartheid policy of racial separation, was found guilty today of conspiring to overthrow the country's white minority government.

Supreme Court Justice P. M. Cillie said he would pass sentence after hearing motions by the defence on the severity of the sentence. Breytenbach could be sentenced to death.

Breytenbach, who was arrested Aug. 25 after entering the country from self-exile in Paris, pleaded guilty.

VANCOUVER — The third son of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his wife Margaret was christened Michael Charles Emile in a Roman Catholic cathedral ceremony Saturday.

The Trudeaus attended the Grey Cup game Sunday in Calgary.

STILLWATER, Okla. — High school principal Jack Rice was not amused by a student's prank of hiring a professional pie thrower to hurl a cream pie in his face. Rice said Sunday he had suspended the student for the rest of the semester. "People think it's funny, but when incidents like this happen and authority is made a mockery of, like in recent times, the country is in a tragic state of affairs," Rice said.

TOWN TALK

The environment committee of the Victoria Labor Council planned an Environment Day seminar recently, but the turnout was less than spectacular.

Scotty Neish, committee member and head of the local United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said only two local politicians showed up.

The name of the film which was to be shown was "Suppose Nobody Came."

★ ★ ★

A fascinating bit of information from the background of Victoria's mayor-elect, Mike Young, was thrown in by way of introduction when he was welcomed as guest speaker at last week's luncheon meeting of Greater Victoria Chamber of Commer.

At one time in his younger days Young was a dynamite 'salesman, members were informed.

Well, maybe, but he made it fairly clear that — unlike his predecessor, Mayor Peter Pollen — he won't be detonating any controversies or confrontations in City Hall's future relations with the business community.

That's just not his style, Young explained.

★ ★ ★

HENSON
. . . paid attention

Paying attention in class has paid off for Donnie Henson, seven, a Grade 2 student at Millstream elementary school.

On Sunday he spotted what looked like a drilling hole for dynamite and dashed home to tell his parents, Don and Linda Henson of 683 Hoy Lake Road. He knew better than to meddle with whatever was in the hole, having attended a recent lecture by a team from the armed forces' explosives ordnance dispoal unit.

Donnie's hunch was right. It was confirmed by his next-door neighbor, Dale Davies, 19. On Monday an armed forces' team blew up the dynamite in the hole.

A service spokesman said, "This is a textbook case. Teams visit schools all the time. Now we know it pays off."

The advance of governments into all manner of social programs doesn't sit well with everyone, of course, and has prompted a certain cynycism. Not just locally, either.

Herewith a paraphrasing of a certain psalm, from Bill Tyers Sr. of 304-2095 Oak Bay Ave., who picked it up from a Winnipeg paper which in turn received it indirectly from a woman in Minnesota:

"The government is my shepherd, I therefore need not work. It leadeth me beside the still factories. It destroyeth my initiative. It leadeth me in the path of the parasite for politics' sake. Yea, though I walk in the valley of laziness and deficit spending I will fear no evil for the government is with me. It prepareth an economic utopia for me. By appropriating the earnings of my grandchildren it filleth my head with false security. Its inefficiency runneth over. Surely the government shall care for me all the days of my life and I shall dwell in a fool's paradise forever."

Oak Bay butcher Arnold Nobbs, 68, is hanging up his cleaver at the end of the month after 52 years in the meat business.

He is selling Newport Meat Market, 697 St. Patrick, to a younger Victoria couple, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Clark, for whom it will be their first business.

Nobbs was born on Salt Spring Island and at the age of 16 began his apprenticeship at the old Dominion Meat Market on Douglas Street, which he subsequently took over in 1944. His move to Oak Bay occurred in 1962.

Still undecided on what comes next, Nobbs said he and his wife first want to get their bearings after so many years of toil.

"We might want to do a bit of travelling. It will be the first time we've spread our wings."

What is this inexplicable attraction politics has for car dealers:

Nomination lists for the provincial election this year are heavily sprinkled with candidates who list their occupation as car dealers, especially locally.

There is Peter Pollen, unsuccessful Socred nominee in Victoria; Newell Morrison, recently retired MLA for Victoria; Frank Carson, Socred candidate in Oak Bay, who deals in wheels, and Edgar Rhomberg, Liberal candidate in Saanich.

Further afield are Socred candidate in Dwedney, George Mussallem; George Lawson-Kerster, Socred candidate in Coquitlam; Evan Wolfe, Socred candidate in Vancouver-Little Mountain and last, but not least, Don Phillips, (SC-South Peace).

★ ★ ★

HANSON
. . . finally

In publishing candid portraits of provincial election candidates, we've somehow omitted Gordon Hanson, one of the NDP's two standard-bearers in the Victoria riding.

And the oversight hasn't escaped the attention of some of the party faithful. In fact, they tend to call up on a fairly regular basis to inquire when we're going to print a picture of 32-year-old handsome Hanson, who is administrative assistant to Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young.

Anyway, to atone for our sins and appease these gentlemen, here he is, complete with tingling-fresh smile.

Now get off our backs, will you fellers?

★ ★ ★

Lighthouse philosopher Bill Scott recommends that Victorians, especially those involved with labor-management problems, go to Vancouver's East Cultural Centre to see a play called Fanshen.

He says a rehearsal he saw so inspired him that it moved him to offer himself as an independent candidate in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The play is performed by a group called Tamahnous. It is a documentary of a revolution in a Chinese village by David Hare, based on the book by William Hinton.

"It demonstrates how people can move together in the same direction for the good of all," says Scott, who spent many years in China. "It's also highly authentic."

Scott hopes that it will be possible to bring Fanshen to Victoria following its Vancouver run. In the meantime it can be seen at the centre at 1895 Venables except Sunday and Monday, until Dec. 6.

Speaking of Scott, the independent candidate received a special invitation to speak at the Esquimalt riding all-candidates meeting at the University of Victoria Student Union Building at noon today.

The invitation came after an oversight left Scott off the invitation list for a Victoria riding all-candidate meeting Friday, an omission which prompted the candidate to say he felt "slighted."

Six Months For Arson

Two 21-year-old men were sentenced today in county court to six months in jail for setting fire to the Jehovah Witnesses Kingdom Hall on Joan Crescent Oct. 13, 1974.

Terry Darrow Emerson, 1195 Trans-Canada Highway, and John Robert Atkinson of Vancouver, were found guilty by a jury Oct. 24 of arson in the fire which caused $35,000 damage.

Judge Peter Milward said he was concerned the action was premeditated but found it difficult to understand what the motivation might have been.

He could not, however, agree with defence submissions in favor of a suspended sentence and probation.

"At the same time I am impressed by the efforts you are apparently making to fit into society," the judge said.

"I think you have considerable potential."

Neither Atkinson nor Emerson has a criminal record and Emerson's lawyer, Doug Christie, said because of the guilty verdict they will have to pay for the fire damage.

However, Atkinson's lawyer, Don Farquhar, indicated outside court that in fact there is no obligation on the part of either man to make restitution to the Jehovah Witnesses at this time and there will be no such requirement unless it is directed by a civil court.

Chief prosecution witness was Raymond Kapfer who said Atkinson and Emerson picked him up in a car and told him they intended to burn the hall. He said they set fire to the hall while he sat in the car.

The defence suggested at the trial Kapfer was involved as an accomplice, not with the accused, but with two other persons.

Arson carries a maximum sentence of 14 years.

Crown counsel was David Lisson assisted by Barry Mah Ming.

Advance Polls For Disabled

Handicapped people in B.C. will be allowed to vote at advance polls for the Dec. 11 provincial election.

For the first time chief electoral officer Ken Morton has ruled that disabled persons can vote at advance polls on Dec. 4, 5 and 6, prior to the regular Dec. 11 voting day.

If polling stations are inaccessible to the handicapped, ballot boxes will be brought to them. Helen Austin, special government consultant for the handicapped, said today if disabled people find the polling station inaccessible they should notify officials at the station.

The officials will attempt to provide assistance and if they are unable to, Mrs. Austin said the handicapped person should contact the candidate of their choice or call her at 387-6861; Mark Raetzen at 387-6911 in Victoria; or in Vancouver, 736-4367.

Mrs. Austin said the new ruling is "a landmark decision for the disabled" and handicapped organizations have fought long and hard for it.

GUILTY PLEA IN ROBBERY

A 22-year-old Chetwynd, B.C. man pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court this morning to robbing the City Savings and Trust, 1306 Douglas, of $964 last Thursday.

Judge William Ostler remanded John Paul McClarty in custody to Dec. 5 for a pre-sentence report and sentencing.

McClarty, a self-employed salesman, had been arrested in a downtown rooming house half an hour after the 3:10 p.m. robbery. Police found $964.05 on him.

Only three hours earlier McClarty had appeared in court before Judge Fred Green for a preliminary hearing into a charge of attempting to rob the Bank of Nova Scotia at Hillside and Douglas on March 10 and had been ordered to stand trial in higher court.

He had also been ordered on Nov. 4 to stand trial for robbing the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, 1090 Fort, on Feb. 24.

In both cases McClarty had been freed on a $1,000 recognizance bond.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett asked for and got an order to have the money seized at the time of McClarty's arrest returned to the trust company.

Birkett said the accused has three prior convictions, all in 1974, one for attempted extortion in Chetwynd and two for possession of a stolen car, one in Saskatoon and the other in Williams Lake.

Sidney Finally Okays 450-Boat Marina

Sidney's controversial marina bylaw was approved Monday night, but it may be at least three years before the 450-boat marina at the foot of Beacon Avenue actually comes into being.

With only one dissenting voice, council voted to rezone 9.6 acres of waterlot for marina use, allowing the owners of Island View Marina Ltd. to go ahead with their plans to develop a marina complex which includes space for 450 boats, a row of small shops and a coffee shop.

Ald. Wilkie Gardner, defeated in his bid last week for the mayor's seat, voted against the bylaw.

But George Stricker and Pat Stewart, co-owners of Island View Marina Ltd., still have several hurdles, and probably three years to go, before their marina plans are actually started.

Stricker said today he must first receive a lease on the waterlot from the provincal government and then approach the federal government for funds to build a breakwater necessary for the development.

Stewart said the federal government has already spent all funds alloted for breakwaters for 1976, so their request would fall into either 1977 or 1978.

The two said they were pleased with council's decision Monday night and said the marina will be an "attractive improvement" to Sidney's waterfront.

Gardner said today he voted against the marina bylaw because he wanted a provision in it which would see the water-lot zoned back to its current classification if Island View Marina Ltd. cannot get federal and provincial approval.

Stewart and Stricker started on the marina project in March, 1972, and since then have been given a rough ride by both Sidney council and residents near the waterfront where the marina would go.

Council twice turned down their request to have the lot rezoned, once in 1973 and again in June, 1974.

Public meetings held on the bylaw have been stormy, with residents charging the marina would destroy wildlife in the area, ruin a nearby beach and cause pollution.

The residents banded together and at one point armed themselves with the oratory of Victoria lawyer Louis Lindholm who appealed to council that the waterlot should be preserved for "generations unborn."

Another public hearing earlier this month saw a petition presented to council, signed by 25 businesses and 150 residents, urging that the rezoning request be again denied.

Despite the objections, aldermen said they felt the marina would be beneficial to the town and Stewart and Stricker have passed the first stage in their fight, with only two left to go — the provincial and federal governments.

Pollen: Crystal Beyond Saving

Mayor Peter Pollen considers the 50-year-old Crystal Garden building is beyond saving, and that it's "certainly" not worth spending $2.7 million to restore the run-down structure as an arboretum attraction.

Pollen said Monday it's a reality which many residents may not wish to accept, but he added: "I think people's wisdom is going to have to overtake their nostalgia in recognizing that the building is derelict."

He pointed out that the building hasn't been heated for more than five years, and its enormous glass-paned roof is in a state of collapse, requiring virtually complete reconstruction.

A consultant's report to city council last week estimated the total cost of the renovation at about $2.7 million — more than $1 million higher than the preliminary cost estimates worked out by city staff six months ago.

But Pollen reckons the figure could go much higher, perhaps reaching $4 million.

In any case, he said, the basic idea of refurbishing the Crystal Garden as an arboretum, when Victoria has "more flowers, more foliage, more greenery" than any other city in Canada, is "self-defeating in its intrinsic absurity."

There are far more pressing needs — for example, a new central library, an arts centre and a conference centre.

Pollen last week termed the latest Crystal Garden study by architects Wagg and Hambleton "ridiculous."

But the previous day, in an address to the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Mayor-elect Mike Young had referred to it as a "very excellent report."

Young admitted the price to save "this fine and gracious old building" is high, and rejected any suggestion of city revenue being used for that purpose.

But he said if the capital cost could be financed by the federal or provincial governments, or through the efforts of a body like the Chamber of Commerce, he was confident the enterprise could be self-sustaining.

NO MAIL THURSDAY IN U.S.

Victorians heading across the strait with Christmas mail this week are reminded the U.S. post office will be closed Thursday, the American Thanksgiving Day.

The post office in Port Angeles will keep its regular hours Wednesday, closing at 5 p.m., and on Friday when it opens at 8:30 a.m. It will be closed as usual on Saturday, although vending machine stamps and letter drops may be used all day.

City Eyes Union Exemptions

City council is considering a proposal by its senior management to seek exemption from union membership for certain personnel in supervisory positions at City Hall.

But officials say the move is purely an administrative one and is not designed to ensure a sufficient nucleus of non-union staff so that services could be maintained in the event of another strike.

Colin Crisp, assistant to city manager Jim Bramley, said today the proposal is still under study and the final number of employees who might be affected isn't known.

"We haven't made any decision yet as to when to make the application (to the Labor Relations Board) and for whom," he said. "It's a very complicated matter."

However, Mayor Peter Pollen said Monday he believes that 10 to 15 staff members might be involved in the proposed transfer from union membership to non-union status.

Asked why it was considered necessary, the mayor replied: "Because the senior management of the city should not be in the union."

An example of the present illogical situation, he noted, is in the parks department where administrator Cliff Bate is the only non-union employee.

Crisp pointed to the same example. He said Bate's deputy, parks superintendent Al Smith, is a professional man with a degree in agriculture whose function is "fully managerial," a fact which should be recognized by granting him non-union status.

Smith himself agreed with that view today, and said he had applied privately for exemption some 18 months ago.

About 200 City Hall inside workers are represented by local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which was locked out for three months earlier this year after outside staff (CUPE local 50) went on strike.

Local president Dennis Burke said today he had heard only rumors of the proposed application to the Labor Relations Board.

"They haven't handed me a list of the people they would like to exempt from the bargaining unit and we haven't handed them a list of the people now on exempt staff who we feel would be included in the unit."

Burke said at least one reason for the management move appears to be a plan to swell the ranks of non-union staff, so that the city administration would be better able to cope if there were another serious dispute.

There are now about 30 union-exempt staff, including department heads and their assistants, professionals in the planning and engineering departments and confidential secretaries.

'Social Lepers Never Off the Hook'

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

A Victoria church group representative phoned a woman last week to say her volunteer services at the church were no longer welcome.

Probation officers say it's just one example of the social blacklisting that occurs when people appear in Victoria provincial court.

Bail supervisor Liz Cook said the tragedy of this case is that the woman has only been charged and has not yet come to trial.

"She's getting a lot of community flack but she hasn't been convicted," said Cook. "You shouldn't be punished for anything until you're proven guilty."

The woman has been charged with theft.

Probation officer Ed Stanton said he knows of numerous people who have lost jobs for having criminal convictions.

"They're social lepers after that — there's no doubt," he said. "People never forget, and you're never off the hook."

But B.C. human rights commission spokesman Reggie Newkirk said it may be illegal for an employer to fire someone because he has a conviction.

He said the Human Rights Code of B.C. prohibits employers from refusing to hire or keep employees unless "reasonable cause" exists for refusal or discrimination.

The code continues: "A conviction for a criminal or summary conviction charge shall not constitute reasonable cause unless such charge relates to the occupation or employment . . . of a person."

Whether a charge is related has to be decided in each individual case, he said.

He said the commission is investigating three or four cases of alleged wrongful dismissal involving criminal records.

Senior Victoria probation officer Mel Rossmo also knows cases in which people have lost jobs after coming to court, but said if he were an employer he might act the same way.

The nature of an employee's duties would enter into his decision, he said, "for instance whether I could trust the person to handle money."

Rossmo feels individuals worry more about what family members and friends will think than what employers will do.

Court officials agree the shame associated with a criminal conviction is often more punishment than a sentence itself.

"People are more afraid of publicity than they are of the fine," said Prosecutor Scott Marshall.

'Buy (Land) Where Your Heart Is'

TORONTO (CP) — The Pullens live in this city from Monday to Friday. But their home is 100 miles to the north and has a mountain view.

"Rent in the city, but buy where your heart is," said Tony Pullen, 30, who works for a Toronto brokerage company.

The same philosophy is followed by John and Wendy Eversfield and Brian and Joanne Bailey, fellow Torontonians who live for the weekend.

For these couples the way of life they are following is a rejection of traditional city living and an acceptance of leisure and sporting activities as their key consideration when buying real estate.

Tony Pullen recalled a time when they contemplated making a city home their major investment, but he heard of a development being built in Collingwood and that changed their minds.

Chalet is the designation of the two-storey home they helped design, but it has all the modern conveniences of a luxurious city home that now would be well beyond their price range.

The chalet contains four bedrooms and two bathrooms, one of which includes a whirlpool bath.

Skiing is the prime attraction for the residents of this subdivision in which the towbars to the slopes are within walking distance.

The chalet, however, is a year-round magnet.

"We spent one weekend in the city recently," Pullen said. "I felt cooped up and if I had to remain in Toronto every weekend, I think I would go crazy."

Total cost of their investment, including furniture, is estimated at $40,000.

The Eversfields rent an apartment in the city and bought their Collingwood chalet as a home four years ago.

"It started with skiing," said Mrs. Eversfield. "Some friends invited us up for a weekend and we knew this was where we wanted to be every weekend."

Eversfield, an accountant, and his wife also stress the summer attractions of chalet life. He plays tennis and they both cycle and hike.

An added plus is a vegetable garden which has kept them self-sufficeint in home-grown produce.

The Baileys rent a bungalow in the city and travel to their chalet every weekend as well.

"We work hard in the week, but live for the weekends," said Mrs. Bailey.

One final tribute to the chalet life is delivered by the Baileys' four cats who travel with them.

"Long before it is time for us to take off, they are meowing and trying to head for the car," said Mrs. Bailey.

CUTTING it fine, 19-year-old Alma Collins got married on Saturday and gave birth on Sunday to premature triplets, at Scarborough General Hospital, Toronto.

Plan Can Put Off Cancer

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Individuals can fight the threat of cancer by adopting a "personal plan of prevention" that should include cutting down on food and liquor, an expert says.

Dr. John Higginson, director of the Internatonal Agency for Research on Cancer, told a news conference: "A non-smoker who eats and drinks in moderation can reduce his chances of dying from cancer by at least 20 per cent."

Higginson suggested cutting alcohol intake to the equivalent of two double shots of hard liquor a day to avoid cancer of the mouth and liver. He said consumption of red meat should be reduced to lessen the chances of getting cancer of the colon and rectum.

"The day is past when the individual can pass the buck to the authorities, the government or other external bodies," he said.

Hyperactive Eludes Precise Definition

HALIFAX (CP) — An expert on childhoood learning disabilities tells parents to be wary when physicians diagnose their children as hyperactive.

Ed Poliak, professional development director for the Quebec Association for Children with Learning Disabilities in Montreal, was speaking at a recent conference in Halifax.

He said physicians sometimes will declare a child hyperactive, based on misbehavior or unruliness in the waiting room. A battery of tests and data on the child's medical, social and emotional history is needed.

The problem with hyperactivity is that it has no precise definition applicable to all children, he said. What one parent or doctor might regard as hyperactivity might be interpreted by others as adventurous, exuberant or masculine behavior.

More than 25 descriptions of the condition exist and the term says little about a child's ability to learn, his intelligence or the cause and remedies.

A study of 100 children considered hyperactive by a group of physicians in 1971 resulted in agreement that only 13 of the children were indeed hyperactive, 58 were not and the rest could not be diagnosed with certainty.

Hyperactive children are commonly believed to be easily distracted, recklessly impulsive, short-tempered and over-active and to have short attention spans.

The causes are uncertian and different professional disciplines assess them differently.

Psychiatrists have said hyperactivity results from emotional turmoil within the family. Bio-chemists and nutritionists have declared it may be due to nutritional deficiencies or food additives which set off allergic reactions affecting the brain.

Genetics, hormones and exposure to toxins such as lead have also been blamed. Neurologists have blamed faults in the nervous system or a lack of blood to the brain.

Lack of discipline, boredom and unresourceful teachers have also been singled out as the cause.

Treatment included administration of amphetamines or other drugs to calm the child, vitamin therapy, diet alterations, behavior modification techniques and perceptual motor training.

Even if hyperactivity is alleviated, Polak said, there might be repercussions such as low self-esteem during adolescence which would be worse than the original disability.

Wealthy Girls' Camp Closes

DIGBY, N.S. (CP) — After 40 years as a summer camp for wealthy girls, Camp Arcadie at nearby Sandy Cove is closing down.

Helen J. Anthony, who has directed the camp since 1936, attributed the camp's demise to high operational costs and the expense and difficulty girls experience getting to the camp.

"Besides," she said, "I'm going to retire."

The eight-week camp once was host to a member of Britain's Royal Family.

Starting out with only one cabin, it grew to include 10 smaller cabins, a tennis court, swimming pool, horses, a fleet of rowboats and canoes and basketball and volleyball courts.

Enrolment reached a peak of 105 in 1961 and then was gradually cut each year until only 25 attended last summer.

During the blitz on London in the Second World War, many English children who were friends of the Royal family were sent to Arcadie for their own safety. Among them was the Queen Mother's niece, Devina Rowes-Lyon. A letter from the Queen expressing apppreciation for Mrs. Anthony's concern for children now hangs on the wall of the main cabin.

Mrs. Anthony says she may rent the cabins next year, but eventually will sell them.

Alcoholics' Grandsons Cautioned

CHICAGO (UPI) — A report in the November issue of Archives of General Psychiatry says the grandsons of alcoholics are three times as likely to have drinking problems as the average male.

Two Swedish researchers from the University of Lund in Malmo, Sweden, reported on the results of a study which originally was designed to determine whether heredity factors cause excessive drinking in some men.

The researchers said by the time grandsons of alcholics were in their 50s, they had become alcoholics themselves at a rate of 43 per cent, about three times that of the general male population.

But the researchers said they did not find a gene involved in transmitting a tendency of alcoholism.

The researchers, Dr. Lennart Kaij and Jan Dock, used records on problem drinkers that Sweden has kept for many years.

Kidney Needed

BOMBAY (Reuter) — Jayaprakash Narayan, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's main political opponent, underwent surgery Monday for a kidney disease he contracted during 4½ months of detention under India's emergency laws, doctors said. The 73-year-old socialist-pacifist campaigner underwent preliminary surgery at a Bombay hospital to prepare him for an artificial kidney.

Shuttlebug: It Just Might Move You

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

The original inspiration for the Mother Earth News Shuttlebug goes back at least to the very late 1940s when editor-publisher John Shuttleworth — then a student at a small country grade school in Indiana — used to watch a King Midget automobile occasionally buzz past the playground during recess.

The King Midget was an ultra-small and ultra-light vehicle manufactured by Claud Dry and Dale Orcutt in Athens, Ohio, from 1947 to 1969. The little car weighted just 690 pounds, was powered by a single cylinder, 12 brake horsepower Kohler industrial engine and averaged between 50 and 70 miles per gallon of regular gasoline.

It was also a tough little machine that performed well on everything from rough trails north of the Arctic Circle to potholed tropical sections of the Pan-American Highway on both sides of the Equator.

That was the good part. The bad part was that the King Midget's right rear wheel — and right rear wheel only — transferred power to the road. This made the tiny car veer in one direction as it accelerated and in the other whenever it was slowed down.

The miniature automobile also tended to float around a lot at anything over 40 miles per hour and, according to a test report in the January-February 1974 issue of "Special Interest Autos," the old KM was guilty of both understeer and oversteer — simultaneously — as it was herded around a corner.

Be sure as it may, Dry and Orcutt delivered a quality-crafted product for the money (the price of the vehicle hovered around $350 during most of its manufacturing history and barely topped $1,000 at the time the car went out of production). And the two men are certainly to be commended for marketing a real alternative to bloated, costly, wasteful "regular" American automobiles for as long as they did.

It seemed only natural then — back in the fall of 1973, once the staff of the Mother Earth News had (1) successfully produced methane from organic waste, (2) used that methane to fuel an automobile engine, and (3) began to think about building an ultra-light vehicle specifically designed to operate on this "homemade gasoline" — for Mother's self-proclaimed car designers to reach into the past and dust off the old King Midget concept. Especially natural, as a matter of fact, during the winter of 1973-1974 when — as you'll recall — the Arabs suddenly called a halt to their shipments of oil to the U.S. and gas lines began to form all over the country.

"OK," we said. "We'll construct an ultra-light and ultra-small automobile designed to operate on methane. We'll steal all the good ideas we can from the ole KM, but we'll build enough weight into our little beastie and refine it aerodynamically so that it'll hold the road like it was glued to the pavement.

"We'll also connect the drive line to both rear wheels so we won't have any of that 'swerve one way speeding up and the other slowing down' business, and we'll put a big, heavy roll bar over the driver and passenger and husky 2x4-inch box beams around them to protect 'em from side impacts.

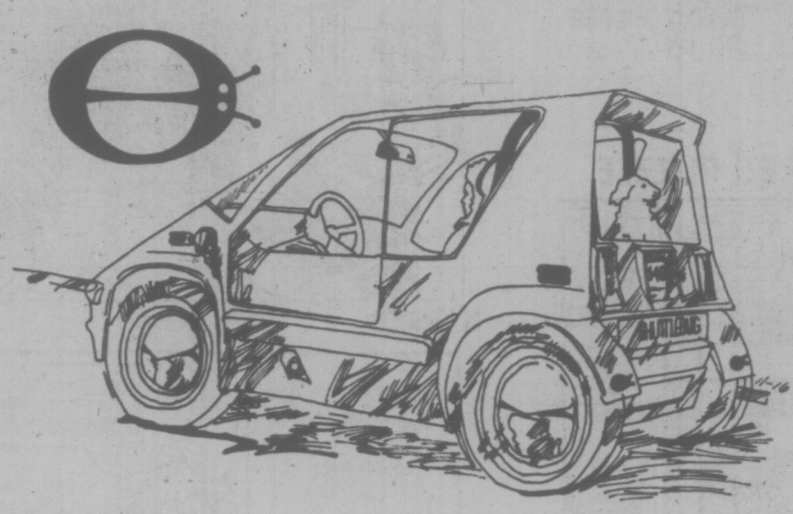
"And, just like the old King Midget's designers did, we'll simplify everything. Form the whole body from three or four pieces of fiberglass instead of hundreds of metal panels, bolts, washers, seals, etc. We'll forget the air conditioning, power seats, and other gizmos that Detroit hangs on almost every car nowadays.

"What we'll do, by gadfreys, is build a modern day King Midget that anyone can run on fuel that they produce in their own backyard."

And so we began. And before we knew it, we were doodling up a methane-powered mini-car and an electric bug that looked just like the first vehicle but which could run on the "juice" produced by a homemade windplant.

And then the Great Gasoline Drought ended so — knowing that most people didn't really care a great deal about manufacturing their own methane or electricity unless they absolutely had to — we soon found ourselves playing around with yet a third, petrol-powered version of the mini-bug.

And that's what you see here. A prototype of two-place, urban vehicle that weighs 860 pounds and which a computer analysis tells us will deliver 54 miles per gallon of regular gasoline at a steady 55 miles per hour. A miniatrue automobile that should top out at 62 miles per hour on the highway and cruise all day at the legal speed limit of 55. A little car expressly designed to whisk one or two people down to the office, across town on shopping trips or out to the country for a week's worth of fresh eggs and vegetables.



Our bug is small on the outside (three can be nosed in to the curb in the same space that it takes to park one full-sized Cadillac) yet relatively big on the inside (one 6-foot-4-inch driver, one 6-foot-4-inch passenger, one medium-large dog and two big sacks of groceries can all co-exist quite comfortably in the Shuttlebug).

There are only four pieces in the vehicle's whole body (two halves, a tail section, and a floor pan). The car's engine is equipped with a special torque converter clutch to which we've added a reverse gear of our own design. It's a very simple little bug.

We've driven this first hand-assembled Shutterbug, we're driving it now and we expect to test the car a great deal more before we really begin to lock up the machine's design. Results, to date, are highly encouraging — the mini-auto runs right down the road with the "big ones," it's a lot of fun to drive, it feels "right" out on the highway, and we don't have any cooling or other difficult problems to solve on the tiny vehicle.

At present the toughest nut we're trying to crack centres around muffling that one-lunged engine (which is mounted directly behind the seats) down to an acceptable noise level without "choking off" its power output with excessive exhaust back pressure.

And that's where the whole project stands at present. Maybe, just maybe, if our step-by-step test program proceeds as scheduled, if we don't run into any large and unforseen problems, if gasoline prices continue to go up (which they will), if we can put together the necessary financing and if we decide that we really and truly do want to go into the automobile business . . . then maybe you'll be able to tool down the highway in our own Shuttlebug sometime in the fall of 1976.

CANDY, POP FOR AFFLUENT?

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — A nutritionist sayssome lower-income New Brunswickers consider soft drinks and candy as symbols of affluence, but actually they may be responsible for growing signs of malnutrition in the province.

Janet Gagnon, nutritional consultant for Albert, Westmoreland and Kent counties, said the malnutrition is not severe "but if some people keep eating like they are, they're definitely going to wind up in hospital with some kind of malnutrition disease.

Miss Gagnon said some women she has me for nutritional counselling had been drinking 40 ounces of pop daily and living mainly off candy bars and chocolate.

"I've found that the middle-income woman or the one who is financially quite well off is the one who is budget-conscious, not the one in the lower financial bracket."

She said lower-income women often do not realize they are eating the wrong things.

"They don't know that pop is empty caloric food and that there are absolutely no vitamins in it."

People who cannot stretch their budgets to cover a nutritious diet generally suffer from a lack of knowledge, she said.

They often waste food, usually by overcooking. They rely heavily on convenience foods, they do not store food properly and sometimes they buy things they should not be eating.

Welch Medical Report

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

The manifest failures of conventional medical and psychiatric treatment of alcoholism stands in sharp contrast to the stunning effectiveness of such "amateur" programs as Alcoholics Anonymous.

If any conventional medical or psychiatric program confronting a problem comparable to alcoholism could claim the 75 per cent cure rate that is fairly standard with Alcoholics Anonymous, there would almost certainly be serious nominations for a Nobel prize for its promulgators.

Solemn designation by official medical spokesmen of alcoholism as a "disease" rather than a personal behavior aberration as it had heretofore been generally held to be, has stirred perhaps the conscience of physicians who are often reluctant to deal with what used to be called "drunks" but the new designation has not supplied an effective means of treating the "disease."

Which is not to say that there are not thousands of alcoholics seeing their doctors. They are, however, in most cases, not being treated for alcoholism. They are much more likely to be blandly labeled as gastritis (inflammation of the stomach), chronic bloody diarrhea, Cirrhosis of the liver, yellow jaundice, peripheral neuritis, or any of a number of other physical disasters that are caused by the abuse of alcohol, but are more "respectable" ailments when the casual agent is left unremarked.

Sometimes the ravages of alcohol on vital organs of the body are so devastating and so deadly that an occasional alcoholic survivor of a few weeks in an intensive care unit is converted to sobriety by the acute recognition that he has had a brush with death.

Such fortunate rehabilitations come about more or less on the old principle that "the devil sick, the devil a saint would be." But memories are short and the duration of such reformations often is all too brief.

This is in contrast with the firm handclasp of the typical AA devotee who may have been "dry" for years yet briskly announces, when the occasion demands — "I am an alcoholic — I haven't had a drink in 13 years, but I am an alcoholic.

Their methods are described by the pseudo-sophisticated as simplistic. Their frank acknowledgement of standing in need of help is sometimes difficult for the proud and frightened to accept. Their uncomplicated spiritual reverence and willingness to be their brother's keeper is frequently dismissed as naive and childish by swaggering but helpless bar room and living room tipplers.

But the program works — when it is given a chance, which is more than can be said of those that emerge from most doctors offices and most public clinics.

Acknowledgement of the effectiveness of Alcoholics Anonymous is long overdue. And it should not be overlooked that they seek no federal funding and get on without the costly trappings of an overstaffed bureaucracy.

Looking ahead to the year 2000 AD, an executive of Bell Canada recently said that it will be quite possible for many people to do all their work from their own home. This will be the result of complete communication from that home to anywhere on earth or even to the moon, if colonies will have been established there by then. He also explained that such total communication might be possible in 25 pears from now by man's use of computers.

The illustrated 12-page pamphlet "Data Communications" explains how, in the not too distant future, the computer will become the most basic tool of our way of life. It won't be long before we can do banking, shopping, teaching and even minding the house, at least to some degree, with the help of a computer communications system.

The booklet also outlines how such an extensive use of computers will be possible and explains such electronic innovations as wideband transmission, multicom, dataroute and many others.

If you are the least bit technically minded, you will be fascinated by this informative pamphlet.

Speaking for Youth

DEAR ABBY: It's about time someone spoke up for the much maligned younger generation:

When Johnny was 6, he was with his father when they were caught speeding. He saw his father hand the officer a $5 bill with his driver's license. No ticket.

When Johnny was 10, he broke his glasses on the way to school. He heard his mother tell the man from the insurance company that they had been "stolen," and they collected $27.

When Johnny was 15, he made right guard on the high school football team. His coach taught him to block and, at the same time, grab the opposing end by the shirt so the official couldn't see it.

When he was 16, he took a summer job at a big market. His job was to put the overripe tomatoes in the bottom of the boxes and good ones on top.

When Johnny went to college, he was approached by an upperclassman who offered him the answers to an English exam for $3. "It's O.K., kids," he was told, "everybody does it." Johnny was caught and sent home in disgrace. "How could you do this to your mother and me?" his father asked. "You never learned anything like this at home!"

If there's one thing the adult world can't stand, it's a kid who cheats.—ROY R.

DEAR ROY: Thanks for a wonderful letter.

DEAR ABBY: The woman who "lent" the embarrassed lady in front of her at the check-out stand at the market a dollar so she could pay for her purchases has the wrong attitude. (She said she was disappointed because the lady took her name and address, promising to pay it back, but never did.)

She should have given her the dollar as a gesture of kindness.

I am reminded of one time when I was in the hospital years ago. An old fellow in the bed next to mine was due to be discharged that morning, and he was despondent because he owed the hospital $5 and they wouldn't discharge him until he paid it. (All his other hospital obligations were taken care of.)

I had never seen the man before my hospital stay, and for that matter have not seen him since, but I didn't hesitate to give him the $5 so he could get released.

He asked me to write my name and address on a piece of paper so he could pay me back. I didn't want to, but he insisted, so I hastily scribbled, "V. Reynolds, Bountiful, Utah" and gave it to him.

Two years later, when I was htving a particularly hard time of it, I received an envelope with a New York postmark. Pasted on the outside of the envelope was the same scrap of paper on which I'd written my name and address. On opening the envelope I found TWO crisp $100 bills! No letter, no explanation, nothing—just the money.

I don't know what happened to the man. I don't even know his name, but he certainly repaid me 40 times over.—V. R.: BOUNTIFUL, UTAH.

DEAR V. R.: Beautiful! And what an appropriate coincidence that you come from Bountiful.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Quite often, even in top-echelon competition, one is forced to guess how to play a hand. Such was the cas e in today's deal, which arose some years ago in the World Championships, in the match between the United States and Italy. Both the United States South declarer and the Italian South declarer arrived at the identical part-score contract. Both went down via different lines of play. In the post-mortem analysis, it was the opinion of the assembled experts that the hand was misplayed.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ A 9 8
♥ 5
♦ A K 9 8

WEST	EAST
♠ J 10	♠ K Q 5 3
♥ J 10 7 4	♥ A 2
♦ Q J 6 5	♦ 10 7 4 2
♣ K 10 4	♣ J 7 5

SOUTH
♠ 7 6 4 2
♥ K Q 9 8 6 3
♦ 3
♣ 6 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

The above was the bidding sequence when Italy held the North-South cards. After West's opening lead of the spade jack had been permitted to win trick one, West continued with the spade ten, dummy's ace capturing the trick. The ace and king of diamonds were cashed next, South discarding the deuce of clubs.

He then ruffed a diamond, led his remaining club to dummy's ace, and ruffed a club. But he still had to lose two spades and two hearts, to incur a one-trick set.

When the United States held the North-South cards, the Italian West defender also opened the spade jack against South's three-heart contract. When he was permitted to win the trick, he continued with the spade ten, which was captured by dummy's ace.

South then led the board's singleton trump, and put up his king when East played low. He now made a good guess by leading a low trump, East perforce taking the trick with his ace. But it didn't help him any, for East next cashed two spade tricks; and, in time, West made a trump trick, to defeat declarer.

It seems to me (with hindsight backing me up) that ten tricks can be made by normal play. After winning the second spade trick with dummy's ace, cash the ace and king of diamonds, discarding a spade. A third diamond lead is then ruffed, after which a club finesse is taken, dummy's queen winning. A fourth diamond lead is now trumped.

Then comes a club to dummy's ace, and a third club lead is ruffed. South now leads his remaining spade. With nothing but trumps remaining, West must ruff and lead a trump, enabling South to make both his king and queen.

The three children leaned over the fence looking down at the ducks in the pond. "Let's have our cookies right away," said Doug. "I bought five. How many did you two get?"

"Mike got four the same as yours, but that's all they had so I didn't get any," replied Betty, handing him 36 cents. "Let's share them equally, and oyu split this fairly with Mike."

What would be fair?

ROLLING STONE

By RICH WISEMAN

Elton John is resting these days — but only on doctor's orders. Seems that EJ has recorded, toured (his Western states swing grossed $2 million-plus) and played his way into a frazzle, and has had trouble sleeping. The doc's prescription: four months of sunning. So, Elton's in Barbados now, but he's not lacking for visitors. We've heard he's been flying his friends in, in shifts.

Meantime, John has been busy on the real estate front. He's invested as a part-owner of the L.A. Aztecs, which one sportswriter called the biggest deal for the North American Soccer League since Pele (Elton's already a director of his hometown soccer squad in Britain). And he's just laid down $820,000 for a second, 30-acre estate in Surrey, after seeing a film of the spread that his management shot and sent to him. We imagine Elton was impressed by the estate's vineyards, riding stables, tennis court and cinema.

Bob Dylan and Bruce Springsteen are among those sniffing around for a role in "Ragtime," the film to be based on the current best-seller. Springsteen sent a message to producer Dino De Laurentiis, and Dylan asked to see the script — they're tempted by the role of the budding anarchist. Callers for the ragtime piano player part include Redd Foxx, O. J. Simpson and Muhammad Ali. Director Robert Altman ("Nashville") has been telling friends he won't even make a movie now, he'll just write a book about the casting. Randy Newman will handle the score . . . John Denver won't be making his motion-picture debut in a remake of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," after all. Manager Jerry Weintraub said he couldn't find a good-enough script.

Rick Wakeman and Procol Harum aren't talking. Procol was set to appear with headliner Wakeman and Gentle Giant recently in Cincinnati. The Procol members made it, but their equipment truck didn't, breaking down somewhere in West Virginia. Gentle Giant came to the rescue — seemingly — when they agreed to let Procol use their instruments. But then, just before showtime, Wakeman vetoed the loan. "Wakeman's people thought that Procol playing with Gentle Giant's instruments would somehow hamper the show, mess up the vibes," said promoter Cal Levy. Levy said a "pretty ridiculous scene" ensured backstage as the Procol members and Wakeman's road crew argued about Rick's decree.

According to a spokesperson for Chrysalis Artist Services, Procol's Keith Reid attempted to take the stage after Gentle Giant's set to explain what was happening — only to be turned back by Wakeman's crew. Then the irate band members stormed out of the theatre. Their non-appearance wasn't announced until Wakeman performed his set.

But our story doesn't end here. Reid and piano player Gary Brooker drove directly to WEBN radio, where they lambasted Wakeman for his "egotistical and unreasonable" behavior. Wakeman, riding back to his hotel at the time, had the station tuned in; he became incensed. Upon entering his room, he rang up WEBN and demanded equal time. He, in turn, blasted Procol for their "lies."

Fight Comedy Packs a Tiny Punch . . .

A Film Review
By Nora Hutchison

Bootney Farnsworth is the tallest, skinniest, most scared prize-fighter you've ever seen. He's a sure knock-out for 40th Street Black, title defender of the middle-weight championship until Sidney Poitier applies a little hypnotic encouragement in Let's Do It Again, a mildly funny comedy directed by its star. The movie's distributors are telling us that it's even better than Poitier's highly amusing and original Uptown Saturday Night, a quick-stepping parody of Hollywood's Uncle Tom myth, but it isn't. It lacks the energy, the bounce and the drive of that earlier film, and it's just another proof for the hypothesis that successful sequels are tough to make.

Along with Poitier, who plays a bumbling, good-natured milkman with a talent for hypnosis, Bill Cosby stars as his jivemaking, slightly aging, but still hip pal. In the first film the two ran afoul of black mobsters, corrupt politicians, and less than holy-minded preachers as they tried to recover a wallet containing a winning lottery ticket worth $50,000. The movie was cheeky and cheerful, a comedy for middle-class audiences — black and white — who want to believe that films like this one can be a common reference point for both cultures.

Let's Do It Again is a little grittier, a litter tougher, a little closer to the street than Uptown Saturday Night, and that's all to its good, but the spirit of commercial enterprise has squashed any further sparks of originality. This time, Poitier and Cosby deliberately set themselves against the mob when they decide to fix a title fight with a little hypnosis. With Bootney Farnsworth (Jimmie Walker) roaring like a scrawny tiger, and the odds unchanged, the two stand to make a bundle from the $10,000 they invest at 20 to 1. Of course, it's all for a good cause. Cosby and Poitier are the treasurer and second grand master, respectively, of a quasi-religious, good-time group who are in need of a new headquarters, and the $10,000 comes from its building fund. Disguised as dudes from a big eastern syndicate, they dress up in the "baddest" clothes they can find, and hand their money over to two New Orleeans mobsters — Kansas City Mack and Biggie Smalls. Bootney wins, the bosses want to know how come, and the chase begins.

The movie is fun, off and on, but it has no style. All the tricks and comic turns that were an integral part of the first film's spoof on "Amos and Andy" characters — the false bravado, the eye-rolling, the jive and the overacted cowardice — are, in this movie, forced and phoney. And there's too much of Bill Cosby. He reads his lines like he's still filming a commercial for a well-known instant pudding. John Amos and Calvin Lockhart as the two mobsters are far more interesting. They at least believe in character identification.

A movie with lots of visual style (Paris has never looked better' but not much else is Henri Verneuil's The Night Caller. It's a super-cop movie, in the French mode, starring Jean-Paul Belmondo, Charles Denner, and with Lea Massari as a voluptuous victim. The movie is billed as a psycho-drama because the killer is a handsome psychotic who roams around paris murdering his victims in the name of virtue and the justice of Minos, the Infernal Judge who guards the entrance to Hell in Dante's The Divine Comedy. This literary note is a little pretentious and hardly requisite to the genre, but it does add a certain element of class.

The murderer is anxious to be identified it seems, because he sends photographs of parts of his anatomy to the chief detective (Belmondo) and takes the occasional pot shot at him, just to keep him interested. Belmondo, dashingly dressed in handsome trench coats or flashy leathers, plays the killer's games — trailing him across the rooftops of Paris, shooting it out in an attic full of plastic mannequins, or hurtling down the Champs Elysee after his motorcycle.

Belmondo's cop is as rough and tough as John Wayne's or Gene Hackman's but he has so much more panache — thank the French for creating le cop super-sexy — and he's so much more polite. When Belmondo smashes through a skylight, and practically drops into a young couple's bed, he not only apologizes, but he stops long enough to inform them that they'll be reimbursed,

Henri Verneuil's film is glossy B-movie stuff. Sexy cops, bullets and blood, lots of derring-do, and more footage of Paris than you've probably ever seen before, all come together to make an artful thriller — good viewing for a rainy afternoon.

Respirator Turned Off In Hawaii

HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — A judge has ordered turned off a respirator attached to a woman who has been in a coma for nearly two weeks from a suspected overdose of drugs.

Judge Shunichi Kimura took the action Monday in the case of Alice Cameron, 27, after five of seven doctors declared her officially dead.

Police said the woman had a Portland, Ore., arrest record for drug-related offences. She was found in a deep coma at her Hilo home Nov. 12 and officers said she was suspected of having swallowed cocaine.

Lawyers involved said the Cameron case should not be compared with the New Jersey litigation involving Karen Ann Quinlan. They pointed out that both sides in the Quinlan case agreed the victim was not dead. The question here was what constituted death.

Of the seven doctors who testified before Judge Kimura, five said examinations showed she was dead. One said he "just didn't know" whether she was dead or still in a coma.

9 IN MEMORIAM

KING—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Louise V. King who passed away Nov. 25, 1974.
SAFELY HOME
I am in Heaven, dear ones;
Oh, so happy and so bright!
There is perfect joy and beauty
In this everlasting light.
All the pain and grief is over,
Every restless tossing passed;
I am now at peace forever,
Safely home in Heaven at last.
Lovingly remembered by son George and family, Chris, Robert, Duffy and Leslie.

MAWLE — Vee departed Nov. 25, 1974.
It surely 'tis a selfish grief
That makes us grieve for thee.
For thou shalt be an angel
Bright throughout eternity.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

GARDENING

Think First About That Pool

Sometime in the life of every home gardener comes the urge to build a small pool, and the many gardens with depressions lined with rocks and weeds testify to this fact.

The reason so many attempts have been abandoned is not too difficult to figure when you have seen a fair number of these derelects.

Size, location, and method of construction stand out as the three main causes the pools did not give the satisfaction expected.

Behind the first two causes, size and location, lies the error of insufficient thought and planning before the job was started.

The use of water — flowing, cascading, still, or sprayed into the air — has had its place in public parks and private gardens for centuries, and it still has a place today.

It has already returned in the form of the swimming pool for fun and exercise, but its role as a tension relieving or relaxing agent in the modern outdoor living area has not been exploited to any great degree in smaller gardens, probably because we have lost the art of contemplation.

Before attempting to construct a pool there are two important decisions to be made; (1) the purpose the pool is to serve; (2) the best location in which it will serve that purpose.

If it is to provide an atmosphere of tranquility it must be in view from the normal point chosen for relaxing. For this purpose the motionless reflecting pool is chosen, placed where its surface will mirror a pleasing vista or just the sky and the clouds.

When a waterfall or fountain is added, relaxation comes from the sounds, not from viewing the actual movement of the water. In fact, continual movement in the line of vision has the effect of tensing, instead of relaxing, the nerves. Moving water should be heard and not seen.

Pools and tree shade are often combined without realizing that fallen tree leaves will foul any pool and make a lot of extra work.

All pools require regular attention the same as plants if they are to fulfil their purpose and give satisfaction. Unless emptied frequently and cleaned of all debris the pool soon becomes foul, weedy, and a perfect breeding place for mosquitoes.

Artificial lighting and water is thought to be a perfect combination. Underwater cabling and fixtures are expensive, and few home gardeners sit outside in the chill of a coastal eveningto enjoy the effects of lighting. Lights at night attract unwanted animals and insects, both making a lighted pool unbearable. Think six times before going to the expense of installing lights around or within the pool.

The joy of a pool is having the water confined in a predetermined place. Whether it stays in that place or not depends on construction. Never attempt to make a pool by cementing together pieces of rock; it invariably results in leaks that cannot be stopped.

Should the environment dictate a rock surface for the pool, first lay a solid base of concrete, then cement thin pieces of rock to that base.

All shallow pools will be completely frozen at some period each winter. As water freezes it expands. Gently sloping sides do not prevent this expansion therefore suffer less winter damage. Pools with straight sides must be drained by late fall and kept free of collected rainwater for safety.

These are a few points worth pondering. They can make the difference between a beautiful addition to the garden and an abandoned depression of rocks and weeds.

2.49 ACRES
Beautifully treed lot physically subdivided into 2 parts of about 15,000 square feet and 90,000 sq. ft. There is over 300' road frontage on both sides of the road. On hydro and water. From top end of property you can see across the straits over the Gulf Islands and to Mt. Baker. Or you can build at the lower end for complete seclusion. Driveway and turn-around already in. Build on the small lot and keep the large part as a natural park. There may be the slightest chance you could go to the board of variance and try for 2 building permits. But certainly in the future when the "freeze" comes off this area you would have an aideal subdivision potential with over 600' frontage. This is unique site. Owner will accept trades of any sort, including mortgages, cars or boats. Asking $55,900 with a $22,000 agreement assumable at 9½%, interest only 'til Feb., 1977. Will give builder's terms to qualified buyer for the $33,900 equity. Call F. Wills at 384-0581. Wills and Wonnenberg Realty Ltd.

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

Mt. Newton Access Decision Delayed

A decision will be made in two weeks on the most suitable access for a 177-acre subdivision on Mt. Newton, Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler said today.

Council meeting in committee Monday night heard expressions of concern from residents of the area of Mt. Newton Cross Road and the south slope of the montain.

Creating access to the property may pose a drainage and erosion problem with adverse effect on the upland ecology, aldermen were told. Some residents were opposed to the project in any case, preferring to see the property bearing second growth timber left in its natural state.

No formal public hearing is required because the proposed development into 17 10-acre parcels conforms to existing zoning.

The developer, Dr. Howard McDiarmid, will bear the cost of providing access, the mayor said, but the municipality is concerned that the best route be chosen for future access to adjoining land and for maintenance and servicing commitments at public expense.

She said Thomson Road appears to be the most suitable of two alternatives, both of which are steep. Thomson is partly developed and allows for 40-foot right of way. The alternative would be to build a new road using some of the land in the total parcel.

In other business, the committee adjusted the municipal capital budget to allow for the purchase of land to expand the publicly-owned gravel pit at a cost of $135,000.

It also was decided to recommend the financing of staff salaries, equipment and supplies for recreation through a 1976 levy of three-quarters of a mill in the annual budget.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 28-year-old man who changed his plea to guilty on three counts of false pretences was sentenced to two extra months in jail.

Richard Wayne Duncan, no fixed address, is serving six months after he was sentenced Nov. 5 for theft of money from a gas station cash register.

He had stayed in three Victoria area motels in August and September, leaving unpaid bills of $157.60, $147, and $90.60.

Defence counsel Malcolm McMicken told the court Duncan has marriage problems, but Judge William Ostler said that was no excuse.

"It's much too simple to blame criminal activity on marriage problems. Everybody has marriage problems. It's part of a marriage, and a healthy marriage," said Ostler.

★ ★ ★

John Hugh Gwilt, 50, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large and was sentenced to five days.

He had failed to go to Wilkinson Road jail on the weekend to serve part of a 15-day intermittent term he had been given Oct. 25 for impaired driving.

Gwilt has a record of impaired driving asd turned himself in Saturday to police. He told the court he hoped police would put him in jail where he couldn't drink.

★ ★ ★

A 30-year-old Victoria woman pleaded guilty to four counts of theft and was remanded to Dec. 8 for pre-sentence report.

Patricia Colleen Klugh had stolen items worth $149.90 total from The Bay, Eaton's, Woolworth's and the Metropolitan Nov. 19 before security officers from another store caught her in the Metropolitan.

★ ★ ★

Steven Rodney Roualt, 17, of 1485 Fort, was fined $5 for possession of hashish when he pleaded guilty. Police found 31 grams of the drug when they checked him in his car Nov. 5. Judge Ostler said the fine would be enough when he was told Roualt had been in jail since his arrest Saturday.

★ ★ ★

Dorothy Lam, 57, of Victoria, pleaded guilty to shoplifting and was remanded to Dec. 8 for pre-sentence report. She took $4.78 worth of items from Eaton's Nov. 18, and was apprehended there at 11 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Another shoplifter pleaded guilty and was fined $200.

Clifford Brian Lee, 42, of 1815 Jade Place, stole $10.12 worth of goods from Kresges on Nov. 12. Police said he had $16 in his possession at the time.

★ ★ ★

A 42-year-old man who missed a session of the impaired driver's course he had been ordered to attend was fined $50.

Fredrick William Schley, 3898 Wilkinson Road, will also have to finish the couurse. He received the order Aug. 27, with a 14-day sentence.

Couurt was told he has a record including four impaired driving convictions.

★ ★ ★

A bank teller who pleaded guilty to shoplifting $61.50 worth of items from The Bay Nov. 19 was fined $200.

Sharon Ann Willis, 21, of 1315 Esquimalt, stole the items and was caught by store security at 4:50 p.m.

"You're damaging one of your most precious assets — your honesty," said Judge William Ostler.

★ ★ ★

Jessie Alexander Johnson, 27, address not known, was fined $40 for obtaining food by fraud after he ate a $6.34 steak dinner at Ask Harry Steak House Saturday and did not pay.

★ ★ ★

In traffic court, Charles Martin Thatcher, 24, no fixed address, was fined $350 for impaired driving.

Murray William Emerson, 21, of 1040 Howie, was fined $200 for driving with over .08 blood alcohol.

Herbert John Nairn, 42, of 301 Renart Drive, was fined $300 for driving with over .08, put on three months' probation and ordered to take the impaired drivers' course.

Two persons were fined $50 each for failing to remain at an accident: William Mollard, 20, of 1351 Carnsew; and Christopher Brogan, 20, of 3981 Saanich.

Timothy Charles Findlay, 18 of 2862 Wyndeatte, was fined $300 for driving with over .08, put on six months' probation and ordered to take the impaired drivers course.

Bail Refused In Ladysmith

LADYSMITH — Bail was refused two Ladysmith men who appeared is provincial court Monday facing a series of charges including assaulting a police officer and obstructing justice.

Laurence Harold Craig and Randy Arvid Wilson, both 23, were remanded in custody and will appear in court Jan. 22 for preliminary hearing.

A third man, Bradley David Lockhart, also 23, who with Craig and Wilson is charged with breaking and entering a residence on High Street, will be released if he can raise a $5,000 surety. His case is adjourned to Feb. 12.

Lockhart is also charged with resisting arrest, breach of probation and escaping lawful custody.

Charges result from an incident last week during which two police officers staked-out a residence on High Street after complaints from an unidentified woman who said she had been receiving menacing telephone calls.

Police report three men entered the house in the early evening and in the course of the scuffle one of the men was shot by a police officer.

Craig was treated at hospital for a flesh wound.

No Frills School

There were no extra frills included in tender specifications for Lampson Street school renovations, a special investigation has concluded.

Called by Greater Victoria School Board chairman Bill Ross, the investigation was launched after Lampson Street parents charged the administration had added "extravagant details to the plans to make renovations appear impractical."

The study of tenders for the school, conducted by school superintendent Jake Longmore, recommends that before any future capital expenditure proposal for Lampson is prepared the board should meet with parents to discuss and clarify "expectations and requirements."

"It was apparent from the review of files and parents' presentations that the expectations of the Lampson parents were less than the requirements of the National Building Code, the Fire Marshall's Act and the directions given by the board of school frustees," says Longmore.

Olympic Fraud Raids

MONTREAL (UPI) — RCMP and provincial police conducted a series of raids in the Montreal area today in what police said was an investigation into possible fraud in the construction of a key Olympic Games facility.

A Quebec police force spokesman said some 100 officers of the provincial force along with RCMP were carrying out raids relating to the building of the $90 million Olympic village site.

"Our men went to different places wth search warrants to find information, documents or people pertaining to an alleged fraud in the construction of the Olympic village," a QPP spokesman said.

"No arrests have been made. We were not out to make any arrests — we were out to get some documents," the spokesman added.

Police said some of the raids were carried out on the site of the village, two pyramid-shaped, 980-unit apartment buildings scheduled to house 11,000 athletes at the 1976 summer games, and others at various construction company offices including the offices of Terrasses Zarolega Inc.

Police said raids, which began at 7 a.m. took place at several other locations including the homes of the company's directors.

Terrasses Zarolega Inc., a consortium of Joseph Zappia, Rene Lepine, Gerald Robinson and Andrew Caty, is building the Olympic village.

The village complex originally was estimated to cost $30 million. Begun last December, the exteriors were completed in only five months, with some contractors earning bonuses for speeded-up construction.

DANSON HITS SPECULATION

Land Price Curbs Eyed

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government is considering controls on land prices to prevent speculation, Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson said Monday.

Builders, he said, seem willing to accept some control in this area.

However, the comment drew swift and angry response from Bernard Denault, president of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada.

Controls, he said, might prompt big landowners to keep land off the market until the three-year control program ends.

This would limit the land available for housing and might have a disastrous affect on housing construction.

The government is also considering tightening anti-inflation controls over the construction industry because the current program exempted about 80 per cent of the industry, Danson said.

An anti-inflation board spokesman says this would be done by making more of the smaller construction companies subject to mandatory controls.

The current program calls for direct controls to apply only to construction companies employing 20 workers or more.

This likely will be changed to apply direct controls to companies that employ some number of employees fewer than 20.

The board has not yet decided what size of company it wants to regulate directly or the number of companies it expects to be affected by changes in the controls program.

Danson met Monday with official of the Canadian Construction Association and its provincial affiliates, the Housing and Urban Development Association and builders.

The meeting was part of "a continuing effort at consensus" over the federal controls, he said.

Changes in the anti-inflation program will raise the number of companies — now estimated at 7,500 — that will have their operations and employees subject to mandatory controls.

All others have been asked to comply voluntarily with the guides for acceptable incomes and price rises.

The estimated number of directly regulated companies has grown significantly since the controls were imposed Oct. 14.

Prime Minsiter Trudeau said then the government program applied directly to the 1,500 largest companies that employed 500 or more employees each, and to construction companies employing over 20. That would have covered about 5,000 construction firms.

The anti-inflation board now admits it under-estimated the number of large companies affected. As a result, it has since increased its estimate to 2,500 from 1,500 and says that is still "a rough estimate."

Socred Squabble Boils As Capozzi Dumps Lau

VANCOUVER (CP) — The internal squabbling within the Social Credit party in the Vancouver Centre riding peaked Monday when nominee Herb Capozzi declared himself independent from the campaign of Alan Lau.

The two men had been running as a team since they were nominated Nov. 16 to contest the dual riding for Social Credit.

Capozzi told a news conference that public concern over Lau's candidacy prompted him to run independently from the former Hong Kong businessman.

In Port Alberni Monday night Socred leader Bill Bennett refused to specifically endorse Lau's candidacy but said he would never interfere with the local selection process.

"I don't interfere with local constituency politics," Bennett told a news conference after a rally attended by more than 1,100 people.

"If people in the constituency have any complaints, they can take them to our party president, Peter Hyndman. If it turns out the complaints are justified, a new nominating convention would be held."

He repeatedly referred reporters to Hyndman to answer questions about Lau's candidacy, possible appeals, and the party machinery that would be involved in any change of candidates.

"As party leader, I take the candidates that the constituencies select. As party leader I have said that I will not interfere in the selection of candidates and I haven't.

"I do not engage in witch hunts."

He said he is not aware of any complaints received about Lau, nor of any investigation into his candidacy.

Bennett said Capozzi did not speak to him before divesting himself from Lau.

Capozzi said he was not cut-

Thousands Flee L.A. Flames

Times News Services

GLENDALE — Firefighters mounted a massive aerial assault today against the worst California brush fire outbreak in five years. Thousands of refugees fled flames raging across 100 square miles through suburban homes.

A gigantic smoke cloud billowed 100 miles into the Pacific, casting a twilight pall over the Los Angeles area.

Motorists 30 miles away had to use headlights in the darkness at noon amid a rain of ashes "like snowflakes." The sun shrank to a small red disk in an eerie murk of pink and grey.

With nearly 2,000 firefighters falling back before flames, whipped by hot winds from the Mojave Desert gusting up to 60 m.p.h, home owners mounted individual defences.

Standing with garden hoses atop homes surrounded by flames, they alternately doused themselves and flaming roofs. Some won. Some lost.

The worst fire, the Tujunga Canyon blaze, had consumed 43,000 acres by Monday night, burning 43 structures and sending 3,000 persons fleeing. Nineteen houses valued at up to $60,000 or more burned to the ground Monday as the fire

Postal Workers Assaulted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A postal worker said today he and five colleagues were assaulted by members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers after the six finished working a night shift at the downtown post office.

Mike Kinsella, 37, a dispatcher, said he was one of a group of eight workers who reported for duty shortly after 4 p.m. Monday.

"One of the fellows was body checked as we walked inside,but nothing much more came of it at that time," Kinsella said.

Kinsella said the real trouble started when the group left the post office at about 11:45 p.m.

"When we left the post office we turned north, but one went south, so that left seven of us. We saw a person standing on the Queen Elizabeth Theatre plaza as we were approaching Georgia, but we thought it was just a kid or something," he said.

STRIKE TIME TOLL HIGH IN CANADA

GENEVA (Reuter) — Canada placed high on a list of non-communist countries leading in lost labor time due to strikes and lockouts in 1974, the International Labor Organization (ILO) reported Monday.

In a review of labor disputes in 60 countries, the United Nations agency disclosed that the number of working days lost to strikes and lockouts in the non-communist world jumped by more than 35 per cent last year.

Italy led the list but the longest stoppages were in Turkey, the report said.

Strikes last year led to the loss of more than six million working days in Canada, Australia, Italy, Japan and Britain. In France, the total was three million, and in West Germany, Spain and Peru it topped the million mark, the ILO said.

ILO officials said they had no statistics for China or the communist states of Eastern Europe.

ILO said the total number of working days lost because of labor conflicts rose to 154 million, almost 42 million more than in 1973 when a slight decrease was recorded. The number of workers involved in strikes or lockouts also increased, rising from 22 million in 1973 to 25 million in 1974.

'DEAD' DUCK BEATS FREEZE

SLIDELL, La. (UPI) — Duck hunter Warren Stovall, relaxing at home after bagging a pair of mallards he intended to have mounted, went to his freezer to get ice for a drink.

When he opened the freezer door a half-frozen duck with buckshot wounds in the neck and wing flapped out of the refrigerator and flew around the room.

"He started screaming," said his wife Charlotte. "He came running in with the duck, and it was alive. It had worked its way out of the foil and was sitting in the freezer when he opened it, and it flew out."

Stovall had shot the drake and a hen about dawn Saturday, and a busy taxidermist told him to freeze the birds and he would stuff them on Monday.

Stovall wrapped each duck separately in tin foil, sealing them with tape, and popped them in the freezer at 10 a.m. Saturday. It was 10 that night when the duck flew out of the freezer.

The Stovalls decided to give the drake to a man who raises ducks.

"As much as this duck has been through, he wasn't meant to die," Mrs. Stovall said.

Grits 'Hiding' On Giguere Probe

By IAIN HUNTER
Times News Services

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Monday of hiding behind a police investigation involving a Liberal senator.

The Conservative leader demanded in the commons a public inquiry into affairs relating to Senator Louis Giguere "and alleged conflicts of interest."

"I have to ask members of the govenment why they keep hiding behind the fact that a police investigation is being made into something that very closely touches the government, Parliament and this country," Stanfield declared.

Referring to recent reports of police raids on the senator's office and apartment in Montreal and his office on Parliament Hill, the opposition leader said there is a "prima facie indication of a substantial conflict of interest" and called on Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to "set the minds of the Canadian public at ease" and order a public inquiry.

Senator Giguere, a Liberal party fund raiser, admitted making a $95,000 profit on a $5,000 investmennt in Sky Shops shares in 1972 when the government extended the Sky Shops lease for the Montreal airport duty-free shop concession.

It has been reported recently that when RCMP raided Giguere's apartment Nov. 6 they carried a warrant authorizing them to search for documents relating to the collection of funds for the Liberal party, as well as correspondence concerning business conducted by corporations with the federal government.

Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova) noted that it has become public knowledge that ledger cards of engineers and architects were among ducuments taken by the RCMP from an apartment next to the senator's and asked whether they had any connection with the Mirabel Airport project.

Solicitor General Warren Allmand refused to give any details of the police investigations while they are still under way. He also refused to say whether RCMP had also searched Liberal party offices. He said he will consider tabling in the Commons copies of the search warrant and list of documents seized in the case, but refused to agree to table police reports when the investigation is completed.

DIVORCE RATE UP 20%

OTTAWA (CP) — The national divorce rate last year was up 20.6 per cent from 1973, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

There were 45,019 divorces in 1974, resulting in a rate of 200.3 divorces per 100,000 population. This was up from 36,704 divorces and a rate of 166.1 per 100,000 in 1973.

The agency said the divorce rate has been increasing since legislative changes in 1968 simplified the process.

Alberta had the highest rate in the country at 288.1 per 100,000, up 9.3 per cent from 1973. Newfoundland had the lowest rate at 55.4, up 33.8 per cent from 1973.

The rate increased in all areas except the Yukon, where the rate dropped to 242.1, down 19.3 per cent from 1973.

The rate per 100,000 population and the percentage increases from 1973 in other provinces:

Prince Edward Island, 82.1, up 74.7 per cent; Nova Scotia, 195.5, up 26 per cent; New Brunswick, 113.9, up 29.4 per cent; Quebec 199.8, up 50.1 per cent; Ontario, 188.5, up 17.1 per cent; Ontario, 188.5, up 17.1 per cent; Ontario, 188.5, up 17.1 per cent; British Columbia, 284.8, up 15.9 per cent; Northwest Territories, 155.3, up 40.5 per cent.

Feminists Take Aim at 'Sexist' Toy Departments

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Let the merchant who displays toys in a' 'sexist'' way be warned.

Victoria feminists are on the march against stores whose toy departments advertise or section off toys into boys' and girls' areas.

So far they've been to most of the major stores and have won most of the managers over to their point of view.

The feminists are pleased with the results — "extremely satisfied" was the way Alice Ages put it.

Ages, a former elementary school teacher, mother of three and member of the Victoria Women's Action Coalition, said feminists have been trying for three years to get some action.

Earlier this month they got together and initiated a new and more forceful drive.

Ages said they were appalled by sex role stereotyping of children's toys which ends up "transmitting obsolete social values."

She felt there was no reason boys should be limited to trucks and trains and chemistry sets while girls had to choose between toy mops and vacuum cleaners — symbols of "darkest domestica."

She said such segregation "reinforces ... the mother's little helper role" and could be "severely crippling to a girl's self-assessment."

Ages said a complaint was made to Simpsons-Sears and the next day down came the offensive Boy Town and Girl Town signs; up went the sexless Toy Town sign.

A spokesman for Sears said the store was going to change the signs anyway but the women's protest and a veiled threat there would be a demonstration 'speeded up things a bit."

Ages said the women have gone to The Bay, spotted one distressing Boy Toys sign, asked the manager to remove it, and have also gone to Woodwards which they found "completely unobjectionable."

Now their attention is focused on Eaton's which still has two large hanging signs directing shoppers to boys and girls toys sections.

Store manager Reg Hind said he would meet the woman at any time but couldn't really understand their complaint.

"The toys are segregated in classification for customer convenience only," he said.

"We don't consider it discrimination — it's just set out that way to help the customer make his or her selection."

TOWN TALK

The environment committee of the Victoria Labor Council planned an Environment Day seminar recently, but the turnout was less than spectacular.

Scotty Neish, committee member and head of the local United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said only two local politicians showed up.

The name of the film which was to be shown was "Suppose Nobody Came."

A fascinating Bit of information from the background of Victoria's mayor-elect, Mike Young, was thrown in by way of introduction when he was welcomed as guest speaker at last week's luncheon meeting of Greater Victoria Chamber of Commer.

At one time in his younger days Young was a dynamite salesman, members were informed.

Well, maybe, but he made it fairly clear that — unlike his predecessor, Mayor Peter Pollen — he won't be detonating any controversies or confrontations in City Hall's future relations with the business community.

That's just not his style, Young explained.

HENSON
. . . paid atention

Paying attention in class has paid off for Donnie Henson, seven, a Grade 2 student at Millstream elementary school.

On Sunday he spotted what looked like a drilling hole for dynamite and dashed home to tell his parents, Don and Linda Henson of 683 Hoy Lake Road. He knew better than to meddle with whatever was in the hole, having attended a recent lecture by a team from the armed forces' explosives ordnance dispoal unit.

Donnie's hunch was right. It was confirmed by his next-door neighbor, Dale Davies, 19. On Monday an armed forces' team blew up the dynamite in the hole.

A service spokesman said, "This is a textbook case. Teams visit schools all the time. Now we know it pays off."

The advance of governments into all manner of social programs doesn't sit well with everyone, of course, and has prompted a certain cynycism. Not just locally, either.

Herewith a paraphrasing of a certain psalm, from Bill Tyers Sr. of 304-2095 Oak Bay Ave., who picked it up from a Winnipeg paper which in turn received it indirectly from a woman in Minnesota:

"The government is my shepherd, I therefore need not work. It leadeth me beside the still factories. It destroyeth my initiative. It leadeth me in the path of the parasite for politics' sake. Yea, though I walk in the valley of laziness and deficit spending I will fear no evil for the government is with me. It prepareth an economic utopia for me. By appropriating the earnings of my grandchildren it filleth my head with false security. Its inefficiency runneth over. Surely the government shall care for me all the days of my life and I shall dwell in a fool's paradise forever."

Oak Bay butcher Arnold Nobbs, 68, is hanging up his cleaver at the end of the month after 52 years in the meat business.

He is selling Newport Meat Market, 697 St. Patrick, to a younger Victoria couple, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Clark, for whom it will be their first business.

Nobbs was born on Salt Spring Island and at the age of 16 began his apprenticeship at the old Dominion Meat Market on Douglas Street, which he subsequently took over in 1944. His move to Oak Bay occurred in 1962.

Still undecided on what comes next, Nobbs said he and his wife first want to get their bearings after so many years of toil.

"We might want to do a bit of travelling. It will be the first time we've spread our wings."

What is this inexplicable attraction politics has for car dealers.

Nomination lists for the provincial election this year are heavily sprinkled with candidates who list their occupation as car dealers, especially locally.

There is Peter Pollen, unsuccessful Socred nominee in Victoria; Newell Morrison, recently retired MLA for Victoria; Frank Carson, Socred candidate in Oak Bay, who deals in wheels, and Edgar Rhomberg, Liberal candidate in Saanich.

Further afield are Socred candidate in Dwedney, George Mussallem; George Lawson-Kerster, Socred candidate in Coquitlam; Evan Wolfe, Socred candidate in Vancouver-Little Mountain and last, but not least, Don Phillips, (SC-South Peace).

HANSON
. . . finally

In publishing candid portraits of provincial election candidates, we've somehow omitted Gordon Hanson, one of the NDP's two standard-bearers in the Victoria riding.

And the oversight hasn't escaped the attention of some of the party faithful. In fact, they tend to call up on a fairly regular basis to inquire when we're going to print a picture of 32-year-old handsome Hanson, who is executive assistant to Consumer Services Minister Phyllis Young.

Anyway, to atone for our sins and appease these gentlemen, here he is, complete with tingling-fresh smile.

Now get off our backs, will you fellers?

Lighthouse philosopher Bill Scott recommends that Victorians, especially those involved with labor-management problems, go to Vancouver's East Cultural Centre to see a play called Fanshen.

He says a rehearsal he saw so inspired him that it moved him to offer himself as an independent candidate in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

The play is performed by a group called Tamahnous. It is a documentary of a revolution in a Chinese village by David Hare, based on the book by William Hinton.

"It demonstrates how people can move together in the same direction for the good of all," says Scott, who spent many years in China. "It's also highly authentic."

Scott hopes that it will be possible to bring Fanshen to Victoria following its Vancouver run. In the meantime it can be seen at the centre at 1895 Venables except Sunday and Monday, until Dec. 6.

Speaking of Scott, the independent candidate received a special invitation to speak at the Esquimalt riding all-candidates meeting at the University of Victoria Student Union Building at noon today.

The invitation came after an oversight left Scott off the invitation list for a Victoria riding all-candidate meeting Friday, an omission which prompted the candidate to say he felt "slighted."

Six Months For Arson

Two 21-year-old men were sentenced today in county court to six months in jail for setting fire to the Jehovah Witnesses Kingdom Hall on Joan Crescent Oct. 13, 1974.

Terry Darrow Emerson, 1195 Trans-Canada Highway, and John Robert Atkinson of Vancouver, were found guilty by a jury Oct. 24 of arson in the fire which caused $35,000 damage.

Judge Peter Milward said he was concerned the action was premeditated but found it difficult to understand what the motivation might have been.

He could not, however, agree with defence submissions in favor of a suspended sentence and probation.

"At the same time I am impressed by the efforts you are apparently making to fit into society," the judge said.

"I think you have considerable potential."

Neither Atkinson nor Emerson has a criminal record and Emerson's lawyer, Doug Christie, said because of the guilty verdict they will have to pay for the fire damage.

However, Atkinson's lawyer, Don Farquhar, indicated outside court that in fact there is no obligation on the part of either man to make restitution to the Jehovah Witnesses at this time and there will be no such requirement unless it is directed by a civil court.

Chief prosecution witness was Raymond Kapfer who said Atkinson and Emerson picked him up in a car and told him they intended to burn the hall. He said they set fire to the hall while he sat in the car.

The defence suggested at the trial Kapfer was involved as an accomplice, not with the accused, but with two other persons.

Arson carries a maximum sentence of 14 years.

Crown counsel was David Lisson assisted by Barry Mah Ming.

Advance Polls For Disabled

Handicapped people in B.C. will be allowed to vote at advance polls for the Dec. 11 provincial election.

For the first time chief electoral officer Ken Morton has ruled that disabled persons can vote at advance polls on Dec. 4, 5 and 6, prior to the regular Dec. 11 voting day.

If polling stations are inaccessible to the handicapped, ballot boxes will be brought to them. Helen Austin, special government consultant for the handicapped, said today if disabled people find the polling station inaccessible they should notify officials at the station.

The officials will attempt to provide assistance and if they are unable to, Mrs. Austin said the handicapped person should contact the candidate of their choice or call her at 387-6861; Mark Raetzen at 387-6911 in Victoria; or in Vancouver, 736-4367.

Mrs. Austin said the new ruling is "a landmark decision for the disabled" and handicapped organizations have fought long and hard for it.

Sidney Finally Okays 450-Boat Marina

Sidney's controversial marina bylaw was approved Monday night, but it may be at least three years before the 450-boat marina at the foot of Beacon Avenue actually comes into being.

With only one dissenting voice, council voted to rezone 9.6 acres of waterlot for marina use, allowing the owners of Island View Marina Ltd. to go ahead with their plans to develop a marina complex which includes space for 450 boats; a row of small shops and a coffee shop.

Ald. Wilkie Gardner, defeated in his bid last week for the mayor's seat, voted against the bylaw.

But George Stricker and Pat Stewart, co-owners of Island View Marina Ltd., still have several hurdles, and probably three years to go, before their marina plans are actually started.

Stricker said today he must first receive a lease on the waterlot from the provincal government and then approach the federal government for funds to build a breakwater necessary for the development.

Stewart said the federal government has already spent all funds alloted for breakwaters for 1976, so their request would fall into either 1977 or 1978.

The two said they were pleased with council's decision Monday night and said the marina will be an "attractive improvement" to Sidney's waterfront.

Gardner said today he voted against the marina bylaw because he wanted a provision in it which would see the water-lot zoned back to its current classification if Island View Marina Ltd. cannot get federal and provincial approval.

Stewart and Stricker started on the marina project in March, 1972, and since then have been given a rough ride by both Sidney council and residents near the waterfront where the marina would go.

Council twice turned down their request to have the lot rezoned, once in 1973 and again in June, 1974.

Public meetings held in the bylaw have been stormy, with residents charging the marina would destroy wildlife in the area, ruin a nearby beach and cause pollution.

The residents banded together and at one point armed themselves with the oratory of Victoria lawyer Louis Lindholm who appealed to council that the waterlot should be preserved for "generations unborn."

Another public hearing earlier this month saw a petition presented to council, signed by 25 businesses and 150 residents, urging that the rezoning request be again denied.

Despite the objections, aldermen said they felt the marina would be beneficial to the town and Stewart and Stricker have passed the first stage in their fight, with only two left to go — the provincial and federal governments.

Pollen: Crystal Beyond Saving

Mayor Peter Pollen considers the 50-year-old Crystal Garden building is beyond saving, and that it's "certainly" not worth spending $2.7 million to restore the run-down structure as an arboretum attraction.

Pollen said Monday it's a reality which many residents may not wish to accept, but he added: "I think people's wisdom is going to have to overtake their nostalgia in recognizing that the building is derelict."

He pointed out that the building hasn't been heated for more than five years, and its enormous glass-paned roof is in a state of collapse, requiring virtually complete reconstruction.

A consultant's report to city council last week estimated the total cost of the renovation at about $2.7 million — more than $1 million higher than the preliminary cost estimates worked out by city staff six months ago.

But Pollen reckons the figure could go much higher, perhaps reaching $4 million.

In any case, he said, the basic idea of refurbishing the Crystal Garden as an arboretum, when Victoria has "more flowers, more foliage, more greenery" than any other city in Canada, is "self-defeating in its intrinsic absurity."

There are far more pressing needs — for example, a new central library, an arts centre and a conference centre.

Pollen last week termed the latest Crystal Garden study by architects Wagg and Hambleton "ridiculous."

But the previous day, in an address to the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Mayor-elect Mike Young had referred to it as a "very excellent report."

Young admitted the price to save "this fine and gracious old building" is high, and rejected any suggestion of city revenue being used for that purpose.

But he said if the capital cost could be financed by the federal or provincial governments, or through the efforts of a body like the Chamber of Commerce, he was confident the enterprise could be self-sustaining.

GUILTY PLEA IN ROBBERY

A 22-year-old Chetwynd, B.C. man pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court this morning to robbing the City Savings and Trust, 1306 Douglas, of $964 last Thursday.

Judge William Ostler remanded John Paul McClarty in custody to Dec. 5 for a presentence report and sentencing.

McClarty, a self-employed salesman, had been arrested in a downtown rooming house half an hour after the 3:10 p.m. robbery. Police found $964.05 on him.

Only three hours earlier McClarty had appeared in court before Judge Fred Green for a preliminary hearing into a charge of attempting to rob the Bank of Nova Scotia at Hillside and Douglas on March 10 and had been ordered to stand trial in higher court.

He had also been ordered on Nov. 4 to stand trial for robbing the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, 1090 Fort, on Feb. 24.

In both cases McClarty had been freed on a $1,000 recognizance bond.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett asked for and got an order to have the money seized at the time of McClarty's arrest returned to the trust company.

Birkett said the accused has three prior convictions, all in 1974, one for attempted extortion in Chetwynd and two for possession of a stolen car, one in Saskatoon and the other in Williams Lake.

City Eyes Union Exemptions

City council is considering a proposal by its senior management to seek exemption from union membership for certain personnel in supervisory positions at City Hall.

But officials say the move is purely an administrative one and is not designed to ensure a sufficient nucleus of non-union staff so that services could be maintained in the event of another strike.

Colin Crisp, assistant to city manager Jim Bramley, said today the proposal is still under study and the final number of employees who might be affected isn't known.

"We haven't made any decision yet as to when to make the application (to the Labor Relations Board) and for whom," he said. "It's a very complicated matter."

However, Mayor Peter Pollen said Monday he believes that 10 to 15 staff members might be involved in the proposed transfer from union membership to non-union status.

Asked why it was considered necessary, the mayor replied: "Because the senior management of the city should not be in the union."

An example of the present illogical situation, he noted, is in the parks department where administrator Cliff Bate is the only non-union employee.

Crisp pointed to the same example. He said Bate's deputy, parks superintendent Al Smith, is a professional man with a degree in agriculture whose function is "fully managerial," a fact which should be recognized by granting him non-union status.

Smith himself agreed with that view today, and said he had applied privately for exemption some 18 months ago.

About 200 City Hall inside workers are represented by local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, which was locked out for three months earlier this year after outside staff (CUPE local 50) went on strike.

Local president Dennis Burke said today he had heard only rumors of the proposed application to the Labor Relations Board.

"They haven't handed me a list of the people they would like to exempt from the bargaining unit and we haven't handed them a list of the people now on exempt staff who we feel would be included in the unit."

Burke said at least one reason for the management move appears to be a plan to swell the ranks of non-union staff, so that the city administration would be better able to cope if there were another serious dispute.

There are now about 30 union-exempt staff, including department heads and their assistants, professionals in the planning and engineering departments and confidential secretaries.

'Social Lepers Never Off the Hook'

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

A Victoria church group representative phoned a woman last week to say her volunteer services at the church were no longer welcome.

Probation officers say it's just one example of the social blacklisting that occurs when people appear in Victoria provincial court.

Bail supervisor Lixz Cook said the tragedy of this case is that the woman has only been charged and has not yet come to trial.

"She's getting a lot of community flack but she hasn't been convicted," said Cook. "You shouldn't be punished for anything until you're proven guilty."

The woman has been charged with theft.

Probation officer Ed Stanton said he knows of numerous people who have lost jobs for having criminal convictions.

"They're social lepers after that — there's no doubt," he said. "People neve forget, and you're never off the hook."

But B.C. human rights commission spokesman Reggie Newkirk said it may be illegal for an employer to fire someone because he has a conviction.

He said the Human Rights Code of B.C. prohibits employers from refusing to hire or keep employees unless "reasonable cause" exists for refusal or discrimination.

The code continues: "A conviction for a criminal or summary conviction charge shall not constitute reasonable cause unless such charge relates to the occupation or employment . . . of a person."

Whether a charge is related has to be decided in each individual case, he said.

He said the commission is investigating three or four cases of alleged wrongful dismissal involving criminal records.

Senior Victoria probation officer Mel Rossmo also knows cases in which people have lost jobs after coming to court, but said if he were an employer he might act the same way.

The nature of an employee's duties would enter into his decision, he said, "for instance whether I could trust the person to handle money."

Rossmo feels individuals worry more about what family members and friends will think than what employers will do.

Court officials agree the shame associated with a criminal conviction is often more punishment than a sentence itself.

"People are more afraid of publicity than they are of the fine," said Prosecutor Scott Marshall.

Mt. Newton Access Decision Del ayed

A decision will be made in two weeks on the most suitable access for a 177-acre subdivision on Mt. Newton, Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler said today.

Council meeting in committee Monday night heard expressions of concern from residents of the area of Mt. Newton Cross Road and the south slope of the montain.

Creating access to the property may pose a drainage and erosion problem with adverse effect on the upland ecology, aldermen were told. Some residents were opposed to the project in any case, preferring to see the property bearing second growth timber left in its natural state.

No formal public hearing is required because the proposed development into 17 10-acre parcels conforms to existing zoning.

The developer, Dr. Howard McDiarmid, will bear the cost of providing access, the mayor said, but the municipality is concerned that the best route be chosen for future access to adjoining land and for maintenance and servicing commitments at public expense.

She said Thomson Road appears to be the most suitable of two alternatives, both of which are steep. Thomson is partly developed and allows for 40-foot right of way. The alternative would be to build a new road using some of the land in the total parcel.

In other business, the committee adjusted the municipal capital budget to allow for the purchase of land to expand the publicly-owned gravel pit at a cost of $135,000.

It also was decided to recommend the financing of staff salaries, equipment and supplies for recreation through a 1976 levy of three-quarters of a mill in the annual budget.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 28-year-old man who changed his plea to guilty on three counts of false pretences was sentenced to two extra months in jail.

Richard Wayne Duncan, no fixed address, is serving six months after he was sentenced Nov. 5 for theft of money from a gas station cash register.

He had stayed in three Victoria area motels in August and September, leaving unpaid bills of $157.60, $147, and $90.60.

Defence counsel Malcolm McMicken told the court Duncan has marriage problems, but Judge William Ostler said that was no excuse.

"It's much too simple to blame criminal activity on marriage problems. Everybody has marriage problems. It's part of a marriage, and a healthy marriage," said Ostler.

John Hugh Gwilt, 50, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large and was sentenced to five days.

★ ★ ★

Dorothy Lam, 57, of Victoria, pleaded guilty to shoplifting and was remanded to Dec. 8 for pre-sentence report. She took $4.78 worth of items from Eaton's Nov. 18, and was apprehended there at 11 a.m.

Couurt was told he has a record including four impaired driving convictions.

★ ★ ★

A bank teller who pleaded guilty to shoplifting $61.50 worth of items from The Bay Nov. 19 was fined $200.

Sharon Ann Willis, 21, of 1315 Esquimalt, stole the items and was caught by store security at 4:50 p.m.

"You're damaging one of your most precious assets — your honesty," said Judge William Ostler.

Bail Refused In Ladysmith

LADYSMITH — Bail was refused two Ladysmith men who appeared is provincial court Monday facing a series of charges including assaulting a police officer and obstructing justice.

Laurence Harold Craig and Randy Arvid Wilson, both 23, were remanded in custody and will appear in court Jan. 22 for preliminary hearing.

A third man, Bradley David Lockhart, also 23, who with Craig and Wilson is charged with breaking and entering a residence on High Street, will be released if he can raise a $5,000 surety. His case is adjourned to Feb. 12.

Lockhart is also charged with resisting arrest, breach of probation and escaping lawful custody.

Charges result from an incident last week during which two police officers staked-out a residence on High Street after complaints from an unidentified woman who said she had been receiving menacing telephone calls.

Police report three men entered the house in the early evening and in the course of the scuffle one of the men was shot by a police officer.

Craig was treated at hospital for a flesh wound.

No Frills School

There were no extra frills included in tender specifications for Lampson Street school renovations, a special investigation has concluded.

Called by Greater Victoria School Board chairman Bill Ross, the investigation was launched after Lampson Street parents charged the administration had added "extravagant details to the plans to make renovations appear impractical."

The study of tenders for the school, conducted by school superintendent Jake Longmore, recommends that before any future capital expenditure proposal for Lampson is prepared the board should meet with parents to discuss and clarify "expectations and requirements."

"It was apparent from the review of files and parents' presentations that the expectations of the Lampson parents were less than the requirements of the National Building Code, the Fire Marshall's Act and the directions given by the board of school trustees," says Longmore.

Olympic Fraud Raids

Land Price Curbs Eyed

MONTREAL (UPI) — RCMP and provincial police conducted a series of raids in the Montreal area today in what police said was an investigation into possible fraud in the construction of a key Olympic Games facility.

A Quebec police force spokesman said some 100 officers of the provincial force along with RCMP were carrying out raids relating to the building of the $90 million Olympic village site.

"Our men went to different places wth search warrants to find information, documents or people pertaining to an alleged fraud in the construction of the Olympic village," a QPP spokesman said.

"No arrests have been made. We were not out to make any arrests — we were out to get some documents," the spokesman added.

Police said some of the raids were carried out on the site of the village, two pyramid-shaped, 980-unit apartment buildings scheduled to house 11,000 athletes at the 1976 summer games, and others at various construction company offices including the offices of Terrasses Zarolega Inc.

Police said raids, which began at 7 a.m. took place at several other locations including the homes of the company's directors.

Terrasses Zarolega Inc., a consortium of Joseph Zappia, Rene Lepine, Gerald Robinson and Andrew Caty, is building the Olympic village.

The village complex originally was estimated to cost $30 million. Begun last December, the exteriors were completed in only five months, with some contractors earning bonuses for speeded-up construction.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government is considering controls on land prices to prevent speculation, Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson said Monday.

Builders, he said, seem willing to accept some control in this area.

However, the comment drew swift and angry response from Bernard Denault, president of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada.

Controls, he said, might prompt big landowners to keep land off the market until the three-year control program ends.

This would limit the land available for housing and might have a disastrous affect on housing construction.

The government is also considering tightening anti-inflation controls over the construction industry because the current program exempted about 80 per cent of the industry, Danson said.

An anti-inflation board spokesman says this would be done by making more of the smaller construction companies subject to mandatory controls.

The current program calls for direct controls to apply only to construction companies employing 20 workers or more.

This likely will be changed to apply direct controls to companies that employ some number of employees fewer than 20.

The board has not yet decided what size of company it wants to regulate directly or the number of companies it expects to be affected by changes in the controls program.

Danson met Monday with official of the Canadian Construction Association and its provincial affiliates, the Housing and Urban Development Association and builders.

The meeting was part of "a continuing effort at consensus" over the federal controls, he said.

Changes in the anti-inflation program will raise the number of companies — now estimated at 7,500 — that will have their operations and employees subject to mandatory controls.

All others have been asked to comply voluntarily with the guides for acceptable incomes and price rises.

The estimated number of directly regulated companies has grown significantly since the controls were imposed Oct. 14.

Prime Minsiter Trudeau said then the government program applied directly to the 1,500 largest companies that employed 500 or more employees each, and to construction companies employing over 20. That would have covered about 5,000 construction firms.

The anti-inflation board now admits it under-estimated the number of large companies affected. As a result, it has since increased its estimate to 2,500 from 1,500 and says that is still "a rough estimate."

Postal Workers Assaulted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A postal worker said today he and five colleagues were assaulted by members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers after the six finished working a night shift at the downtown post office.

Mike Kinsella, 37, a dispatcher, said he was one of a group of eight workers who reported for duty shortly after 4 p.m. Monday.

"One of the fellows was body checked as we walked inside,but nothing much more came of it at that time," Kinsella said.

Kinsella said the real trouble started when the group left the post office at about 11:45 p.m.

"When we left the post office we turned north, but one went south, so that left seven of us. We saw a person standing on the Queen Elizabeth Theatre plaza as we were approaching Georgia, but we thought it was just a kid or something," he said.

STRIKE TIME TOLL HIGH IN CANADA

GENEVA (Reuter) — Canada placed high on a list of non-communist countries leading in lost labor time due to strikes and lockouts in 1974, the International Labor Organization (ILO) reported Monday.

In a review of labor disputes in 60 countries, the United Nations agency disclosed that the number of working days lost to strikes and lockouts in the non-communist world jumped by more than 35 per cent last year.

Italy led the list but the longest stoppages were in Turkey, the report said.

Strikes last year led to the loss of more than six million working days in Canada, Australia, Italy, Japan and Britain. In France, the total was three million, and in West Germany, Spain and Peru it topped the million mark, the ILO said.

ILO officials said they had no statistics for China or the communist states of Eastern Europe.

ILO said the total number of working days lost because of labor conflicts rose to 154 million, almost 42 million more than in 1973 when a slight decrease was recorded. The number of workers involved in strikes or lockouts also increased, rising from 22 million in 1973 to 25 million in 1974.

Socred Squabble Boils As Capozzi Dumps Lau

VANCOUVER (CP) — The internal squabbling within the Social Credit party in the Vancouver Centre riding peaked Monday when nominee Herb Capozzi declared himself independent from the campaign of Alan Lau.

The two men had been running as a team since they were nominated Nov. 16 to contest the dual riding for Social Credit.

Capozzi told a news conference that public concern over Lau's candidacy prompted him to run independently from the former Hong Kong businessman.

In Port Alberni Monday night Socred leader Bill Bennett refused to specifically endorse Lau's candidacy but said he would never interfere with the local selection process.

"I don't interfere with local constituency politics," Bennett told a news conference after a rally attended by more than 1,100 people.

"If people in the constituency have any complaints, they can take them to our party president, Peter Hyndman. If it turns out the complaints are justified, a new nominating convention would be held."

He repeatedly referred reporters to Hyndman to answer questions about Lau's candidacy, possible appeals, and the party machinery that would be involved in any change of candidates.

"As party leader, I take the candidates that the constituencies select. As party leader I have said that I will not interfere in the selection of candidates and I haven't.

"I do not engage in witch hunts."

He said he is not aware of any complaints received about Lau, nor of any investigation into his candidacy.

Bennett said Capozzi did not speak to him before divesting himself from Lau.

Thousands Flee L.A. Flames

Times News Services

GLENDALE — Firefighters mounted a massive aerial assault today against the worst California brush fire outbreak in five years. Thousands of refugees fled flames raging across 100 square miles through suburban homes.

A gigantic smoke cloud billowed 100 miles into the Pacific, casting a twilight pall over the Los Angeles area.

Motorists 30 miles away had to use headlights in the darkness at noon amid a rain of ashes "like snowflakes." The sun shrank to a small red disk in an eerie murk of pink and grey.

With nearly 2,000 firefighters falling back before flames, whipped by hot winds from the Mojave Desert gusting up to 60 m.p.h, home owners mounted individual defences.

Standing with garden hoses atop homes surrounded by flames, they alternately doused themselves and flaming roofs. Some won. Some lost.

The worst fire, the Tujunga Canyon blaze, had consumed 43,000 acres by Monday night, burning 43 structures and sending 3,000 persons fleeing. Nineteen houses valued at up to $60,000 or more burned to the ground Monday as the fire

Grits 'Hiding' On Giguere Probe

By IAIN HUNTER

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Monday of hiding behind a police investigation involving a Liberal senator.

The Conservative leader demanded in the commons a public inquiry into affairs relating to Senator Louis Giguere "and alleged conflicts of interest."

"I have to ask members of the govenment why they keep hiding behind the fact that a police investigation is being made into something that very closely touches the government, Parliament and this country," Stanfield declared.

Referring to recent reports of police raids on the senator's office and apartment in Montreal and his office on Parliament Hill, the opposition leader said there is a "prima facie indication of a substantial conflict of interest" and called on Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to "set the minds of the Canadian public at ease" and order a public inquiry.

Senator Giguere, a Liberal party fund raiser, admitted making a $95,000 profit on a $5,000 investmennt in Sky Shops shares in 1972 when the government extended the Sky Shops lease for the Montreal airport duty-free shop concession.

It has been reported recently that when RCMP raided Giguere's apartment Nov. 6 they carried a warrant authorizing them to search for documents relating to the collection of funds for the Liberal party, as well as correspondence concerning business conducted by corporations with the federal government.

Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova) noted that it has become public knowledge that ledger cards of engineers and architects were among dueuments taken by the RCMP from an apartment next to the senator's and asked whether they had any connection with the Mirabel Airport project.

Solicitor General Warren Allmand refused to give any details of the police investigations while they are still under way. He also refused to say whether RCMP had also searched Liberal party offices. He said he will consider tabling in the Commons copies of the search warrant and list of documents seized in the case, but refused to agree to table police reports when the investigation is completed.

'DEAD' DUCK BEATS FREEZE

SLIDELL, La. (UPI) — Duck hunter Warren Stovall, relaxing at home after bagging a pair of mallards he intended to have mounted, went to his freezer to get ice for a drink.

When he opened the freezer door a half-frozen duck with buckshot wounds in the neck and wing flapped out of the refrigerator and flew around the room.

"He started screaming," said his wife Charlotte. "He came running in with the duck, and it was alive. It had worked its way out of the foil and was sitting in the freezer when he opened it, and it flew out."

Stovall had shot the drake and a hen about dawn Saturday, and a busy taxidermist told him to freeze the birds and he would stuff them on Monday.

Stovall wrapped each duck separately in tin foil, sealing them with tape, and popped them in the freezer at 10 a.m. Saturday. It was 10 that night when the duck flew out of the freezer.

The Stovalls decided to give the drake to a man who raises ducks.

"As much as this duck has been through, he wasn't meant to die," Mrs. Stovall said.

DIVORCE RATE UP 20%

OTTAWA (CP) — The national divorce rate last year was up 20.6 per cent from 1973, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

There were 45,019 divorces in 1974, resulting in a rate of 200.3 divorces per 100,000 population. This was up from 36,704 divorces and a rate of 166.1 per 100,000 in 1973.

The agency said the divorce rate has been increasing since legislative changes in 1968 simplified the process.

Alberta had the highest rate in the country at 288.1 per 100,000, up 9.3 per cent from 1973. Newfoundland had the lowest rate at 55.4, up 33.8 per cent from 1973.

The rate increased in all areas except the Yukon, where the rate dropped to 242.1, down 19.3 per cent from 1973.

The rate per 100,000 population and the percentage increases from 1973 in other provinces:

Prince Edward Island, 82.1, up 74.7 per cent; Nova Scotia, 195.5, up 26 per cent; New Brunswick, 113.9, up 29.4 per cent; Quebec 199.8, up 50.1 per cent; Ontario, 188.5, up 17.1 per cent; Manitoba, 284.8, up 15.9 per cent; British Columbia, 284.8, up 15.9 per cent; Northwest Territories, 155.3, up 40.5 per cent.

Feminists Take Aim at 'Sexist' Toy Departments

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Times Staff

Let the merchant who displays toys in a' 'sexist" way be warned.

Victoria feminists are on the march against stores whose toy departments advertise or section off toys into boys' and girls' areas.

So far they've been to most of the major stores and have won most of the managers over to their point of view.

The feminists are pleased with the results — "extremely satisfied" was the way Alice Ages put it.

Ages, a former elementary school teacher, mother of three and member of the Victoria Women's Action Coalition, said feminists have been trying for three years to get some action.

Earlier this month they got together and initiated a new and more forceful drive.

Ages said they were appalled by sex role stereotyping of children's toys which ends up "transmitting obsolete social values."

She felt there was no reason boys should be limited to trucks and trains and chemistry sets while girls had to choose between toy mops and vacuum cleaners — symbols of "darkest domestica."

She said such segregation "reinforces ... the mother's little helper role" and could be "severely crippling to a girl's self-assessment."

Ages said a complaint was made to Simpsons-Sears and the next day down came the offensive Boy Town and Girl Town signs; up went the sexless Toy Town sign.

A spokesman for Sears said the store was going to change the signs anyway but the women's protest and a veiled threat there would be a demonstration 'speeded up things a bit."

Ages said the women have gone to The Bay, spotted one distressing Boy Toys sign, asked the manager to remove it, and have also gone to Woodwards which they found "completely unobjectionable."

Now their attention is focused on Eaton's which still has two large hanging signs directing shoppers to boys and girls toys sections.

Store manager Reg Hind said he would meet the woman at any time but couldn't really understand their complaint.

"The toys are segregated in classification for customer convenience only," he said.

"We don't consider it discrimination — it's just set out that way to help the customer make his or her selection."
